TITLE III—NATIONAL HERITAGE AREA STUDIES

Subtitle A—Western Reserve Heritage Area Study

SEC. 301. SHORT TITLE.
This subtitle may be cited as the "Western Reserve Heritage Areas Study Act".

SEC. 302. NATIONAL PARK SERVICE STUDY REGARDING THE WESTERN RESERVE, OHIO.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds the following:

(1) The area that encompasses the modern-day counties of Trumbull, Mahoning, Ashtabula, Portage, Geagua, Lake, Cuyahoga, Summit, Medina, Huron, Lorain, Erie, Ottawa, and Ashland in Ohio with the rich history in what was once the Western Reserve, has made a unique contribution to the cultural, political, and industrial development of the United States.

(2) The Western Reserve is distinctive as the land settled by the people of Connecticut after the Revolutionary War. The Western Reserve holds a unique mark as the original wilderness land of the West that many settlers migrated to in order to begin life outside of the original 13 colonies.

(3) The Western Reserve played a significant role in providing land to the people of Connecticut whose property and land was destroyed during the Revolution. These settlers were descendants of the brave immigrants who came to the Americas in the 17th century.

(4) The Western Reserve offered a new destination for those who moved west in search of land and prosperity. The agricultural and industrial base that began in the Western Reserve still lives strong in these prosperous and historical counties.

(5) The heritage of the Western Reserve remains transfixed in the counties of Trumbull, Mahoning, Ashtabula, Portage, Geagua, Lake, Cuyahoga, Summit, Medina, Huron, Lorain, Erie, Ottawa, and Ashland in Ohio. The people of these counties are proud of their heritage as shown through the unwavering attempts to preserve agricultural land and the industrial foundation that has been embedded in this region since the establishment of the Western Reserve. Throughout these counties, historical sites, and markers preserve the unique traditions and customs of its original heritage.

(6) The counties that encompass the Western Reserve continue to maintain a strong connection to its historic past as seen through its preservation of its local heritage, including historic homes, buildings, and centers of public gatherings.

(7) There is a need for assistance for the preservation and promotion of the significance of the Western Reserve as the natural, historic and cultural heritage of the counties of Trumbull, Mahoning, Ashtabula, Portage, Geauga, Lake, Cuyahoga, Summit, Medina, Huron, Lorain, Erie, Ottawa and Ashland in Ohio.

(8) The Department of the Interior is responsible for protecting the Nation’s cultural and historical resources. There are significant examples of such resources within these counties and what was once the Western Reserve to merit the involvement of the Federal Government in the development of programs and projects, in cooperation with the State of Ohio and other local governmental entities, to adequately conserve, protect, and interpret this heritage for future generations, while providing opportunities for education and revitalization.

(G) has a potential local coordinating entity to work in partnership with residents, business interests, nonprofit organizations, and local and State governments to develop a national heritage area consistent with continued local and State economic activity;

(I) has potential or actual impact on private property located within or abutting the Study Area.

6.10 Board of Trustees. The Board of Trustees constitutes the elected officers of the corporation.

Question: This directly conflicts with Territorial Kansas Bylaws. Should Art. 5 of the Alliance’s bylaws be amended to make the FFNHA’s officers and Board the Alliance’s officers and Board?

ARTICLE VII: INDEMNIFICATION

7.1 Indemnification. The corporation shall indemnify any person who was or is a party, or is threatened to be made a party, to any threatened, pending or completed action, suit or proceeding, whether civil, criminal, administrative or investigative, other than an action by or in the right of the corporation, by reason of the fact that such person is or was a Trustee, officer, employee or agent of the corporation, or is or was serving at the request of the corporation as a Trustee, officer, employee or agent of another corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise, against expenses, judgment, fines, and amounts paid in settlement actually and reasonably incurred by such person in connection with such action, suit or proceeding, including attorney fees, if such person acted in good faith and in a manner such person reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interest of the corporation; and with respect to any criminal action or proceeding, had no reasonable cause to believe such person’s conduct was unlawful.

7.2 No Presumption. The termination of any action, suit or proceeding by judgment, order, settlement, conviction, or upon a plea of nolo contendere or its equivalent, shall not, of itself, create a presumption that the person did not act in good faith and in a manner which such person reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the corporation, and, with respect to any criminal action or proceeding, had reasonable cause to believe that such person’s conduct was unlawful.

7.3 Expenses.
   a. To the extent that a Trustee, officer, employee or agent of a corporation has been successful on the merits or otherwise in defense of any action, suit or proceeding referred to in Section 7.1, or in defense of any claim, issue or matter therein, such Trustee, officer, employee or agent shall be indemnified against expenses actually and reasonably incurred by such person in connection therein, including attorney fees.

   b. Expenses incurred by a Trustee, agent or officer in defending a civil or criminal action, suit, or proceeding may be paid by the corporation in advance of the final disposition of such action, suit or proceeding upon receipt of an undertaking by or on behalf of the Trustee, agent or officer to repay such amount if it is ultimately determined that such person is not entitled to be indemnified by the corporation as authorized in this section. Such expense incurred by employees may be so paid upon such terms and conditions, if any, as the Board of Trustees deems appropriate.

7.4 Authorization. Any indemnification under 7.1, unless ordered by a court, shall be made by the corporation only as authorized in the specific case upon a determination that indemnification of the Trustee, officer, employee or agent is proper in the circumstances because such Trustee, officer, employee or agent has met the applicable standard of conduct set forth in Section 7.1. Such determination shall be made (1) by the Board of Trustees by a majority vote of a quorum consisting of Trustees who were not parties to such action, suit or proceeding, or (2) if such a quorum is not obtainable, or even if obtainable, if a quorum of disinterested Trustees so directs, by independent counsel in a written opinion.
7.5  Not Exclusive. The indemnification and advancement of expenses by, or granted by, or granted pursuant to these Bylaws shall not be deemed exclusive of any other rights to which those seeking indemnification or advancement of expenses may be entitled under any law, agreement, vote of disinterested Trustees or otherwise, both as to action in a person’s official capacity and as to action in another capacity while holding such office.

7.6  Insurance. The corporation, upon majority vote of the members of the Board of Trustees at a regular scheduled meeting, may purchase and maintain general liability insurance and/or insurance on behalf of any person who is or was a Trustee, officer, or employee or agent of the corporation, or is or was serving at the request of the corporation as a Trustee, officer, employee or agent of another corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise against any liability asserted against such person and incurred by such person in such capacity, or arising out of such person’s status as such, whether or not the corporation would have the power to indemnify such person against such liability under the provisions of these Bylaws.

7.7  Continuing Effect. The indemnification and advancement or expense provided by, or granted pursuant to, this selection shall, unless otherwise provided when authorized or ratified, continue as to a person who has ceased to be a Trustee, officer, employee or agent and shall inure to the benefit of the heirs, executors and administrators of such a person.

ARTICLE VIII: GENERAL

8.1  Finance. Prior to the annual meeting, the Trustees shall formulate a budget for the corporation and the same shall be submitted to the membership at the annual meeting for ratification.

8.2  Banking, Notes, and Mortgages. The monies of the corporation shall be deposited in the name of the corporation in such banks, savings and loan associations or trust companies as the Trustees shall designate, and may be drawn out only in the name of the corporation by such person or persons as the Trustees by appropriate resolution may direct. Notes, mortgages and commercial paper, when authorized by the Trustees, shall be signed in the name of the corporation by such officer or officers or agent or agents as shall thereunto be authorized from time to time by the Trustees.

8.3  Fiscal Year. The corporation’s fiscal year shall be a calendar year, ending on December 31, unless otherwise determined by resolution of the Board of Trustees. If the corporation’s fiscal year is changed, the officers shall promptly notify the Secretary of State and all other authorities necessary to effect the change.
8.4 Interest of Members or Officers. Any contract or other transaction between the corporation and one or more of its members or officers, or between the corporation and any firm of which one or more of the members or officers are Trustees or officers or in which they have a financial interest, shall be valid for all purposes, notwithstanding the presence of such person at the meeting of members which acts upon, or in reference to, such contract or transaction, and notwithstanding his/her or their participation in such action, if the fact of such interest shall be disclosed or known to the other members and they nevertheless authorize, approve, and ratify such contract or transaction. This provision shall not be construed to invalidate any contract or other transaction that would otherwise be valid under the common and statutory law applicable thereto.

8.5 Waiver of Notice. Whenever any notice is required to be given under the provision of these Bylaws, the Articles of Incorporation, or any law, a waiver thereof, if permitted by law, in writing, signed by the person or persons entitled to such notice, whether before or after the time stated therein, shall be deemed the equivalent to the giving of such notice. Attendance of a person at a meeting shall constitute a waiver of notice of such meeting, except when such attendance is for the purpose of objecting to the transaction of any businesses because the meeting is not lawfully called or convened.

8.6 Meetings by Conference Telephone. Unless otherwise restricted by law, members may participate in corporation meetings by means of conference telephone or similar communications equipment whereby all persons participating in the manner can hear each other, and participation in such manner shall constitute attendance at such meeting.

8.7 Action without a Meeting. Nothing in these Bylaws shall be construed so as to prevent any action required or permitted to be taken at a regular or special meeting of the members of the Board of Trustees, or to be taken without a meeting if consent in writing setting forth the action so taken shall be signed by all of the Board members entitled to vote with respect to the subject matter thereon.

Question: Should we define “corporation” (used throughout the bylaws) to mean both the FFHNA and the Alliance or to otherwise clarify their relationship?

ARTICLE IX: AMENDMENT

9.1 Amendments of Bylaws. These Bylaws of the corporation may from time to time be repealed, altered, amended, or new Bylaws may be adopted by the Board of Trustees. Notice of any proposed change or repeal of the Bylaws shall be given to the members of the Board of Trustees prior to the meeting as set forth in Section 5.3

ARTICLE X: RULE OF ORDER

10.1 Robert’s Rules of Order (revised) will be followed for all meetings of this corporation.

ARTICLE XI: MANAGEMENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF CORPORATE FUNDS

11.1 Operation and Management of Funds. The corporation shall at all times be operated exclusively for the purposes set forth in its Articles of Incorporation and in a manner which causes the corporation to qualify as an exempt organization under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code and its regulations as they now exist or as they may hereafter be amended. Notwithstanding any other provision of these Bylaws, no member shall take any action or carry on any activity by or on behalf of the corporation not permitted to be taken or carried on by an organization exempt under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code and its regulations as they now exist or as they may hereafter be amended. All members of the corporation shall be deemed to have expressly consented and agreed that upon dissolution or winding up of the affairs of the corporation, whether voluntarily or involuntarily, the assets of the corporation then remaining in the hands of the general membership shall be distributed, amounts and proportions as the general membership may determine, exclusively to one or more charitable, religious, scientific, literary, or educational organizations which would then qualify as exempt organizations under the provisions of Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code as its regulations now exist or as they may hereafter be amended.

Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area Timeline

1999  Territorial Kansas Heritage Area (TKHA), a grassroots group of historians and tourism agencies, formed to plan for the Sesquicentennial of Kansas Territory (2004).

2001  TKHA brought in representatives of National Park Service (NPS) and another established heritage area to provide information about developing a heritage area in eastern Kansas.

2002  At the urging of the TKHA, Governor Graves appointed the Territorial Sesquicentennial Commission to organize and promote events in 2004. Chaired by Deanell Tacha, it was successful in raising funds to complete a series of activities and projects in celebration of the 150th anniversary.

The Lawrence City Commission & Douglas County Commission appointed a committee, chaired by Deanell Tacha to explore the feasibility of establishing a heritage area in Douglas County.

2003  In January, NPS officials, consultants with heritage areas and administrators of existing heritage areas facilitated a Heritage Summit in Lawrence. About 75 people attended, representing all counties that were potential participants in establishing a heritage area. The Summit launched the grassroots planning committee meetings that have occurred each month throughout the area to date.

The working name of our emerging heritage area was determined to be Bleeding Kansas and the Enduring Struggle for Freedom Heritage Area.

In August, the Joint Committee on Economic Development for the Kansas Legislature invited Judy Billings, director of the Lawrence Convention and Visitors Bureau, to give testimony about what heritage area development means to Kansas. Representative Kenny Wilk and Senator Nick Jordan wrote letters of support to the Secretary of Commerce and the Governor.

The Planning Group hired Dr. Dale Nimz to complete a required feasibility study. The Kansas Department of Commerce contributed $15,000 toward this effort. The grassroots participants submitted information and raised matching funds for the study.

2004  The feasibility study was officially presented to the National Park Service as well as the Kansas Congressional delegation.

In March, identical bills were written and introduced in both the House and Senate to establish a Bleeding Kansas National Heritage Area (BKNHA). These bills eventually died in committee.

A professional was hired to work with a committee of the planning committee to facilitate the naming process and develop a graphic for BKNHA. Grassroots groups came to consensus on “Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area” as the name for the area.

NPS requested BKNHA to study the natural environment and the effects of the people on the land and vice versa in the defined area of the study. The study was completed in mid-August and forwarded to NPS.

Monthly grassroots committee meetings continued under the guidance of a steering committee.

Grassroots group continued work on development of site data in the area.

Judge Deanell Reece Tacha, Lawrence, agreed to chair and assist in establishing the advisory board.

2005  Legislation to establish a Bleeding Kansas Heritage Area was re-introduced in Congress with the support of entire Kansas delegation.
In March, Judy Billings testified before the Senate Energy & Resources Subcommittee on National Park Service. MO Senator Talent, serving on the committee, added 12 Missouri Counties to the bill, which passed the Senate.

Tacha began to call regular meetings of the advisory board to learn how such a board might support the heritage area efforts.

Grassroots committee continued monthly meetings building the number of participants and inviting Missouri representatives to join in.

In June, Billings testified before the House Committee. House Committee negotiations led to an agreement that the official name shall be Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area and language in the legislation was changed to reflect this.

The Advisory Board, led by Tacha, continued to meet regularly and the grassroots group, now called the Partnership Team, continued to meet monthly.

In July, the legislation passed the House but had to go back to Senate for ratification with changes.

In September, the legislation got bundled with 9 other heritage area proposals and passed designating 10 heritage areas including Freedom’s Frontier making a total of 39 in the country.

On October 12, 2006, President George W. Bush signed enabling legislation.

The Board of Trustees developed an organizational structure with bylaws and confirmed IRS 501c3 status—officially becoming a Board of Trustees—and invited Missouri delegates to join. Board began to organize fundraising plan and materials.

In June, after a Request for Proposals and an extensive interview process conducted by a Partnership Team Committee, the Board of Trustees hired a team of consultants headed by Cheryl Hargrove, Center for Sustainable Destinations, National Geographic.

The Board continued to raise funds for management planning process. Kansas Department of Commerce committed $75,000, City of Lawrence $25,000, Mid America Regional Council (MARC) $25,000 and Capitol Federal Foundation $10,000 in addition to numerous small contributions to the effort.

In November, Cheryl Hargrove facilitated an orientation meeting for the Partnership Team and Board of Trustees to begin management planning process. Over 100 people attended.

In January, a contract was signed with professional consultants for facilitation of the NPS required Management Plan.

A Steering Committee for the management planning process developed with the task of providing input to consultants prior to presenting information to the general partnership and reviewing minutes and documents prior to being posted on the web.

In February, the first facilitated management planning meeting of the Partnership Team was held in Harrisonville, MO. Over 100 people attended and signed on for committee work including Heritage Development, Interpretation and Education, Resources Development, Marketing and Civic Engagement.

Monthly Partnership Team meetings continued with contractors facilitating each phase of responsibility called for in the Scope of Work. Attendance ranged between 50 and 100 people for each meeting. Meanwhile, conference calls with committees and public surveys solicited information to be used for management planning.

Board continued to raise funds and generate publicity by meeting with editorial boards and speaking to groups in the area.

HERITAGE AREA MEETING TO FOCUS ON TOURISM TRENDS

Kansas City, Missouri – As part of the discovery phase of the Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area (FFNHA) management planning process, the organization’s monthly meeting will focus on “Tourism Trends Impacting FFNHA.” Tourism is recognized as one of the primary strategies for the region’s sustainable growth.

National expert and planning team consultant, Cheryl Hargrove, will lead the meeting with an overview of global, national and regional trends impacting the potential growth and sustainability of tourism in the 41-county region covering Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri. Hargrove is best known as the National Trust for Historic Preservation’s first heritage tourism director and recently served as the Associate Director for National Geographic’s Center for Sustainable Destinations.

The meeting will also include presentations by Becky Blake, Director of the Kansas Travel & Tourism Division, Department of Commerce and Lori Simms, Communications Director from the Missouri Division of Tourism. A travel industry veteran with more than 25 years experience,

This monthly meeting is open to any person interested in helping set and implement a regional agenda for FFNHA. Reservations are required. The meeting is scheduled:

Date: Thursday, April 10, 2008
Time: 10:00 am - 1:00 pm
Location: Mid-America Regional Council (MARC) Offices
600 Broadway, Suite 300, Kansas City, MO
Reservations: Eliza Waterman ewaterman@marc.org
(required by 4/7/08)

“The future of Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri depends on local citizens championing the values and celebrating the assets of our region,” Billings said. “We must share all the significant stories that have helped shape our country and communities, foster understanding and insight among current and future generations, and build collaborations that will strengthen the economic vitality of the region.”

The President signed the enabling legislation designating FFNHA on October 12, 2006 as one of 10 new National Heritage Areas; there are currently 37 designated regions across the nation. FFNHA – comprising the 41-county region of Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri – is recognized for its distinctive history, culture, and landscape that tell the stories about the quest for national and individual freedoms. National Heritage Areas are living landscapes recognized through a partnership with the National Park Service. FFNHA is currently engaged in its management planning process. The final plan is scheduled for submission to the National Park Service in February 2009.

Debbie White called the monthly meeting to order at 10 am in the Reno Methodist Church on the Tonganoxie Museum site. Tonganoxie Mayor Dave Taylor, Tonganoxie Museum organizer Susy Ross, and local business owner Lana Howe welcomed the group.

Treasurer Martha Parker reported her figures as a current balance of $871.21. The motion was carried with out dissent.

Debbie explained criteria for partner site applications, and that those will be sent out as soon as possible. She also explained there will be a committee of five or six people who will serve on the Peer Review Team. This Committee will review the applications sent in for area sites. She said it would be preferable if there were one from western part and two from Missouri.

Committee reports:
Debbie reported the website is still undergoing groundwork, but should be up soon. The committee met with the designers and put together a front page. She explained it is a preliminary work, and any suggestions would be greatly appreciated. Once the site is up and running there will be an area for the partners where you’ll find agendas, minutes and many of the same items that are on the old site. Site will also have links to sites in phase two of project.

The Civic Engagement Committee reported the Power Point Presentation could be made available in the form of an Excel spread, as some may not have compatible computer programs for Power Point. Karen Crane reported the program could also be sent to anyone wishing to use it as a presentation in their area. The Power Point presentation could be shown to school boards, elected officials, civic groups, and target groups that have the ability to donate funds. Anyone wishing to receive a copy of the Power Point can contact Amy Garton agarton@opcvb.org. It was suggested the presentation be burned to a PDF file for easier use.

Alexis Radil reported for Building Bridges. The MO-KS Border meetings have been changed to the week after the FFNHA Partners meeting so information can be shared. There should be a good representation from the eastern portion of the heritage area.

Resources & Landscapes had nothing to report.
Don Traub reported for the Tour Committee. The committee continues to work on the Civil War brochure and are beginning to prototype maps, hope to get a map out by spring. Moving ahead with brochures.

Chris Meinhardt reported that the Underground Railroad Brochure closer to completion and will go to the printer fairly soon.

Board update. Debbie reported the advisory board is very engaged, working on updating the by-laws and looking toward raising money. Also reported that Judy Billings sent out the request for proposal (RFP) of the management plan to 20 different entities all over country. Newspaper ads will need to be place in Kansas City, Topeka and Wichita that FFNHA is seeking companies to create the Management Plan, this is required by NPS. The plan must be completed and approved by the Department of Interior before October 12th 2009.

The meeting began with a demonstration of video conferencing, distance learning, by Cary Wesemann, Network Administrator for the Cass County Public Library.

Judy Billings welcomed everyone shortly after 10:00 and introduced Michael Bouman, Executive Director of the Missouri Humanities Council. He spoke briefly about new initiatives in interpretation, the MHC Civil War Task Force, and about funding available for historic sites and organizations on the Eastern side of the Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area.

I. Welcome and Introductions
The meeting was formally called to order by Judy Billings at 10:40 a.m. Alexis Radil welcomed everyone to Cass County and Harrisonville, Missouri. This is the first meeting of the Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area Partnership Team on the Eastern side.

II. Approval of February minutes
The February minutes were approved with corrections. The Civic Engagement Committee has made the Power Point Presentation available in a PDF format rather than an Excel format. The Tour Committee noted that they had reported on the John Brown Tour that is being developed. Karen Crane and Amy Garton asked to be added to the list of attendees.

III. Financial Report
Martha Parker reported that the beginning balance for this month was $871.21. There have been deposits of $700.00 and interest paid of $.37. The ending balance for this month’s report is $1,571.58. The financial report was approved.

Judy Billings pointed out that over the course of the four years that the partnership team has been working they have had no dedicated funding source. All their funds have come through donations.

It was asked if a list of donors could be made available. Yes, the current list will be updated when the website is moved.

A question was asked regarding roughly how much money has been spent so far. Judy replied about $250,00- so far.

Are contributions to Freedom’s Frontier tax deductible? Yes via a 501-C-3 of the Kansas Tourism Alliance.
Old Business

IV. Organizational Report
Judy Billings proceeded to explain the organizational make-up of the partnership team and the Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area. This was new information for some and a refresher for others.

Judy has just returned from a meeting of the Alliance of Heritage Areas. There are now 37 heritage areas nationwide. Studies have been done of 3 of the established heritage areas, which show that success comes from networking, partnering, and communication. The heritage areas are really a network of people in partnership with one another making projects happen.

Quote: “We are one generation away from losing out identity in this country.”

This is an ongoing process. The next project will be the management plan. RFPs were sent out nationwide. The management plan is the roadmap of how we go forward. It must be approved by the Department of Interior before 10/12/2009.

Judy Billings met with members of Congress who represent the Freedom’s Frontier area. She read a letter from Ike Skelton and Nancy Boyda to the House Budget and Appropriations Committee requesting funding for the National Heritage Areas. Thank you letters for their support are requested from those members of Freedom’s Frontier represented by Skelton and Boyda. Members are also encouraged to contact their Congresspersons for similar letters of support to the Budget and Appropriations Committee.

Judy went on to clarify the structure of Freedom’s Frontier. A chair for the partnership team will need to be elected, begin thinking about who you would like to nominate. The legislation designated 29 counties in Kansas and 12 counties in Missouri. The Board of Trustees has been created for Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area and is made up of 25% from Missouri and 75% from Kansas, as written in the legislation, and 16 members will be the maximum number of members. The Board of Trustees will be responsible for staffing, budget, and most importantly raising money. The Central Office for Freedom’s Frontier will be employed by Freedom’s Frontier not the National Park Service. The by-laws are being worked on and are scheduled to be completed May 1.

The Board of Trustees will be self-appointing, as it is not a membership organization. Members of this board are comprised of people with national connections. The Board of Trustees will have fiduciary responsibility for the organization and will have regular input from the Partnership Team.
The Management Plan will determine how Freedom’s Frontier will function. This organization will remain a grassroots organization. The Partnership Team brings this process into being.

There was discussion about changing the by-laws so that the Partnership Team would appoint the Board of Trustees and the make up of the members. Judy reiterated that the Board will be self appointing and the legislation, passed in both the House of Representatives and the Senate then signed by Pres. Bush, states the make up of the Board of Trustees.

There are no Partnership dues at this time; the Management Plan will determine that. The Partnership Team will decide how Freedom’s Frontier will function, not the Board. It was noted that for every Federal $1.00, $8.00 is leveraged locally.

Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area is defined by public law. The next 2 years of dialog will define the stories and define who will participate. The Board of Trustees serves to manage the plan created by the Partnership Team.

V. Committee Reports

a. Tour: The Tour Committee currently has 10 members. They are developing a series of tours. The first tour is about John Brown. The second is about Civil War sites of the area. Future tour themes will be the Underground Railroad, Native Americans, and the Trails. The committee is looking at various media to distribute the tours for audiences from families to motor coaches. They are looking for additional volunteers. The tours and other projects related to Freedom’s Frontier do not have to wait for the approval of the Management Plan to be implemented.

b. Civic Engagement: This group is charged with telling the story of Freedom’s Frontier to those who are not part of the Partnership Team. They have put together a Power Point Presentation and a PDF. It is available on CD. They also have compiled a list of places where presentations might be made. Volunteers are welcome to look over the list and offer to make presentations.

c. Building Bridges: This committee is to foster internal and external communications. They are looking for committee members.

d. Resources and Landscapes: This committee has not met since November. Members are encouraged to get their forms in. Debbie White will let members know whose forms have been received.

e. Website: Web designers have been hired and the new homepage is scheduled to be up with the next two weeks. Pictures of Freedom’s Frontier sites are requested. A grant from the Kansas Department of Commerce for $3500 is helping to pay a portion for the website costs. There will be a Partners section for the Partnership Team with an area for events. Member sites will have links. The State of Kansas will need to be credited on the website for providing funding. Members of the Partnership Team will receive an email with the specifications necessary for photos on the website.
f. Peer Review: This committee is not up and running yet. Members are needed. They will review Visitor Readiness forms.

The Steering Committee is working by conference call to review the minutes of the previous meeting and set the agenda for the upcoming meeting. The call takes place the Wednesday the week before each monthly meeting. If you are interested in serving on this committee, please contact Judy Billings.

VI: Themes of Freedom
Sue Pridemore led the group in an exercise to begin defining the Freedom’s Frontier story. She provided handouts with draft themes and sub-themes. Using post-it notes in small group discussion, overarching themes were determined: Landscape, Territorial Kansas, Battles, Settlement, Struggle for Freedom, and Jargon. This exercise captured some of the smaller stories and how they fit together. Sue will organize them. Debbie will coordinate. The next session will continue this exercise. The goal is to determine the 3 sub-stories under the big story.

Sue Pridemore recommends the following:
- Personal Interpretation by Lisa Brochu and Tim Merriman
- Interpretation for the 21st Century 15 Guiding Principles by Larry Beck and Ted Cable
- Judging Exhibitions by Beverly Serrell
- From Knowledge to Narrative by Lisa C. Roberts
Deb White will email a list of these recommendations to the membership.

She also brought copies of an article related to the National Parks Service and their struggle to be relevant to the X-Box generation.

The next meeting will be April 12 in Lawrence, Kansas. The location is to be determined. Judy Billings recommends attending the Heritage Development Conference in Detroit, Michigan in June. Brochures are available.

Meeting adjourned at 12:40 p.m.

Meeting Notes
April 12, 2007
Lawrence Visitor Information Center
Lawrence, KS

Partnership Team welcomed by Judy Billings to the Lawrence Visitor Information Center and individual introductions were made.

There were no changes to the March minutes. Eileen Robertson moved approval, Kerry Altenbernd seconded and motion carried.

Financial Report was given by Martha Parker. Account balance is $1571.58 + .69 interest.

Cindy Barry from KTWU-TV spoke about the Kansas History Electronic Field Trip Project. The goals are to 1) provide in-service and professional development for KS educations in preparation for teaching KS History; 2) provide “live” interactive video “field trips” for students; 3) provide educational resources for teaching of KS History offered in a variety of formats and technological availabilities. Cindy went on to explain the activity profile elements: 1) Professional development for educators in the area of KS History provided through live broadcast and video streaming. This will include materials in servicing for classroom teachers planning to utilize the “field trips.” 2) 2-3 annual electronic field trips broadcast live that are significantly related to one or more of the KS History standards. 3) Materials and video presentations will be available through video streaming, DVD, etc for later use.

Judy Billings updated the group on the Board of Trustees. The Trustees are meeting on a monthly basis and continue to be chaired by Judge Tacha. They are quickly developing a strategic fundraising plan which will finance the Management Plan and future financial needs for the heritage area. The by-laws remain at the attorney’s office and are being reviewed.

Don Traub gave the Tours Committee Report. The Tour Committee has compiled information and preliminary layouts for two tours, a Civil War Military tour and a John Brown tour; 2) this information would soon be shared with the Steering Committee; 3) we are investigating various media that will help distribute our tours; and 4) we are always looking for additional members to serve on the committee.

Debbie White reported on the Website. The Partnership Team may now enter their sites events on the website by going to www.freedomsfrontier.org, click on the Partners Area, at the bottom of the home page, then under Add an Event to Our Events Calendar click on online form this will take you to the page where you can enter events. The Administrator of the site receives an email stating there has been a new event added and then will review and send to the events calendar. Debbie asked that photos continue to be mailed on a CD or emailed. Each photo will need caption/or description, signed releases from all people pictured in photo and the owner of photo. For example if I am with Mahaffie Stagecoach and an employee took the picture then you would state “Courtesy of Mahaffie Stagecoach…” The DPI needed for photos is 300, this will allow FFNHA to use on the web and in print.

Alexis Radil reviewed the Visitor Readiness Forms, using Mahaffie Stagecoach Stop as an example. The form has been greatly simplified and we are working in putting them on the website for you to fill out. The forms will establish which of the five levels of visitor readiness the site or event fall under. The levels are Full time, part-time, seasonal, point of interest and emerging. The levels do not denote importance of the story they are only being established so visitors will know when they can visit. Interpretation of site and events will be included in the management plan. Alexis also discussed the role the Peer Review Committee and how it will function. The committee will physically visit each site and make their recommendation for level of visitor readiness according to the guidelines established last year. There was an offer of anyone interested in joining the Peer Review Committee to let Alexis, Debbie or Judy know.

Sue Pridemore continued the “Themes of Freedom” discussions from the March meeting. Group received a handout “Organizing our Story,” a print-out complied from the theme exercise.

Organizing Our Story
- Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area
- Our Story
  - Our story is seamless AND interwoven BUT incomplete without every authentic contribution
  - Our story is told here and no where else because it is unique to us and us alone.
  - Our story is made up of a variety/series of perspectives and outcomes.
  - Our conversations require diversity of opinions, beliefs and perspectives if we are to be true to our story.

Sue reviewed that after the March meeting she took the post-it notes from our exercise to determine the overarching themes and broke them into three themes: 1) Freedom: Struggle / Endurance; 2) Freedom: Way of Life; and 3) Freedom: Of Believing. Within each proposed theme she then developed the sub-themes:

- Freedom: Struggle / Endurance:
  - American Indians, Euro Americans, African Americans, Military, Survival, Manifest Destiny
- Freedom: Way of Life:
  - Choice, Patterns, Passing Through, Forced, Assigned, Choice/Forced Combination
- Freedom: Of Believing:

Each sub-theme then shows specific events, situations, places and/or people.

We were then asked to review and add anything that might have been missed. Discussion followed on how the group will proceed to determine the themes to be used.

Sue’s book recommendations:
- Many Wests - Place, Culture & Regional Identity edited by David M. Wrobel, Michael C. Steiner
- The Great Plains by Walter Prescott Webb
- Nature’s Metropolis (Chicago & the Great West) by William Cronon

The next meeting will be Thursday May 10, 2007 in Highland, Doniphan County, Kansas.

Meeting Notes
Native American Heritage Museum
Highland, KS

Suzette McCord Rogers, Site Administrator of the Native American Heritage Museum in Highland, Kansas, welcomed the Partnership Team. She presented a brief history of Native Americans in the region and of the Museum site in Doniphan County. Pete Duncan, Doniphan County Historical Society President, briefly outlined historically significant events of the county. Reuben Iron Horse Kent, an Iowa Tribe member and staff member of the Museum played several Native American flutes, one of which he had made.

Judy Billings reiterated that Kansas and Missouri are merging interests in this endeavor and that all the counties in this area are connected. All the volunteers present introduced themselves.

There were no changes to the April minutes. Eileen Robertson moved approval and Kerry Altenbernd seconded and motion carried.

Treasurer, Martha Parker, was not present. Judy Billings reported that the account balance was around $1500.00. Judy had added $100.00 that she had been given for speaking to the MO Department of Natural Resources Annual Meeting of Historic Site Curators.

Judy Billings updated the group on the by-laws. The attorney’s office is reviewing the by-laws and they will soon be available for review. Judy, brought with her, and encouraged anyone interested to peruse the copy of the by-laws in their current state. Once approved by the Board of Trustees she will email a copy of the by-laws and the list of Trustees.

Judy Billings reported that the group has four good RFP management plan proposals. The committee members (Paul Bahnmaier, Eileen Robertson, Carol Bohl, Jody Craig, Judy Billings, Debbie White, Deb Barker and Lori Simms) have copies of the proposals. The team will meet and narrow the choices to two, at which time interviews will be held. The four groups that submitted proposals are:
- John Milner
- National Geographic Center for Sustainable Destination
- GouldEvans Architects
- Shapin Associates

Each has their own strengths, and all have experience with the National Park Service.

Committee Reports
Tours – Don Traub
Team continues to work on the John Brown tour and the Pre-Civil War/Civil War tour. Future project may include Historic trails and Territorial Capitols. Anyone interested is invited to join the committee. It was announced that Kansas Humanities Council is developing iTours that will focus on the settlement of the Freedom’s Frontier area through first person diaries.
Website - Debbie White
Debbie continues to work with Steve, web designer, on the site. Visitor readiness form will soon be on-line, until it is please sent information to Debbie’s home address: deb.mcwhite@sbcglobal.net - deadline for submission is May 31. To-date we have received 14 forms. It was asked whether emerging sites (some of which may be on private property) are eligible to our list of sites. Debbie replied you should first have the owner’s permission, but to go ahead and fill out the visitor readiness information and note site is on private property, that way we will already have the information. Once form is live on the website forms must be submitted electronically. Some members stated they were having trouble filling the forms out electronically. Debbie will look into this problem and assured the group that once the form was on the website it will be easier. The address is www.freedomsfortier.org. Continue to submit events electronically using the form on the website (go to the bottom of the homepage and click on “Partners”) If you have questions feel free to call Debbie at 785.865.4499. Some voiced concern with getting the website to come up. Debbie would appreciate help from anyone with expertise in this area.

Each year students submit essays for Kansas Day. This year’s theme was “Hopeful for Liberty.” FFFNHA funded the $50 prize for the winning essay dealing with a Freedom's Frontier focus. Missouri has a similar event at the Truman Library, Terry Ramsey will check into helping to sponsor it also.

Sue Pridemore will attend the June meeting and we will continue the discussion on themes.

Currently Jamestown’s 400th anniversary is in the news. Check out www.virtualjamestown.org. Similar publicity is what we can expect for the Civil War Sesquicentennial in 2001. One project is already under way, a Civil War GIS Project. The National Park Service has chosen FFNHA as the proto-type for their Civil War GIS project. Judy and Debbie were part of a conference call with NPS to get the project started. The NPS will need specific information and the Visitor Readiness Form has been adapted to capture this for the GIS Project.

- What specific event in history does this site relate to?
- Historic Event Beginning Date and Ending Date.
- What Important person or group was involved at this site or event in history?
- Historic pictures of site and current day picture of site.

Mid-America Regional Council has GIS savvy personnel on staff that can assist in understanding the language. We will be able to add to and modify the GIS information as time goes on. Currently we have a list of 48 Kansas sites and we are working to obtain Missouri sites within the heritage area.

To help tell the stories the National Park Service is particularly interested in:

- Any New England connections
- State regiments that went elsewhere
- What the individual soldiers did during and after the war

The Park Service will have the final say on sites that will be included.

Announcements
It was announced that funding for NPS program “Network to Freedom” has been funded. Network to Freedom deals with the Underground Railroad. The Iowa Historical Society is interested in connecting all states that have a part in the John Brown story. They are extending the opportunity to FFNHA to join in this project and we will let them know we are interested.

Rebecca Phipps stated there are two grants that she would like for us to keep in mind for the future. Save Our History - schools and Save American Treasures – significant collections. They both require collaboration but are available each year.
Debbie stated that we are putting together a basket of items to be auctioned at IHDC Conference, contributions are welcomed and the basket must be mailed tomorrow (May 11),

June 14, 2007 Meeting Minutes:

I. Judy Billings & Staff at Ft. Scott welcomed us.
II. One correction to May Minutes, Discussion of including MO History Day. Minutes approved as corrected.
III. Martha Parker absent from meeting. Judy gave Treasurer’s report. Balance: $1623.58. Donations can be sent to FFFNHA at PO Box 586 Lawrence KS 66044.
IV. Judy reported on the organization and enlisted Alexis and others to report on the Management Plan Interview.
   a. Judy reported the Board of Trustees bylaws have been approved and adopted. In discussion with lawyer it was determined that the best course of action regarding the name was to retain TKHA name on the 501(c)3 because changing to FFFNHA would require a new application and will cost more money/time. The group will continue to do business under FFFNHA. One MO board member has resigned for personal reasons and the group is looking for suggestions for a replacement. Governors of both MO and KS have been asked to be honorary co-chairs for the Board of Directors. Gov Sebelius has agreed. No word from Gov Blunt as of yet. Group requests that MO parties contact Gov Blunt and encourage him to accept. Copies of the informational package that the board will be using to raise money were distributed. This package included a brief budget for the next two years to describe operating expenses and costs associated with the management plan. Line item in budget was noted as incorrect.
   b. Four good proposals were received. Two of the four teams submitting were selected for interviews: Gould Evans and National Geographic. The Gould Evans team will interview June 26th. The National Geographic team interviewed on ???. The Nat Geo team has never done a plan. The bid is time and materials with scope of work to be developed. The Nat Geo team demonstrated their video conferencing skills. The interviewers relayed a pretty positive feeling about the Nat Geo team. Judy reported that the process is about one month behind in meeting their goals, but hopes to be able to make a decision after the next interview and make a recommendation to the board June 26th. The next step would be developing the scope of work in Aug/Sep and having a kickoff meeting. The management plan should be finalized in Dec 2008.
Committee Reports

c. Don Traub reported that the pre-war/civil war tour is nearly complete and will be shared with the membership in the near future. The John Brown tour needs to be finalized with important mileage information before it will be presented to the membership. The next tour they will tackle will be Native American.

d. Debbie White encouraged everyone to put their FFNHA related events on the website calendar, stressing that even if it is the day before it gets it on the Calendar for the next incarnation. The feasibility study for the HA is posted now. Agendas and meeting minutes will be coming soon. Submissions for partnership sites should be made through the website. The first phase of applications is closed and included 143 applicants. A PDF of all the applicants will be mailed out.

e. Alexis announced that the Building Bridges committee is being disbanded. Members are encouraged to move into the Civic Engagement committee or Resources. Civic Engagement is seeking a new chair. Judy encouraged all members to continue to contact their state and federal legislators to thank them for their support and remind them that more work needs to be done. Eileen’s e-mail to Rep Boyda was read as an example of an effective manner in which this could be done. Currently there is a HB that could provide $20 million for heritage areas, encourage support.

V. FFNHA has been chosen for a prototype NPS project to team with heritage areas to develop more GIS mapping. The current project is in support of the Civil War commemoration activities NPS is conducting. Carol McCoy from the City of Olathe then gave a 10 minute presentation on what GIS mapping is and what a powerful tool it can be in organizing, sorting and illustrating information. Maps can tell stories, and GIS can make that a more interactive experience and make it more updateable. The largest cost associated with GIS is in the information gathering and input.

VI. As Sue Pridemore was unable to attend the meeting the continued discussion of themes was suspended and instead Judy discussed making connections to the FFNHA themes by using examples. Judy discussed how most communities have something that connects to others, but the connection is not flushed out and used the Quantrail’s Raid tour in Lawrence as an example. It has many connections outside Lawrence, but they are not evident when a visitor looks at the brochure. Then Judy had Eileen explain how she went about building bridges from her home community of Humboldt through the themes and told of how the recent re-naming of South Park in Humboldt to Camp Hunter Park helps re-connect the site to the civil war theme in FFNHA. Eileen handed out a wonderful step by step paper on how she went about doing this, and the many avenues through which others might start to learn to build the same sorts of connections. During this discussion, a question arose about how a site or tour might go about associating with FFNHA even though there is no formal framework.

VII. Terry Ramsey gave a list of books that are recently out or recently in re-print that relate to the history that FFNHA highlights.

VIII. Workshops and conferences were highlighted.

Partnership Meeting
Beecher Bible and Rifle Church
Wabaunsee, KS
July 12, 2007

Judy Billings opened the meeting.

Michael Stubbs welcomed the group to Wabaunsee and gave an overview of the area. He related many of the unique points of interest, including how special cases on the Underground Railroad (UGRR) often came through here. The Last Train, a diary of the UGRR experience is expected to be printed next year.

Judy Billings reported that the National Park Service (NPS) is using Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area (FFNHA) as a prototype for GIS mapping on a new Web site.

Judy presented the financial report for Martha Parker. The ending bank balance was $1,524.26. The group expended $100.00 to the Kansas Secretary of State for annual registration.

Judy Billings introduced Clark Balderson of Wamego, who serves on the Board of Trustees. He wanted the group to understand what the board is trying to accomplish. They must raise a minimum of $300,000 to facilitate a management plan and get it approved by National Park Service and the Secretary of Interior. He explained his interest by saying that both sides of his family can trace their history in the region back to the 1800s and that his family still lives in the area. He feels the heritage area can help keep people connected to the stories of the region. It can also help preserve rural areas by bringing in low impact tourism dollars.

The board is still looking to add members from Missouri.

Judy Billings reminded the group that the board meetings are open to the public. The board meets 3pm on the third Tuesday of each month at the Eldridge Hotel in Lawrence.

There were extra copies for the group of the information packets that board members have been using to explain the heritage area. Electronic copies will be sent out.

The board will meet next on Tuesday, July 17.
Judy Billings announced the selection of the National Geographic Center for Sustainable Destinations to facilitate the management plan. To learn more about this group, visit their Web site at http://www.nationalgeographic.com/travel/sustainable/

The Kansas Travel and Tourism Department has awarded the FFHNA $75,000 to begin the process of the management plan. The Mid-America Regional Council (MARC) has committed $25,000.

The National Park Service (NPS) has awarded FFHNA $18,000 to pay for travel to meetings to develop the plan.

The National Geographic group has some questions that they need the partnership group to address. Judy is working to facilitate the answers, including:

- Does FFHNA have a good list of contacts?

  Judy reported that there are people following the progress of the partnership group through the minutes. FFHNA has a good database of contacts.

- They need information on where the funding will come from; there are parameters on what money they can accept.

- Can FFHNA help to develop a “collision calendar,” which is a list of dates of events and other possible conflicts to holding public meetings?

  FFHNA will use database to query the partnership about conflicting dates.

- What information will the partnership group collect as opposed to management plan team?

The partnership group is continuing to develop a scope of work. The Board of Trustees will sign the contract.

The minimum cost will be $300,000, but the price will not be final until the scope of work is finalized.

Theme discussion

Sue Pridemore continued the discussion of themes.

Sue reminded the group that it is important to see her as a catalyst for discussion. She may say things just to get a reaction from the group. She wants to cause people to think about issues.

Before beginning the discussion, Sue had the following “public announcements:”
Cornell University printed two documents from the 1800s, Two Tracts for the Times, www.library.cornell.edu that feature the pros and cons of slavery. The first by BF Stringfellow of Missouri is titled, Negro Slavery, No Evil. The second by D.R. Goodlow of North Carolina is titled, Is it Expedient to Introduce Slavery into Kansas?

National Park Service has created a document for new citizens, National Park Owners Manual for New Citizens of the USA. There will be a new brochure on heritage areas coming out.

The group should keep spreading the word and pass the emails along to others. There will be lots of dialog in the next two- to three years about what is important for this region.

Competition still open to submit photos to National Landmark Calendar, www.cr.nps.gov/nhl

Some books in Big Read have significance to the story. www.nea.bigread.org/books.php

Clippings of Interests:
- Symphony of the Flint Hills
- Handout of IMLS grant and award opportunities

How does each story fit into the overall picture?

Dialog begins with definition of freedom

Bleeding Kansas was one of the best media manipulations of the time. Many others were bleeding, but Bleeding Kansas painted a picture.

Sue quoted Carol Bohl, who asked the question, “why do we still have a border rather than a state boundary?”

The group must try to get to three sub themes that fit within the definition of freedom.

Alexis Radil asked how to focus discussion (and put personal soapboxes aside) into concrete themes so that it can all be tied together.

The question won’t be answered in one session; does each topic help tell the story?

Many expressed that this process is hard work. The management team will compile the work, but the group has to decide on the plan.

The story is an ecosystem. The themes will define every other decision.

NPS is developing a Web site for the Sesquicentennial of the Civil War. The deadline for placing content on the site will be the end of August.

Sue presented her “Book of the Month” selections:
o Daughter of Earth, by Agnes Smedley, is one disenfranchised individual’s story.

o Does the Frontier Experience Make America Exceptional? by Richard W. Etulian.

o Cathy Williams, From Slave to Female Buffalo Solder, by Phillip Thomas Tucker

Sue passed out a press release about a tour of reconciliation taking place in Cass County. The tour will take in sites of past conflict from the time of the Border Wars and pray at each site.

The group needs to think about pre- and post Civil War connections. Dale Nimz suggested that the group use the word experience to describe the places within the story.

If themes are abstract (philosophy), how do you make them real for visitors?

Julie Mulvihill suggested that the group needs more time to talk about these concepts. Judy Billings asked about having longer meetings.

Ann Crume from Lexington invited all to attend the August meeting in Lexington. Congressman Ike Skelton will attend. The meeting will be at the Wentworth Academy, and can hold 125-150.

The September meeting will be held at the Mid-America Regional Council in Kansas City.

Sue pointed out the literature and performing arts are also important to this story and need to be enhanced. She talked about many of the other ideas and philosophies that came from the region, such as the little Blue Books.

Two news releases were distributed. One announced that the Missouri and Kansas governors agreed to be honorary co-chairs of the Board of Trustees. The other announced the selection of the National Geographic team to conduct the management plan.

Report on International Heritage Development Conference, IHDC

Alexis Radil talked about IHDC held in Detroit. She feels that FFNHA is a trailblazer in comparison with other heritage areas. FFHNA is much more grass roots; it is not top down as other areas are. Alexis attended workshops on various topics. One, “Telling Stories of Conflict” suggests telling visitors HOW to think, not WHAT to think.

Board member David Dunfield, Judy Billings and Debbie White also attended the conference.
Committee Reports
Debbie White reported on the Peer Review Committee. Any site that is located within the boundaries of the heritage area that wants to be included must submit a written affidavit stating their interest and intent to be involved in the heritage area. A private property owner may submit a letter stating that they do not wish to be part of the heritage area, this is not necessary but may make them feel better about assuring their position.

Sue reiterated that property rights are vitally important. Property owners can not be pressured into participation. She stressed to all the partners they must understand, participation is voluntary.

Announcements
Judy has Civil War on the Western Frontier brochures. This is the 12th year of the event held in Lawrence August 9 – 21.

Paul Bahnmaier reminded the group to participate in the online voting for Lecompton as one of the Wonders of Kansas.

Michael Stubbs detailed several landmarks in the area of note for the group to take in as they traveled to lunch or left the area.

After lunch Dale will talk about development of Alma.

Judy Billings welcomed everyone to the Partnership Meeting. Then she introduced the dignitaries attending the meeting: Captain Read, President and Superintendent of Wentworth Military Academy; Col. Lierman, Exec. Vice President; Tom Hayes, Lexington, Missouri Mayor; Don Borgman, Lexington City Administrator and Exec. Director Economic Development Lafayette County.

Partnership team then introduced themselves and it was noted that almost all 41 counties were represented. Judy Billings recounted the background of FFNHA then introduced Karen McCarthy, FFNHA Board of Trustees and former U.S. Rep. fifth district of Missouri from 1995 – 2004 and Judge Deanell Tacha, Chair of FFNHA Board of Trustees.

Deanell Tacha spoke to the group about how the FFNHA Board of Trustees will work closely with the Partners and one of the Boards roles is to be an advocate for the Partners. They are very grateful to the Partners for the work of beginning to connect the stories and telling them with integrity. Deanell assured the partners the Board will not tell you how to run your individual sites. One of the responsibilities of the Board is to raise money, first for the Management Plan, office and staff. The board is organizing and building a structure and base to make FFNHA work possible and to work in cooperation with the Partners and future staff. It was announced the Missouri Gov. Matt Blunt and Kansas Gov. Kathleen Sebelius have agreed to be Honorary Co-Chairs for Freedom’s Frontier. Deanell praised Judy Billings for all her hard work and dedication to FFNHA. Deanell noted that because of her position as a Judge she cannot raise money but will continue to advocate for the area.

John Dillingham, Vice Chair of FFNHA Board of Trustees introduced Congressman Ike Skelton saying, Con. Skelton has had many titles historian, prosecutor, Phi Beta Kappa, Senator, Mr. Chairman and Congressman for Missouri’s 4th District since 1977.

Con. Skelton thanked Dillingham for the introduction and welcomed everyone to Lexington. Con. Skelton grew up in Lexington and is a graduate from Wentworth Military Academy. He has a passion for history and considers it to be a hobby. Because of his knowledge of the area’s history he joked that it is a miracle that both Missourians and Kansans are peacefully in the same room, at least so far.
Con. Skelton asked “What makes America great?” If Russia had had a John Adams, George Washington, or a Thomas Jefferson then they would have been as great as America.

His son was an Eagle Scout and on a trip to Gettysburg stopped at site of Pickett’s Charge and stated who cares. Expressed that we need to understand the feelings of those people and their dedication to a cause.

Con. Skelton talked about the 1782 attack on Bryan Station, KY by the Shawnee Indians and how it was fortunate that Daniel Boone’s nephew, Squire Boone, survived the ambush. Squire eventually settled in Missouri. Con. Skelton stated he is grateful Squire survived as this is the lineage from which he is descended.

American is made up of many different kinds of people…………..

Midwest roots…………………

Con. Skelton went on to congratulate the FFNHA Partners for their efforts and thanked the group for inviting him to attend.

The floor was opened to questions to the attending Board members.

• Ellery Robertson stated his frustration with schools today only teaching for the test and not the history.
  Deanell Tacha responded and assured everyone that one of the elements of FFNHA will be to engage school districts and assist them by providing materials, tours through cooperation with the Missouri and Kansas Departments of Education and both states Humanities Councils.

• The Richard Sunderwirth asked Deanell Tacha if he heard her say ”We are only one generation away from losing the historical stories. She replied that was what she said and that we rectify that by drawing together to tell a unified story, draw together to preserve the stories and leave a legacy for generations to come.

Dillingham added that he grew up going to Gettysburg, Mount Vernon, and Monticello. It is up to us to promote the area, so we don’t lose the stories, by educating our local/area children, Economic Development, bringing visitors to the area. He stated that this is a passion of Congressman Skelton. And thanked Marci Bennett for her work in Tourism for the State of Missouri.

• Deanell also added that we must work in the spirit of trust, by being advocates for each other and to improve and connect our sites.

Group took a 15 minute break.

Upon return Judy Billings began by acknowledging the role Con. Skelton played in FFNHA’s designation and that we could not have done it without him. She went on to say that the Management Plan will cost approximately $300,000 and it is the responsibility of the Board of Trustees to raise the money.

Judy informed the group about a two-day conference she attended earlier in the week that involved all 10 new National Heritage Areas, learning about how to structure their Management Plans. Cheryl Hargrove and Jeffery Bruce also attended the conference; they represent National Geographic Center for Sustainable Destinations, who were hired to create FFNHA’s Management Plan. The mgmt. plan is a public process and all will have a say. They are looking a January 2008 as the 1st public meeting date. Time and place will be announced at a later date.

Our November meeting will include all partners and the Board of Trustees.

Business meeting began by acceptance of the July minutes, moved by Eileen Robertson and seconded by Michael Stubbs.

Financial Report – Martha Parker was not in attendance and Judy reported it remained unchanged from June. Kansas Tourism awarded a grant of $75,000 to FFNHA with a 60/40 match and MARC is working on making a donation.

Committee Report:
Tours – Don Traub reported that the committee meets the last Wednesday of the month, and everyone is invited to join them. Currently working on John Brown tour, which is in the can, Civil War tour is a large project and is on going. Next tours will include Native Americans, and Territorial Capitol in Kansas.

Website – Debbie White reported that we are continuing to update the site and reminded everyone to enter their events on the site.

Peer Review – Debbie White reported that the committee will visit and review all the sites in Lafayette County after the meeting today. Members include Keyta Kelly, Alinda Miller, Alexis Radil, Eileen Robertson, Brandi Brinegar and Debbie White. We will continue reviews sites of the 150 in phase one. But if you have not submitted your site please do so, on the web site, www.freedomsfrontier.org/partners.

Also noted was the need for all private property owners that want to have their site included in FFNHA must sign an Opt In/Out letter, copies available today and will soon be on the website. It is vitally important that any site on private property must have the signed document on file. There has been one complaint and it stirred up a hornets nest, the story is important but that does not take away the importance of personal property rights.

J.C. Tellefson, LV County Commissioner, stated they we need to consider contacting our local planning & zoning regarding the impact a rural site might have roads.

As stated in our legislation SEC. 6. PRIVATE PROPERTY PROTECTION. (a) Access to Private Property- Nothing in this Act shall be construed to require any private property owner to permit public access (including Federal, State, or local government access) to such private property.    (2) LANDOWNER WITHDRAWAL- Any owner of private property included within the boundary of the Heritage Area shall have their property immediately removed from the boundary by submitting a written request to the management entity.

Julie Mulvihill, Executive Director of the Kansas Humanities Council, spoke about the need to keep both maps to raise and expand perspective. Last month’s hand-out defining freedom and the story.
Defining freedom – equality, choices, standing up for beliefs
Concept of freedom’s frontier – it’s your story
Interpretive and marketing hook
No right or wrong
Did it fit? Does it work?
Carmaletta Williams will speak on “Free did not mean Welcome” at next month’s meeting.
Sue Pridemore said this is an example of how you can do it…how to organize, don’t get locked into 3 central words/phrase.
Julie said it’s like writing a novel: know your setting, main characters, and minor characters, stir the pot and then there is something that moves through and engages the reader. Overarching theme of that human experience.

Future meeting:
September MARC (new location will need to be selected – MARC will host at a later date.

Break for lunch

Julie Mulvihill introduced Fred Krebs a humanities professor at Johnson County Community College in Overland Park, portrays Stephen A. Douglas, the U. S. senator who authored the Kansas-Nebraska Act of 1854. Krebs has presented characterizations of historical figures including explorer John C. Fremont and artist William Merritt Chase in 18 states.

Fred Krebs began the workshop by speaking about defining Freedom.

We are in the process of continually working out definitions. Historians fit data into definitions….this is never complete.

FFNHA partners need to continually ask themselves “How do my events add in to the definitions and/or interaction of freedom & frontier.

These are the driving forces behind American History…freedom.

Freedom was a process of will, conquest & force usually benefiting only a few. It was a process of self governing---liberty, assertion of will only within limits of the law.
Frontier was a threat fortified through expansion & conquest.

Freedom was established on settlement not through conquest.

Freedom & frontier were two driving forces in US history.

Freedom = sovereignty
Frontier = process to reach it

Expansion, enterprise guided by education in the concept of government by consent. The responsibilities of liberty…governed by reason, by law codified land (property), law & liberty.

Definitional trips:
1) Lewis & Clark
2) Zebulon Pike

1821 – MO Compromise – a way of protecting compromise in the US Senate. Wm Bicknell, Boonville, sent mule trains through the territory to the emerging Republic of Mexico…Santa Fe Trail.

Free enterprise began the development of Missouri.
Santa Fe Trail developed the enterprise of Missouri.

Expanding definition of freedom:
Self sufficiency
Education
Laws

Native American attacks on Santa Fe Trail….no settlement allowed in Indian land.
Treaties allowed for settlement.

1850 – 15 slave states, 15 free
*California wanted in the Union
*Henry Clay & Stephen Douglas (Chm, committee on territories) authored KS-Nebraska Act of 1854. Privately, Douglas never thought slavery would be voted out. He thought slavery was an economic issue.
Lincoln believed slavery was a moral issue.

We are a product of an ongoing dialogue over issues of freedom & how it played out on the frontier.

We operate under “forms of law.”

We depend on public education to put it all in perspective.
QUESTION:
Frontier - # of people went through here….trails & railroads.

RESPONSE:
Homestead Act of 1862
Transportation Act of 1862
Memorial Act of 1862
(Set up land-grant educational institutions)

QUESTION:
What about the “philosophical” frontier?

RESPONSE:
5 “e’s” set up a democratic republic
Expansion (land redefined)
Enterprise/economy
Education
Equality
Ethics

Education – survey systems (36 sq miles/township) = land grant colleges

THESE WERE AMONG A NUMBER OF DEFINITIONS THAT CONVERGED ON THE FRONTIER.

QUESTION (in my group):
Freedom’s Frontier – What specifically can we claim?
What’s the promise of Freedom’s Frontier?
The name should define the promise.

Fred – Conflict is a key element that creates a strength & discipline in understanding freedom, equality, liberty in the way they address it.

There is a search for understanding and defining freedom.

Fred: “3 e’s lead to a greater consequence of equality = Expansion, Enterprise/economy, Education.

Frontiers represented opportunity – 2nd & 3rd chances

Freedom = Liberty, governed by reason

Perfect society vs. freedom = conflict

Liberty = civilized freedom for all…based on law, equality & common good of all community. (Rampant freedom brings about chaos!)
Landscape changes affected freedoms.

Questions – statements from the floor:
JRM seeing frontier as a place where new ideas are formulated & tested, old ideas meet new, hope vs. fear/threat. Chance to make things better and an opportunity for utopia.

Eileen Robertson - Philosophical frontier: child labor laws, miner’s rights, women’s rights, and desegregated education.

Fred 3 E’s Expansion, Enterprise (economy) Education
Freedom from want, freedom from fear, freedom of religion.

Partners broke into small groups to continue the discussion of Freedom and Frontier.

Groups report on discussion
1) This is the frontier of freedom: what is unique and authentic.
   Fred responded – results here go into 2 generations, testing definition, Note the Latter Day Saints experience.
2) What do Kansas & Missouri have in common
3) Need to see the big picture, constantly developing
4) What happened…both sides felt justified in the 1850’s. Tell your story but don’t talk about who’s right or wrong. Make the visitor think.
5) More than one perspective. Make to think today, help visitor think, let them decide.
6) Federal intervention & meddling needs to be remembered.
   Fred responded – how search for understanding defined freedom. How are people finding their way to understand freedom, emphasis on the contribution. Focus on community not just tourism, embrace what you already have.
7) Mission drift – get our arms around the concept of the 3E’s how our sites makes the rest possible. Revisit the core occurrences, don’t judge, just give the facts. How do we get those within and without to get it…frustration. Need core concepts
9) Lofty concepts & philosophy will govern most people site by site. KISS – Keep it simple stupid. Backbone, interesting, educational, entertaining, relevant
10) 3E’s look at sites
12) Landscapes and changes…needs of the many outweigh the needs of the few.
13) Focus on quality; conflict brings change, ethics, and focus on themes development.

Judy Billings wrapped up the discussion stating we need to focus on community, how we live in the landscape and effects. Living, breathing, changing landscape. Look to what we should promise the visitors – a quality experience.

Meeting adjourned.

Meeting called to order by Judy Billings. Attendees introduced themselves. Judy asked for a change in the agenda to allow the speaker Carmaletta Williams to speak first, this was accepted by attendees.

Julie Mulvihill introduced Carmaletta Williams. Carmaletta M. Williams is a professor of English at Johnson County Community College, and the college’s 2006 Distinguished Service Award recipient. She received her Ph.D. in English from the University of Kansas and an M.A. in English from the University of Missouri. She specializes in African American literature and has served as a guest speaker on the African American experience at churches, colleges, and other groups in the Kansas City area, the State of Kansas, nationally, and internationally.

Williams spoke on “Free Did Not Mean Welcome.” Millions of African Americans walked away from the South after Emancipation looking for freedom. For some it meant a journey to Kansas, a “free state.” Discover how many realized that for Black people in Kansas “Free” did not necessarily mean “Welcome.”

Carmaletta took questions from the partners and discussion.

Break for lunch.

Business meeting began after lunch.

July minutes were approved with corrections.

Martha Parker gave the financial report, stating the current balance of the checking account is $1,525.60.

Committee Reports
Tours – Arnold Scholfield reported that the group is wrapping up the John Brown and Civil War tours. They have also begun work on Ready Made Tours throughout the area along major roads, these include: 1-70, 71 Hwy, 69 Hwy.

Alexis Radil talked about the National Tour Association Conference which will be held in KC, MO November 1-7, 2007. She will be representing Mahaffie Stagecoach Stop and requested a calendar of events be created for FFNHA so it could be distributed to operators during the convention. It was discussed that sites should put there event information on the www.freedomsfrontier.org website and a calendar could be pulled from that information.

John Nichols reported on GPS/GIS. John talked about the potential uses of GIS (Geographical Information System) for historical and archaeological mapping and data analyzing. He also described the uses of GPS (Global Positioning System) units for locating sites to make them more readily available for visitors.

Peer Review – Debbie White reported that the team, Alinda Miller, Keyta Kelly, Eileen Robertson, Brandi Brinegar, Alexis Radil and herself, have reviewed sites in eight counties thus far. Reviewed sites will be contacted before the October meeting with the results of the visits. White reminded the group about the opt-in/opt-out forms that FFNHA must have to include any private property within the area.

Website – Debbie White reported that in the future minutes and agendas will be available on the website and no longer attached in the monthly meeting notification. Also working on improving the current website to be 1) more user friendly, 2) improved events calendar, and 3) adding site information. Reminded partners to continue to add events, visitor readiness forms, and submit hi-res photos on CD that should include people, buildings and landscapes.

Management Plan - Billings reported that the Scope of Work and Contract for facilitation of the Management Plan is in process with a goal of having the Board of Trustees approve it at their October meeting. Public meetings are scheduled to begin after the first of the year. The Board is currently raising money to help pay for the planning process.

Partnership Meeting Notes
November 15, 2007
Fort Leavenworth, Eisenhower Hall, DePuy Auditorium
Fort Leavenworth, Kansas

Judy Billings welcomed everyone to the meeting and announced this as a special day. Today is the orientation for the time-line and details for public input concerning Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area Management Plan. She expressed special thanks to the Fort Leavenworth Personnel for the arrangements and then introduced Judge Deanell Tacha, Chair Board of Trustees, who has been involved in this project since the beginning.

Judge Tacha began by stating; “Today, I see the start of an extraordinary opportunity.” She introduced Lieutenant General Robert Arter, U.S. Army Retired and Civilian Aide to the Secretary of the Army for the State of Kansas. Lt. Gen. Arter welcomed everyone on behalf of the Commander. He then gave a brief history of Fort Leavenworth. The Fort is the oldest active military installation west of the Mississippi.

Judge Tacha thanked Lt. Gen. Arter for his information and for his service on the FFNHA Board of Trustees. She requested suggestions from everyone to fill the two vacant Missouri seats on the Board of Trustees. She stated how important it is for the Board of Trustees and the Partners to know each other to attain a common ground. Judge Tacha then requested the Board Members introduce themselves and include some personal information.

Lieutenant General Robert Arter was an Infantry Officer, Deputy Commander and attended General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth. After retirement he and his wife choose to return to the Fort Leavenworth area to live.

John Dillingham is a Missouri representative on the Board of Trustees. He referred to the “Border War” KU vs. MU upcoming football game and stated that it is important that we do our job here, since no other area has the history of controversy. He stated that we need to tell this story to preserve it for the next wave of evolution of America.

Karen McCarthy a Kansas representative, taught school in Shawnee Mission, moved to Westport, served in the Missouri Legislature for 18 years. She has returned to teaching and is interested in preserving the history of this area.

Emmanuel Northern from Kansas City, KS and associated with the Vernon Center and the historic site of Quindaro, and worked for the Santa Fe Railroad for 36 years. His interest stems from the stories of his Grandfather, who went to Canada, came back into the U. S. in Maine, made his way to Missouri. He came to a bend in the Missouri River and felt if he made it across (to Kansas) “He would be Okay!”.

Ed Rolf from Junction City, Kansas was born and raised there. He knows a lot happened on the western edge of the territory and wants to make sure those stories are told.

Ellie McCoy is from Wichita, Kansas and she loves Kansas. She has served on several Kansas State Commissions.

Charles Jones is the Directory of Kansas University Public Management Center and thinks about the issues and values of this area that need to be discussed.

David Dunfield from Lawrence, Kansas has served with Judy Billings from the beginning of this effort. He is looking forward to this next step and hopes to erase the “Border”.

Charles Clark from Prairie Village, Kansas is a retired business manager who has also lived in Missouri. He is very interested in the history of both states and is looking forward to raising money for this endeavor.

Judge Tacha described Judy Billings as the mainstay for Freedom’s Frontier. In the past month she has moved her office and set up Destination Management Inc which will oversee the heritage area.

Each of the partners then introduced themselves and gave the organization they represented.

Judge Tacha continued by explaining that we need every county commissioner and city administer to know about FFNHA and become involved. These powerful stories about freedom, with all the conflict of many kinds of people who came together for many reasons, must be told and preserved for future generations. She explained, this is not about sides, mine or yours, we must join together to tell the story, leaving aside our turf and see ourselves as being a part of the whole. The National Park Service no longer creates new National Parks due to the expense. Our grass roots effort by joining together to tell the stories, we are this century’s way to expand the National Park Service and tell our story to the nation. With this vision in mind, what will we look like in a decade?

All the places must be connected, not just chronologically, but through the relationship of the stories. People traveling will have maps, virtual tours, IMAX presentations and more. No matter where in the area they go through a gateway, they will hear the stories. The United States has decided to preserve their important stories and we are one! We are literally one generation away from losing these stories. We must tell the stories with integrity with each piece of the story contributing to the whole. We have for too long viewed this as two sides. We need every county commission, every state legislator and city official to know what we are doing. The Management Plan must be approved by 2009. We can make a real difference economically in our area. This area can be a magnet for our children and grandchildren who don’t know the stories. Judge Tacha requested the partners to join with the Board of Trustees to bring this together. She said, “We (the board) won’t tell you how to tell your stories, but we will make sure they are told with integrity.” She thanked everyone for all they are doing.

Billings introduced Cheryl Hargrove, who will be the Project Coordinator. Hargrove gave a brief overview of the next steps. This is the beginning the process of the Management Plan which will be the guide for FFNHA for the next 10 to 20 years. The plan must be created by the partners and be customized so that people know when they hear FFNHA what this area is about. She followed with the attached presentation.

All attending were requested to submit:
1. How would you like to participate in the planning process during the next year?
2. What would you like to see 10 years from now concerning FFNHA?
3. What do you want answered during this year’s planning process or articulated in the management plan?

After lunch, General Arter introduced Colonel Thomas Weafer, Assistant Deputy Commandant, U.S. Army Command and General Staff College. Colonel Weafer gave presentation about Fort Leavenworth including the history and present status. He addressed the part the Fort has in FFNHA and invited all present to tour the facility.

Billings discussed the importance of the December meeting as the group will continue to develop the Management Plan and thanked everyone for participating. The meeting was adjourned.

Meeting Context:

Kick-off Meeting for FFNHA Management Plan with Consultant Team

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results:

Introduce consultant team to FFNHA Partnership Team, review management plan development process

Meeting Notes:

The Chair of the FFNHA Trustees, Judge Deanell Tacha and Judy Billings opened the meeting by talking about the importance of the management planning process over the next year. The consultant team was introduced to the Partnership Team, and team leader Cheryl Hargrove presented a PowerPoint with an overview of the required elements of the management plan. All attendees received a management planning notebook which included a preliminary glossary of terms, the legislation to create Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area and the scope of services for the management plan. Each of the team members introduced themselves and talked about the specific element of the plan that they will be responsible for.

In the afternoon, the Partnership Team divided up into working committees including Interpretation and Education (with consultant Amy Webb), Heritage Development (with consultant Christy David), Civic Engagement (with consultant Frank Martin), Tourism & Marketing (with consultant Cheryl Hargrove), and Resource Management (with consultant Richard Yates and David Stokes). Each committee reviewed the scope of work for their portion of the management plan, identified terms to be added to the glossary of terms, and then had a discussion based on specific questions provided for each group.

Notes from each of the five breakout groups follow:

1) Interpretation/Education

Grady Atwater (KS) and Janae Fuller (MO) were chosen as co-chairs for the Interpretation and Education Committee.

A. Interpretation

1. Will standards be created, presented, accepted?

   Yes. FFNHA has already done some preliminary work in this area through the visitor readiness survey which includes 5 tiers or categories of sites to address “visitor readiness.” This will be used as a starting point for discussion. In discussing standards, potential questions to be considered include:
2. Will we share current brochures and written historical information?
Yes. Sharing information is a key component of this planning process. We have already begun to compile brochures from the counties in the region and we will be gathering other resources as well, including historical information, existing interpretive plans and curriculum materials.

3. What are the important stories that will be emphasized?
This will be one of the key charges for this committee as part of defining the core theme, sub-themes and storylines for the region. To do this, we will be building from the FFNHA themes in the 2004 feasibility study that was submitted to secure NHA designation and expanding those themes to reflect the additional Missouri counties which have been subsequently added to the heritage area.

4. How will FFNHA ensure a balanced story will be told?
The FFNHA will strive to share different perspectives on the stories of the region rather than presenting the stories from any one perspective. A system or process will be developed to help evaluate stories and help with this issue. Telling these stories from a variety of perspectives will also add to the richness of the stories for visitors as well.

5. What is the process for addressing the pain resulting from sharing painful and/or unpleasant facts?
I&E committee members generally agreed that these stories are important to tell, even though they may be painful or unpleasant—and noted that there is some reluctance out in the region to tell some of the stories. Clearly, this will be an ongoing challenge for FFNHA to ensure that these stories are told, and that they are told sensitively and in ways that encourage healing. The suggestion was made that in telling these stories, we need to refrain from portraying one side as either the hero or the villain. The General Management Plan (GMP) should include interpretive techniques to help tell these kinds of stories.

6. How will connect all the stories?
Connecting these stories is exactly what the FFNHA can help to accomplish. The themes, sub-themes and storylines will provide a framework to develop interpretive tools and programs that will help to provide a seamless and coherent visitor experience that connects stories in the regions.

7. Who is compiling and coordinating story development, authentication?
Recognizing that new research, new sites, or new information may come to light long after this GMP is created, the GMP will outline a process by which stories can be submitted and authenticated. There will be no one “Authenticity Czaz” but rather a process which allows for input from a variety of stakeholders. The Virginia Civil War Trails example was provided as one model of how another region handles this issue. There, stories are initially provided by local historians. These are vetted by a historical committee at the state level, then adapted by Virginia Civil War Trails, Inc. to emphasize aspects that will appeal to visitors.
(such as the human interest anecdotes). Finally, these stories go back to the local level for final approval.

8. What eras will be covered?
   Different members of the I&E committee have different opinions on how this should be handled. Some think that it should be very inclusive, from the Indians to present day. Others feel that it should focus primarily on the Border Wars era. This question will be answered as the themes, sub-themes and storylines are developed for the GMP.

B. Education
   1. What is the role of libraries?
      Libraries will be an important resource for FFNHA.
   2. What is the role of schools?
      As our committee does not include a large number of active teachers (it does include several former teachers as well as a college educator), this committee will need to reach out to social studies curriculum coordinators and teachers in the region to determine a) what kind of curriculum/training materials already exist; b) what kind of FFNHA related curriculum materials need to be developed, and c) how to best position these materials so that they will be used, knowing that teachers are already scrambling to include the required curriculum elements. The Kansas school system has social studies coordinators, it is unclear if Missouri schools have a comparable position. Many heritage sites across the country (including sites in Kansas and Missouri) have seen declining field trips following the “No Child Left Behind” act as teachers are pressed to meet these guidelines. Some efforts to reach out to schools by committee members have been rebuffed as schedules don’t allow for new outside activities. All school educational programs MUST be developed in consultation with active educators to ensure that they are relevant and thus used. Programs must help to meet required curriculum standards.

      Videoconferencing was suggested as one format to use to provide programs to multiple schools simultaneously. Colleges in the region also provide a rich resource for educational programs.

   3. Will training be provided for interpretation?
      There is a need to educate staff and volunteers about the FFNHA and what is in the region. The GMP will include recommendations to guide the FFNHA for the next 10 years, which will include recommendations for training for interpretation if this is needed. While the GMP process will not include actual interpretive training workshops, the GMP will include the development of interpretive toolkit materials to help FFNHA stakeholders determine how to best interpret FFNHA sites.

C. Additional Questions
   1. What is the difference between the committee co-chairs and the steering committee liaison?
      The steering committee liaison will be this committee’s link to the steering committee. The Interpretation & Education co-chairs will work with the consultant team to ensure that we have a well-balanced representation of the FFNHA region on the committee and help to ensure that the committee fulfills its responsibilities.

   2. What are the responsibilities of the Interpretation & Education Committee?
      This committee is charged with:
- Helping to identify and compile existing resources to inform the work of the interpretation and education committee.
- Helping to plan site visits for Amy Webb
- Developing a Statement of National Significance for FFNHA
- Developing a main theme and subthemes for the FFNHA (adapted from the themes developed in the FFNHA feasibility study)
- Developing a process to help evaluate sites and stories
- Serving as a sounding board for the interpretive/educational plan in the GMP

3. How frequently will this committee be meeting?
   There is a master schedule for the development of the GMP which is currently being developed. Where feasible, meetings will be tied to the regularly scheduled monthly FFNHA meetings. Because of the distance and cost of traveling in the region, every effort will be made to use technology to minimize the number of face-to-face meetings required of committee members. This will include e-mail correspondence, web surveys, conference calls and Web meetings which will combine a conference call with a simultaneous web broadcast of a PowerPoint and/or other visuals.

4. How will our committee stay in touch?
   E-mail and conference calls will be key ways to stay in touch, in addition to face-to-face meetings. The consultant team is also developing a website that can be used to make resources available to the consultant team and to the partnership team.

5. Will the full consultant team be at every meeting over the next year?
   No. Key members of the consultant team will be at different meetings as different elements of the GMP are developed.

6. If we have information to share, who do we send it to?
   Send information to one of the interpretation and education committee co-chairs or to Judy Billings. Judy and/or the committee chair will ensure that the right member of the consultant team receives the information, or that the information is posted so that it is more broadly accessible to the consultant team as well as the partnership team.

7. Will there be an ability to access information about the region by both theme and era?
   Possibly. Something like a relational database of sites in the region would be the best way to do this as it could allow for customized searches by either theme or by era (assuming that that capability and information was built into the database). The consultant team will help to set up a database format for FFNHA, and this database will be populated and maintained by FFNHA (Judy Billing's office).

8. Who gets to use the FFNHA logo? Will there be regulations about when and where it can be used? Will we be allowed to use the FFNHA logo on existing signs, or is it restricted to new signage?
   The GMP will address these issues.

9. Will there be criteria for different kinds of FFNHA signage?
   Yes, this will be addressed in the GMP.

10. For the visitor readiness survey, we have been trying to collect GPS coordinates— yet many people don't know what GPS is, much less how to provide the coordinates. How do we complete this part of the survey work?
Google Earth was suggested as a possible less time-intensive way to collect coordinates for sites in the region. Concerns were expressed that coordinates gathered in this way might not be as exact as coordinates gathered on site. We need to determine how these GPS coordinates will be used to see if the margin of error with Google Earth would be acceptable for these desired uses. For geocaching, for example, exact coordinates would be critical.

D. Additions for the Glossary of Terms

The I&E Committee identified the following terms to be added to the glossary of terms:

- Interpretation (break down by different types)
  - Living History
  - First Person Interpretation
  - Guided Tour
  - Self-guided Tour
  - Etc.

- Education (break down by different types)
  - Community Awareness (residents)
  - School

- Themes
- Accessibility
- Agritourism
- Interpretive Standards
- Signage
  - Low profile interpretive signage
  - Kiosk
  - Directional or Wayfinding Signage
  - Etc.

- Lesson Plans
- Geocaching
- GPS
- GIS
  - (a definition that needs a word—how do you describe the changes to a landscape over time that includes geology, weather, zoology, botany, medicine, rivers, impacts of human habitation…ecohistory?)

E. Interpretive and Educational Resources to Gather

- Annotated Bibliography of historical resources
- Existing List of FFNHA sites (200+)
- Draft Visitor Readiness survey
- Work completed by Sue Pridemore last fall to develop themes for the region (an in-depth workshop—what documentation of this exists?)
- Existing interpretive plans for sites in the FFNHA region
- Existing school curriculum materials related to FFNHA
- E-mail list of educators (include teachers as well as social studies coordinators and other appropriate administrators)

2) Heritage Development (Consultant Christy Davis)

Cheryl Collins (KS) and Lisa Irle (MO) were chosen as committee co-chairs.

Discussion Q&A:

1. What is the role of the Heritage Development Committee?

The role of the Heritage Development Committee is to establish criteria for prioritizing, developing... and managing assets that tie to the region’s Main Story. The team will establish standards for accurately preserving the region’s assets so they may best interpret the story. In addition, the team will map assets that meet criteria for visitor readiness and significance.

2. What criteria will be used to prioritize projects?
   Projects will be prioritized by the following criteria (in no particular order):

   a. Association with established themes
      Priority will be given to assets that are closely tied to the historical themes as established by the Education/Interpretation Committee.

   b. Association with the significant time period
      Assets that have a direct tie to the specific time period established in the planning process will be given priority. There are differences of opinion on the region’s significant time period. Some believe that priority should be given to resources that tie to the Border Wars period; others believe the time period should be broader. The time period will be established through the planning process, particularly as the Interpretation/Education Committee identifies important historical themes. Once this is established, resources that interpret these themes will be given priority.

   c. Level of Significance/Designation
      Assets that are nationally significant will take priority over assets that are locally significant. One way of identifying a resource’s level of significance is through its level of historical designation. For instance, properties of national significance may be listed as National Historic Landmarks. Others may be listed on the National Register of Historic Places, State Register, or be Local Landmarks. The Heritage Development Committee encourages partners to identify and designate their historic resources.

   d. Risk Level/Need
      Priority will be given to assets that meet the above criteria and are at risk of being lost. Risk may be established by demonstrating a threat of demolition, level of deterioration, and rarity.

   e. Readiness/Ability to Contribute to the project
      Projects whose sponsors show a high level of readiness and ability to contribute to projects will be given priority. Sponsors may demonstrate readiness through project planning and historical designation.

   f. Public Impact
      Priority will be given to assets that have the most public impact. Public impact may be measured by hours of operation, geographic location, and visitor services.

2. What is a “gateway center?”
   A gateway center is a place that provides orientation, information and services to those visiting a National Heritage Area.

3. Where will gateway centers be located?
   There is some debate about the location of Gateway Centers. Some in the group believe that any site can serve as a gateway center – that rather than creating a specific place, that sites can use standard materials to orient visitors. If it is decided that gateway centers will be placed in specific physical places, they will be located using the following criteria (in no particular order):

   a. Access to major thoroughfares
Sites that have access to major highways or other transportation hubs will have priority.

b. Geographic Distribution
   In the case of multiple gateway centers, they should be geographically distributed. For instance, there should be at least one in Missouri and one in Kansas.

c. Thematic
   If a location has a particularly close tie to one of the nationally significant themes, it may be chosen as a gateway center.

d. What has worked in other National Heritage Areas
   Why reinvent the wheel? The Heritage Development Committee will study the use of gateway centers in other National Heritage Areas to inform it.

e. Visitor-driven
   Places that are already popular draws for visitors may be identified as gateway centers.

4. What is a Partner Site?
   Partner Sites are sites that meet criteria established by the National Heritage Area. Once designated as a partner site, a site will be included in heritage area promotional materials – and can use heritage area logos, etc. in promotions.

5. How do we determine what sites will be Partner Sites?
   Potential Partner Sites will be evaluated based upon the following criteria (in no particular order):
   a. Visitor Services
      Partner sites must have a certain level of visitor services. These may include public restrooms, public tours, and other offerings.

   b. Interpretive Presentation
      Partner sites must provide an adequate level of interpretation. Sites should place their story within the major historic themes identified in the General Management Plan.

   c. Accessibility
      Partner sites must be accessible to the public. This means that they must have regular hours of operation and must be physically accessible to both the general public and the disabled. Sites may include non-ADA-compliant components, such as nature trails, etc., but visitor services and interpretation must be accessible.

   d. Staff Expertise
      Partner sites must meet certain standards. Whether professionals or volunteers, site staff must be trained in interpreting the site’s ties to important historical themes.

   e. Integrity
      Partner sites must have integrity. Historic sites, landscapes, buildings and other assets must retain the physical characteristics that tie them to their historical significance. In cases where a site’s has a high level of historic significance, this historic significance may help balance a lower level of integrity. Integrity may be compromised by the removal of historic fabric, as in the case of replacing architectural features – or the addition of inappropriate new fabric, as in the case of a historic landscape or site surrounded by sprawl development.

6. How will the Stories be told truthfully?
To ensure the long-term respect of the heritage area, it is important that all associated sites and partners portray the region’s stories in a truthful manner. Oral tradition is an important aspect of storytelling. However, when possible, oral tradition should be supported by primary and secondary documentation – or through archeological evidence. When telling the region’s stories, it is important to acknowledge their sources. In cases where oral tradition cannot be vetted by written documentation, for instance, the phrases “according to local lore” or “according to legend” may be used. In all cases, partners should make an effort to acknowledge different points of view.

New Questions/Discussion (generated 2/14/08)
1. Will the boundaries of the heritage area be expanded in the future?
2. Why was Doniphan County excluded?
3. Why was Morris County excluded?
4. How do we interpret pre-historic peoples?

3) Civic Engagement (Consultant Frank Martin)
Co-Chairs were selected for this committee: Anne Crume, Lexington, Missouri; and Keyta Kelly Leavenworth, Kansas

1. Should economic development impacts be part of the Vision statement?
   They are not inherently part of a vision statement but must be addressed in the overall FFNHA plan in management, tourism, and long-term investment.

2. What is the difference between a mission statement and a vision statement?
   Mission is internally oriented; vision is externally oriented (both terms and good definitions should be refined for the Glossary in our future email exchanges as a group.) We agreed that the Vision that we are writing should be for twenty years in the future, 2028.

3. Do we want an all-encompassing statement of the vision or a more limited statement?
   We did not conclude and will ask this question to the broader group in our MARC session. We see the following elements as important parts of a vision statement:
   - Vision must be optimistic and compelling
   - It must include the struggle for freedom
   - Words it could include are architecture, values, teaching values, stories, traditions, sense of place, sense of region
   - Should refer to where we want the NHA to be at some future point, probably 20 years
   - Should tell what freedom means through time in this area
   - Should reference natural resources
   - Tells a story
   - Highlights the qualities of the physical environment
   - Should reference young people or future generations
   - Should identify what will be compelling about this place that will draw people here
   - Should identify what will attract young people to learn and experience this history
   - Should focus on the real and tangible (and has to be a quality experience)
   - Should speak to economic development

4. Should the vision be more focused on a specific period of time?
   We discussed the importance of the Civil War era narratives but also the larger question of freedom through the eras of segregation and the struggles of desegregation. We did not reach a conclusion, but felt that the values and trials of enduring freedom should be part of the desired message that will be conveyed in the future.
5. Should the vision allow for the addition of new history as it develops?
Most thought it should.

Work and Further Questions on the Vision Statement

- Is human contact important?
- Is it going to include entertainment or ‘edutainment’?
- Who is your audience — groups or individuals?
- What are people going to expect in 20 years in terms of technology, entertainment?
- Can we address citizen engagement and awareness
- What are the enduring themes?
  - Citizenship
  - Freedom
  - Sustainability and connection to the land
  - Connection to land, history, government, to each other
  - Connection to land and all the related questions such as who could own land
  - Idealism
  - Greater diversity of settlement
  - Timeless

Other themes:

- Microcosm of the nation where the two opposing views fought out the ideological struggle on the border of Kansas and Missouri
- Indian displacement, e.g. Shawnee Indian Mission
- Immigration from eastern & southern states to get the land
- FFNHA should be nationally known for its historic significance and to have an educational and economic impact on the heritage area itself

Trial Vision Statement #1
In 2028, FFNHA will preserve, develop, and share a region where people come to learn what freedom means on a personal level and for broader society over time.

Trial Vision Statement #2
To share the stories of this heritage area (or region) where people come to learn what freedom means through time and to themselves as individuals (so that an understanding of the values occurs)

Trial Vision Statement #3
That the FFNHA will be recognized nationally as the place where people come to learn how American freedom has been defined in the past and its lessons for future generations

Trial Vision Statement #4
In 2028, FFNHA will be recognized as a historic region that expresses the moral, social, and political struggles over human freedom and national expansion in the mid-19th century. As a microcosm of the national conflicts that led to the Civil War, FFNHA will serve as a region of national significance for discussing the meaning of “freedom” in the past and future. As a universally recognized center of national debate, a diverse tourism industry addressing multiple themes will thrive.

Written/Internet Survey
The group discussed creating a survey (possibly using something like Survey Monkey) that all participants in the Partnership Group could take and which could also be shared very broadly with other potential shareholders/constituents in the 41 counties. This survey can both involve new people and help to ensure that both the vision statement and the Management Plan represent the thinking and values of the broadest possible group.
Possible questions for the survey:

1. Have you heard of the Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area?
2. What are the most important things the FFNHA can do?
3. Is it important to you to participate in planning for the FFNHA?
4. Is it important to increase tourism in your county?

Public Visioning Sessions
We are required to hold four participation sessions on writing a visioning statement. This meeting represents our first. Committee members suggested holding a second session to seek input from a larger group, especially to try to engage additional Missouri representatives and organizations.

The group will work with Mid-America Regional Council (MARC), to set up a meeting, most likely the day prior the next Partnership Group meeting (to be held on March 13 in Olathe) or before whatever next Partnership meeting requires consultant travel.

We will invite many people including those who participated in the previous efforts in the Kansas City area to explore a “Rivers, Trails and Rails” NHA. We will hold two additional meetings, one as a sub-committee to review results from the first two meetings, and a larger session with the Partnership Committee and/or FFNHA Steering Comm.

Next Steps
THESE MEETING NOTES WILL BE SENT OUT TO ALL SUB-COMMITTEE MEMBERS. WE WILL CONTINUE TO DISCUSS BY GROUP EMAIL THE FOLLOWING:

1. Further questions for written survey
2. Further refinements to trial Vision statements
3. Participation process for others in defining vision
4. Elements that the Vision must contain
5. Key words to include in the vision statement

4) Tourism and Marketing Committee (Consultant Cheryl Hargrove)
Co-Chairs were selected: Jim Beckner (Missouri) and Katie Casper (Kansas).

Tourism Development
1. Will there be uniform signage?
   Yes, We anticipate using a decal or symbol to recognize FFNHA signage along major highways. Uniform signage equates or is recognized as quality; provides the opportunity to recognize something as the same (for instance, I&M National Heritage Corridor does a great job with signage.) We recommend a uniform look as well as meaning. DOT (both states) need to be contacted, involved to determine requirements, regulations and qualifications for uniform signage. We also need to determine cost, who will pay for the signage, and who will maintain the signs.

2. Will training be provided?
   Training is important, and currently provided informally through our grassroots planning process. We need to continue educating CVBS, and also schedule quarterly seminars for front-line employees to learn more about FFNHA, the region. We should also look at training via a newsletter, perhaps distributed electronically, to communicate updates and information about the region. Potentially, FFNHA could offer a “train the trainer” program for CVBS, Chambers and other regional tourism and economic development organizations.

   Many heritage areas do not focus on tourism, so FFNHA will determine (through the planning process) if and how it will engage in tourism activities and training.
3. What about tour development?
   Tour development can mean different things. Some heritage areas consider it the physical construction of attractions or exhibits to add to, enhance the existing inventory. Many DMOS (destination marketing organizations, and the FFNHA tour committee) see “tour development” as packaging existing assets into a tour product (trail, route, itinerary, etc.) The FFNHA is currently engaged in soliciting, reviewing and accepting “visitor readiness” profiles for attractions. A status report will be provided in the next month.

4. How do we measure economic impact?
   Increased revenues, spending from visitors, event attendance, enhanced length of stay also leads to increase in transient guest tax, where applicable, and overall spending at restaurants, shops and local community; even increased traffic counts on roads. One potential strategy is to offer an exit survey on the FFNHA website for completion by visitors to the region. People that complete the survey receive some incentive for their time/input. Eventually, FFNHA may need to hire an economist to conduct an economic impact study to determine annual sales tax by county (or via SIC/NCIS codes.)

Tourism Marketing

1. How do we gain better/more national recognition?
   - Have Kansas & Missouri play for national football championship in 2009!
   - Really, partner with other regions that have larger budgets, more funding: Mid America Regional Council, KCACE, Kansas and Missouri State Tourism Offices
   - Also send information directly to media, legislators and other policy makers, influencers to build passionate ambassadors through education.
   - Take advantage of upcoming commemorations, anniversaries (Civil War, Border War) – send to Lori and Richard for inclusion in state tourism PR
   - Create and distribute list of political, legislative contacts. Include FFNHA news in political newsletters
   - Incorporate FFNHA into grade schools, elementary schools, history programs

2. How will the whole area be marketed?
   - Need to define regional role including marketing name, concept
   - Add FFNHA link on state tourism websites
   - Compile consistent information for distribution
   - Create and post media kit on FFNHA website

3. What are the initial steps for marketing the region?
   - Add an aerial map of the region on the FFNHA website; eventually, the map can use widgets to link to local sites, areas
   - Update, if appropriate, the FFNHA brochure to use for motivating partners, funders, legislators
   - Compile list of organizations that need to be aware of the story, informed about the region, and then send them a completely updated information packet
   - Tap public television for announcements regarding FFNHA meetings, activities, updates

4. What will be the annual advertising budget?
   - FFNHA will have to prioritize its activities and the allocate funding accordingly. A comprehensive marketing plan will be developed to guide the implementation.

5. Will a documentary of the region be made, and sold at sites?
   - Three existing documentaries tell part of the story. An audio CD is also available. A new documentary, based on the region’s stories, will be considered in the marketing planning process.
6. How about visitor surveys?
- Visitor surveys are crucial to determine what FFNHA can do better, what visitors like. There should be a reward system included in the implementation phase.

New Questions/Discussion (generated 2/14/08)
- Is the logo used on the PPT the actual (final) one for the region?
- Visitor Readiness: Committee is currently developing tours along major highways, including every site that has submitted forms and been verified for authenticity (through on-site visit.) What about potentially turning down a site? What is the criteria for acceptance? What are guidelines for becoming a site? Need to publicize the various levels outlined in the visitor readiness form. If there are five different categories of visitor readiness, how will the sites be grouped so visitors can make decisions (about what they want to visit)? Concern about making it too long a visit (such as Williamsburg, marketing four days worth of activity when you want to only spend a little while.) As the emphasis of the region is on story, what about organizing by theme as well as geographically? Need to promote each other, sites. Review current guidelines and discuss the process and timeline for reviewing, managing, revising them in the next decade. Explain history of visitor readiness forms (why created, when, how will be used, fit into the next phase)
- FFNHA should look at ways for sites to have on-site access to trip-planning data – for instance, kiosks – especially if relying on Internet for marketing, information
- Measuring Economic Impact: who is going to do measurement and how will FFNHA be determined as a contributor to increase (attribution)?
- There’s a lot of overlap (with heritage development, interpretation/education) so the process needs to make sure that we stay in constant communication so no duplication, competition
- FFNHA needs to focus first on the big stuff (regional, strategy) before tackling the little stuff (tactics); individual sites will need to continue to market themselves. FFNHA needs to define how it will market the region collectively.
- Who will make the decisions (for priorities, funding, target audiences) for marketing plan?
- Remember, the region – and FFNHA – is a living, breathing thing; not starting at ground zero. Decisions will have to be made, adjusted; just need process to make changes with integrity, transparency, reason.

Immediate tasks (Phase I/ next 2 months):
- help create regional media list for meeting announcements, news about FFNHA
- expand glossary of terms to include tourism, marketing terms (see list below)
- revise general press release about FFNHA
- modify general blurb on FFNHA
- create/update historic timeline for creating FFNHA (chronology)
- post the “visitor readiness” form on the website
- have the (prior) tour committee provide status report on visitor readiness: who in, who out, why, when applying information, answer additional questions (see attached)

The following terms and acronyms were identified for definition and inclusion in the FFNHA glossary:
Tourism
ABA, Attractions, Brochures, Car Rental, Day Trips, Destination, DMO, FAM tour. Fulfillmen, Gateways, Hotel, Hub & Spoke, Leisure Market, Motel, Motorcoach, Mystery Tour, NTA, Niche Market, OMCA, Receptive Tour Operator, Signage, Site, TIA, Tour Development, Tourist, Tour Operator. Wayfinding

Marketing
Blog, Buzz, Demographics, FYI, Media, PDF, Podcast, Production Cycle, Psychographics, PR, ROI, SIC/NCIS, Turn Around
5) Resource/Information Committee (Consultant Richard Yates)
Missouri and Kansas co-chairs for this committee are TBD.

Resources
Where do I go for more information, latest updates, or to initiate an action item?
With the help of the Resource & Information Committee, FFNHA plans to expand its website, www.freedomsfrontier.org, to include a special "management plan" section for posting and review of all planning documents, communications, and actionable items. The website will also be expanded to include additional documents from the tour committee, media materials, general background on heritage areas and links to information sources.

Will there be consistent definitions, descriptions to use for inventorying assets?
Yes, a glossary of terms is in development. It will be constantly updated to include terms and definitions generated by the five committees during the planning process to keep information consistent and clear. You can add or request revisions.

Is there a resource/partnership directory?
This can be created as part of the searchable database scheduled for development during Phase 1 of the management planning process. Of course, maintaining and updating it will require a commitment of financial and human resources. The committee will determine the importance and appropriate delivery of this information.

What resources will be provided to help partners?
Again, the planning process will help identify and outline potential resources available to help implement the goals and objectives of the heritage area to meet the 20-year vision, and correspond with the mission of the management entity.

Communications/Technology
How will the website be improved?
FFNHA and the consulting team, with JLBruce as the lead coordinator, will work with the Resources and Information Committee to develop and enhance the website to build on previous activities (from the feasibility study) and engage stakeholders in the management planning process. The website will also host other products and services as produced by the various committees.

How will the website be used (to help improve understanding of the area?)
The Resource & Information Committee will work with the Tourism/Marketing Committee to establish an area for the media, libraries and other sources to review material about the region, FFNHA and the management planning process.

Will video conferencing be used?
It is hoped that videoconferencing will be available to expand engagement and participation. FFNHA is currently investigating potential sites around the region that can accommodate this technology and area interested in hosting a videoconference. If you know of a place, please contact info@freedomsfrontier.org. In addition, each partnership team meeting that focuses on a particular planning component could be videotaped so individuals and organizations can download the video from the website for review or reference.

Will there be a central repository of information from all sites to facilitate telling of stories?
If desired, the committee can work with FFNHA to set up the searchable database to include themes and significant stories.

Monitoring and Measurement
How will we assess benefits?
The business plan, developed in Phase III, will establish specific benchmarks for measuring impact and outcomes against the vision, mission, goals and objectives of the FFNHA.

How will we evaluate sites and assets?
The benchmarks for measurement and evaluation will be articulated by various committees; the heritage development committee will set criteria for evaluating sites and prioritizing development, protection, and management of assets; the interpretation/education committee will establish guidelines for contributing to and telling the region’s stories; the tourism/marketing committees will build on its current “visitor readiness” criteria.

What have other NHAs done to be successful?
The consulting team will constantly draw on best practices and lessons learned from other heritage areas to help committees and stakeholders make informed decisions regarding the procedures and processes for FFNHA. Documents and links will be added periodically to the FFNHA website for reference.
This report, if not modified within seven (7) days after receipt by the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area Steering Committee, shall be acknowledged as an accurate report of the events that took place at this meeting.

Meeting Notes

After an overall introduction defining the meaning of “Vision” and “Mission,” the large group of 104 broke into four small groups, each with a facilitator. With its focus on developing descriptors from which to craft a Vision and Mission statement for FFNHA, small group facilitators in Meeting 1 read the following assignment statements.

For the morning session on Vision, the assignment given was: “How would you like the FFNHA region to function, live, embrace history and ecology, express its history and draw people in 2028?”

The Vision small group session encouraged participants to think beyond the framework of FFNHA to consider the entire region and the kind of quality of life that they would like to see there in 20 years. The mission session was more pragmatic, asking the group to comment on how the Vision can be achieved and the role the FFNHA might play in building that Vision.

In the Vision session, participants were shown a flip chart that included eight descriptor phrases that reflect findings from earlier public input. They served as models of what descriptors could be and the range of topics that they can explore ranging from tourism to regional economy and local pride.

Participants were then asked to write down on an index card their “three favorite places in their county” and three leading adjectives that they would like to include in the Vision. Participants then each shared what they wrote. We used this technique to encourage less outspoken people to share their thoughts at the outset. We then held an open discussion about phrases and descriptors to consider. Participation in all four small groups was broad and active and the comments made reflected the just completed index card exercise.

After 30 minutes of conversation, the facilitator then asked each member “vote” for the recorded descriptors written on the flipchart based on the group dialogue. Each participant had eight blue adhesive dots, and they voted for their favorites using one dot per phrase.

The results of this nominal group discussion and voting are collected in the Visioning Report. In order to interpret the raw results, the planning team created a content analysis of the descriptors, clustering them into categories. Similar descriptors from the different small groups were clustered and given a subtotal.
Results from all of these exercises are contained in the Visioning section of the Phase 1 Report posted on the FFNHA Management Plan website.

By: Cheryl Hargrove, Planning Team
Becky Blake, Kansas Tourism
Bob Smith, Missouri Tourism

Attendees:

This report, if not modified within seven (7) days after receipt by the Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area Steering Committee, shall be acknowledged as an accurate report of the events that took place at this meeting.

Meeting Context: General Management Plan, Phase 1, FFNHA Assets & Role in Tourism

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results: Overview of Tourism Trends and Opportunities (nationally, state, regionally)
Provide update on FFNHA Tourism Activities (Visitor Readiness, Tours)
Define roles (current and potential) of FFNHA in tourism (development, management, marketing)

Meeting Notes: After a presentation by Judy Billings on the draft vision and mission (foundation statement posted on FFNHA website), the large group was invited to provide comment about the process and proposed statements.

The April partnership team meeting then began a discussion by key leaders in the tourism industry. Cheryl Hargrove, a member of the FFNHA Management Planning Team and former Associate Director of National Geographic’s Center for Sustainable Destinations and first Director of Heritage Tourism for National Trust for Historic Preservation, provided an overview of global trends and opportunities in sustainable tourism and heritage development. The PPT presentation was followed by presentations by Becky Blake, Director of the Kansas Travel & Tourism Division, Department of Commerce, and Bob Smith, Acting Director of the Missouri Division of Tourism. Both PPT presentations are now available on www.ffnha-hosting.org; Bob Smith referenced findings and statistics available in their state agencies annual report. Visit http://industry.visitmo.com/ to download the PDF (click Research and Reports section, then Marketing Plans and Annual Reports for PDF of Annual Report FY07.)

Don Traub provided an update on the Tour Committee. The committee continues to work on several tours along major roadways within the heritage area. Janae Fuller followed with a progress report on the FFNHA Visitor Readiness database. 208 sites submitted their information, 171 from Kansas and 37 from Missouri. 68 full time, 22 part time, 12 seasonal, 94 points of interest and 13 emerging. The review team have visited 55 sites.

After the morning presentations, attendees were engaged in a facilitated discussion led by Cheryl Hargrove. The group was collectively invited to share comments and opinions centered around two key questions:

1) Based on the vision and mission statements, and the information shared today, what is FFNHA’s role in tourism? Many of the participants see FFNHA as an advocate to help strengthen the awareness and value of historic sites, organizations in the region with key state and national organizations (including DOT, legislators, Comments also focused on the need for FFNHA to help ensure quality (of product development, interpretation, marketing) and also brand the region through a cohesive (signage) program, to eliminate borders and provide seamless activities, experiences.

2) How will FFNHA measure successes in tourism in the next decade? Increased economic impact to FFNHA communities, greater education of residents and visitors, and increased awareness of the value of the region’s history, historic sites were the primary outcomes desired over the next 10 years. The meeting attendees recognized that to evaluate success, FFNHA needs a mechanism to collect and analyze data; several different tools and methods were discussed and debated (including blogs, tracking retail spending, visitation at sites, website usage, increase in budgets, media coverage, etc.)
A complete list of recorded comments is attached for reference, along with the committee reports and agenda.

Meeting Context: Meeting with FFNHA Partnership Team

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results:
- Review and approve proposed FFNHA Statement of National Significance & Themes
- Brainstorm Stories and Places to Support Proposed Themes
- Learn about other Site Criteria/Evaluation Programs
- Brainstorm Partnership Site Criteria for FFNHA

Meeting Notes:

Judy Billings opened the meeting, welcomed everyone and invited first-time attendees to introduce themselves. Janith English, Principal Chief of the Wyandotte Nation, presented a tribal prayer.

Amy Webb, director of the Heritage Tourism Program and member of the management team, presented a PowerPoint that outlined the steps the management team has taken to develop the draft statement of national significance and themes for FFNHA. The presentation also outlined six key reasons why FFNHA should pursue a more inclusive approach that encompasses all struggles for freedom rather than focusing more narrowly on the Border War. A copy of the PowerPoint is available.

The discussion following the presentation focused on 3 key questions:
1) Are we on the right track with the draft statement of significance and themes?
2) Do the statement of significance and themes have the right tone?
3) Which proposed main theme do stakeholders prefer?

Discussion:
- Can we get a copy of the FFNHA Steering Committee list? How is this committee selected, and can we attend? (Chris Meinhardt)
- I like the work that has gone into it so far and appreciate the Missouri inclusion (Julie Frisbee)
- 5 generations in Wakarusa River Valley, a lot about Missouri in here (33 mentions vs. 26). At the bottom of the 2nd page of the statement of national significance Quantrill and Lane are compared, and the two should be differentiated. We should have a historian review this. (Judy Pearson, Clinton Lake)
- I like the idea of an orientation packet. There is a lot of work left to do. Not sure if we like it or not. This is a non linear process (Chris Meinhardt)
- The input has been great, and this incorporates multiple perspectives. We’ve bee working on building a foundation, but we need to move forward. There will still be opportunities for input to incorporate things we’ve missed. We need to focus on a broad statement versus specifics. (Alexis Radil, Mahaffie Stagecoach Stop, Olathe)
- This is a nationally important story, and we need to bring in nationally recognized historians to work on the statement of national significance. (Chris Meinhardt)
- The Kansas Humanities Council works with a number of historians from around the nation and would be happy to help provide access to historians. I’m impressed with the synthesis of information. I like the “Struggles for Freedom on the Missouri Kansas Frontier” as the main theme (Julie Muhlhiill, Kansas Humanities Council).

- I am pleased with the inclusion of Quantrill and Lane. We need to explain and be fair to both sides. The dichotomy is good. (Stephanie Clayton)

- At first I preferred the “Missouri Kansas Border War and the Enduring Struggle for Freedom” as the main theme, but now I like the second theme “Struggles for Freedom on the Missouri Kansas Border.” I like that it has no time limit, and it sounds like I’m going to learn something interesting. I like that it includes the geographic identification of where this region is. (Eileen Robertson, Humboldt)

- I loved reading it and I learned so much more than local stories. I think we need an editor to look this over once the final stories are all in as some of the sentences are very long. (Joann Harrison, Topeka)

- From a writing standpoint, this really isn’t for visitors. It would be for the National Park Service and perhaps used as a boilerplate for grant applications (Terry Maries)

- I appreciate the non-biased start (Katie Casper)

- I like the overview piece to begin with. Will email additional information. I like “Struggles for Freedom on the Missouri Kansas Frontier” as the main theme. I like the sub-themes. I’m not sure how the sub-themes fit into the stories/places section. The purpose is to lay out a structure to allow us to research and develop more. (Cheryl Collins)

- The frontier is the story of America, Freedom’s Frontier to present day. It is a unique frontier (Kerry Altenbernd, Blackjack Battlefield.)

During lunch, participants voted on the draft statement of national significance and the themes. A “yes” vote means that we’re on the right track and additional editing can continue via email/phone. A “no” vote means that we’re NOT on the right track and we should change the afternoon’s agenda and spend more time discussing issues related to the statement of national significance. 37 participants voted with 33 “yes” votes and 3 “no” votes. Comments from ballots are included below.

Yes (34 votes)

- Prefer “Struggles for Freedom on the MO/KS Frontier” but I have a concern that the idea of “Frontier” becomes so broad & so general that a visitor might lose sight of the primary story. “Frontier” means so much more than what we are talking about
- Excellent presentation. Prefer “Struggles for Freedom on the Missouri/Kansas Border” as main theme
- I like “Struggles for Freedom on the Missouri Kansas Frontier w/o the Border War!
- Just add all stories
- We need to decide whether we are going from minutiae to magna or vice versa
- Like “Struggles for Freedom on the MO/KS Border” as main theme
- Prefer “Struggles for Freedom on the MO/KS Frontier” as main theme
- Prefer Struggles for Freedom n the MO/KS Frontier
- “Struggles for Freedom on the MO/KS Frontier”
- “I prefer “Struggles for Freedom on the MO/KS Frontier”
- “Struggles for Freedom on the MO/KS Frontier”
- “I need time to read this again and send comments. I think you are on the right track but there is more to add and some rethinking of how things are presented, perhaps. I like “Struggles for Freedom on the MO/KS Frontier.” I don’t like the term “Border War” because I think it limits the scope too much. The Territorial struggles such as the constitutional conventions but not involved in the “Border Wars” specifically are not part of that. (I’m trying to think of a more encompassing term for “Border War”
- The draft themes and statements still need work but we need to move forward. We need to discuss causes not just symptoms. Make sure all voices are heard. I personally like the “Struggles for Freedom on the Missouri Kansas Frontier: I also would to see “Shaping the Frontier” become “Cultural Crossroads: Shaping the Frontier to recognize there were people here before opening to the whites.
- I think we have a very good beginning and should proceed.
- Struggles for Freedom on the Missouri Kansas Frontier
- Basic outline is on track, however much work is needed. It is very easy to put too broad and outlook other than too narrow.
- Onward! Struggles for Freedom on the MO KS Border
• I think that as long as things are left open for discussion and revision that things should be fine.
• Struggles for Freedom on the Missouri-Kansas Frontier

No, we’re not on the right track (3 votes)
• Theme-whichever focuses on the unique story

As not everyone voted for the preferred main theme between the two options, we asked for a show of hands for the two proposed main themes. “Struggles for Freedom on the Missouri Kansas Frontier” was the overwhelming choice with only 3 dissenting votes preferring “Missouri Kansas Border War and the Enduring Struggle for Freedom.”

A second lunch activity included “Story/Place Worksheets” to identify significant stories connected to the three proposed themes to add to the starter list provided as advance reading for the meeting. 33 forms were returned during the meeting, and a number of participants took forms home to fill out and return later. Worksheets submitted will be transcribed and made available to FFNHA separately. Stories submitted included:
• 6 stories related to “Shaping the Frontier”
• 13 stories related to “Missouri Kansas Border War”
• 5 stories related to the “Enduring Struggle for Freedom”
• 1 story related to the “Border War” and “Enduring Struggles for Freedom”
• 4 stories related to “Shaping the Frontier” and “Enduring Struggle for Freedom”
• 2 stories related to all three sub-themes
• 2 stories that did not specify a sub theme

After lunch, Amy Webb gave a PowerPoint presentation that provided several examples of other evaluation programs as potential models for FFNHA Partner Sites. The presentation included information about criteria, the review process, and lessons learned from other programs. In addition, a copy of the 2006 draft FFNHA Partner Sites criteria was provided to all participants as advance reading.

Following this presentation, the five committees broke out into four groups (Presentation, Preservation, Participation, and Promotion) for facilitated discussion on possible evaluation criteria for FFNHA. In addition to the notes below, copies of completed breakout group worksheets are included with comments from the breakout groups in blue.

PRESENTATION (Interpretation & Education Committee, Amy Webb, facilitator)
• Stakeholders involved in the creation of the 2006 draft FFNHA Partner Site Criteria document explained that a conscious decision was made to stay away from a subjective evaluation of the interpretive experience. Because of the existing tension between stakeholders with differing perspectives, it was felt that “scoring” or “ranking” the quality of a visitor experience could be inflammatory.
• Based on this information, the Interpretation and Education committee decided that FFNHA Partner Sites would be required to:
  1) Demonstrate a clear connection to one of the FFNHA sub-themes
  2) Present accurate information based on scholarly research and documentation of sources. This could include prefacing undocumented stories with “local tradition has it that…” or “according to ______” or indicate that a story may be local legend or myth.
• For interpretive and education criteria, sites meeting the criteria listed above that were open to the public would not be ranked as level one, two, three or four. That distinction would be made by criteria in other areas such as promotion, participation or preservation.
• Sites with a direct connection to FFNHA themes that are not open to the public would be classified as level 5 (emerging sites).
• The visitor experience itself would not be ranked or scored, but should be described accurately with “destination honesty.”
• Rather than have a review committee rank visitor experiences as good/better/best, the evaluation will include specific recommendations to improve the visitor experience at sites. Any site demonstrating a connection to a FFNHA sub-theme that offers a visitor experience with accurate information would meet the interpretation and education criteria for FFNHA Partner Sites.
• Promotional materials developed by FFNHA might include site descriptions that would differ from other descriptions of the site in that they would highlight the aspects of the experience that reflect the FFNHA themes. For example, rather than describing a county historical museum as a “regional museum with exhibits related to the history of ______ county” the description might read more like “a regional history... museum including exhibit(s) on (specify exhibits or other aspects related to FFNHA themes). In this way, visitors will be able to differentiate between sites offering extensive visitor experiences devoted exclusively to FFNHA themes and other sites that may have tangential exhibits or connections to FFNHA themes (without ranking/scoring these experiences as level 1, 2, 3, or 4).

- The subjective interpretive evaluation/assessment would be primarily for the site’s use, specifically:
  - To provide recommendations that the site can implement on their own
  - Ideally, to identify funding/grant sources that will give extra points in grant proposals when sites apply for enhancements to the visitor experience included in the evaluation/assessment.
  - And, to document what aspects of the experience reflect the FFNHA themes so that the site can be accurately described in FFNHA materials.

PRESERVATION (Heritage Resources Committee, Resource Management Committee, Christy Davis, facilitator)

- The committee built on the criteria begun by the Heritage Development Committee at the meeting in February.
- After learning that other committees were discussing curatorial criteria, the committee decided to focus its discussion on buildings and sites, rather than artifacts.
- The committee decided that five levels of sites were too many and decided to limit discussion to three levels.
- The committee identified the following as Preservation criteria:
  - Historical Significance of Resources
    - Level One: National
    - Level Two: State/Regional
    - Level Three: Local
  - Level of Integrity/Association with FFNHA Sub-themes
    - Levels One and Two: Sites must have integrity and an association with FFNHA Sub-Themes
  - ADA and Code Compliant
    - All sites must be ADA and Code Compliant to ensure visitor safety
  - Staff/volunteer expertise in preservation
    - Formal education is not required – but FFNHA should provide educational opportunities for training to certify staff at Level One sites. Site staff should be in contact with local preservation planners and/or SHPOs.
  - Existence of Preservation Plans/Studies
    - Sites should strive toward a written preservation plan. At a minimum, Level One and Two sites should establish an appropriate preservation treatment approach in consultation with local preservation planner and/or SHPO.

PARTICIPATION (Civic Engagement Committee, Alexis Radil facilitator)

- Designated representative attends FFNHA meetings
  - Level One: 4 meeting/year minimum
  - Level Two: 3 meetings/year minimum
  - Level Three: 2 meetings/year minimum
  - Level Four: 1 meeting/year minimum
- All levels need to sign an MOA with FFNHA
- All levels need documentation
- Committee Participation
  - Levels One and Two: Required
  - Levels Three and Four: Encouraged
  - Level Five: When possible
- Active Promotion of FFNHA
  - Level One: Administrative Interaction, Display other sites materials
  - Levels 1 & 2: FFNHA website information
- Willing to share expertise (public relations, administration, interpretation, technology)

PROMOTION (Tourism & Marketing, Judy Billings, facilitator)

- Gateways? What are they? On a major road or not?
- Economic Impact—Survey with ANHA—keep it short!
• Signage
  o Interpretive (is this part of interpretation?)
  o Directional
• How is ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act) applied?
• Interpretive signage outside for level two?
• Preferred: Map of entire area
• Signage. Expensive but absolutely necessary.
• Kansas TODS (Tourist Oriented Directional Signage) program. Does Missouri have a similar program?
• Need a grant program
• How do we include FFNHA logo on TODS signage?
• How do we include all sites including
• If sign is taken down because of construction, do you have to pay to put it back up?
• TravelKS.com will provide TODS info

After all of the breakout groups had reported out, Christy Davis provided a brief overview of plans for the upcoming June FFNHA meeting. Judy Billings reported that FFNHA has an opportunity to participate in a national economic impact study sponsored by the Alliance of National Heritage Areas (ANHA). There is no cost, but we must be willing to distribute and collect surveys. More information will be forthcoming via email.

The meeting was adjourned at 3:04 pm.

The notes on the following pages are from the breakout groups in the afternoon. The information in black is part of the worksheet provided to breakout group participants, and the information in blue was generated by the breakout groups.

MEETING REPORT

Meeting Location: National Frontier Trails Museum
Independence, Missouri

Meeting Date: June 12, 2008
Task No.:
Phase No.:

To:
Start Time: 10:00 a.m.

By: Julie Lenger and Christy Davis
End Time 2:00 p.m.

Attendees: See attendance list

This report, if not modified within seven (7) days after receipt by the Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area Steering Committee, shall be acknowledged as an accurate report of the events that took place at this meeting.

Meeting Context: General Management Plan – Phase 2
Heritage Development and Resource Management Plans

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results:
Introduction to Phase 2 Goals, Introduction to Heritage Development and Preservation Concepts, First Step in Determining Group Decision-Making Processes, Discussion of Heritage Development

Meeting Notes

Judy Billings welcomed all the attendees to the meeting and acknowledged first-time attendees by a show of hands. She introduced Julie Lenger, the new intern for the Freedom’s Frontier Heritage Area, and John Mark Lambertson, the executive director of the National Frontier Trails Museum. Lambertson welcomed the attendees and oriented them to the museum. He highlighted the teacher training institute this coming July. The session in July concerns the border wars and is fully booked. Billings noted that the locations for future meetings are posted on the Heritage Area’s Website and notices are emailed to all those on the list.

Kevin McDermott with Kansas Logos discussed the Tourism Orientation Destination Signage program developed with the Kansas Department of Transportation and Kansas Tourism. He directed attendees through eligibility and the fee structure for the signage meant for 2-lane U.S. and state routes. He discussed the application kit, which includes information to help applicants decide which type of sign is applicable. The information is also on their website.

Judy Billings introduced Christy Davis, who addressed the topic of Heritage Development and Resource Management. She began by drawing attendees’ attention to two articles she distributed as handouts and last month’s National Trust Forum Journal, which also addresses the issue of heritage development. She hopes to get permission from the National Trust to put a pdf of the journal on the Website.

Davis updated the attendees on the status of the Management Plan by recapping Phase I. The planning team spent the first three months in a “discovery” phase to gain information and has put that information in its Data Analysis Report. The Vision, Mission, and Values statements, the Statement of National Significance and Best Practices in Historic Preservation are also major products of the first three months planning. These documents are on the heritage area’s Website for review and comment. Comments on the Statement of National Significance and the Data Analysis report are due July 30, 2008. Comments on the Best Practices in Historic Preservation are due August 9, 2008.

Davis shared the goals for Phase II, which runs from May–July. The planning team intends to use information from Phase I to develop plans for the heritage area. The Interpretive/Education Plan goal is to develop tools for telling stories. This is the topic for the July meeting that Amy Webb will facilitate. Those attending the July meeting should be prepared to discuss interpretation/education programs that are already working and those they would like to see implemented in the future. Cheryl Hargrove will facilitate the August meeting. The Resource Management and Heritage Development Plan goals are to identify tools available to assist with resource management, to identify criteria for partnership sites and for prioritizing projects.

Davis shared statistics in the Data Analysis Report collected during Phase I. She discussed how preservation and heritage tourism are intertwined and highlighted tools available for preservation. Davis discussed historic resources already recognized in the heritage area and highlighted the lack of cultural landscape inventories in the area. Davis also discussed what makes a successful historic site and threats to historic resources and cultural landscape. Davis shared data from the Best Practices in Preservation report, which is focused in five categories: education, planning, public policy, advocacy, and tourism. As noted above, the Best Practices are available for review at freedomsfrontier.org. Comments are due by August 9.

Davis introduced guests from the states of Missouri and Kansas. Judy Bowman, Missouri Department of Natural Resources Ombudsman in the Kansas City Regional Office, spoke about Missouri DNR which oversees Missouri State Historic Sites, State Parks, and the State Historic Preservation District of Missouri State Parks, spoke about the goals and mission of the state parks. Alisha Cole, Missouri Humanities Council, spoke of its goal to preserve memory and collect stories and the resources available to assist museums and historic sites to achieve this goal. Jennie Chinn, executive director of the Kansas State Historical Society, spoke about trends and challenges for historic sites and museums and the mission of the Kansas State Historical Society. She focused on the importance of preserving sites’ authenticity.

The meeting broke for lunch.

Judy Billings reconvened the meeting by introducing Charles Clark and Emmanuel Northern, trustees of the Heritage Area. Paul Bahnmaier informed attendees that the Chair of the Board of Trustees, Judge Deanell Tacha, received the Edward J. Devitt Distinguished Service to Justice Award.

Davis then led a group discussion on the decision-making process. She addressed the issue of who gets to help make decisions for purposes of the management plan and presented the Partner Pledge, based on the vision, mission, and guiding principles of the Heritage Area. She then asked for comments.

The following issues were brought up with the Pledge: 1. Verbiage is too site specific; 2. The inclusion of organizational affiliation (i.e. Are we signing as individuals or as representatives of the organization? Can we as individuals speak for our organization?); 3. Switch word “partner” for “member.” Davis stressed that this pledge is for decisions about the management plan only and then asked about other qualifications to be a partner.

Suggestions were as follows: 1. Fees; 2. Geographical presence in Heritage Area; 3. Tiered structure based on size of agency; 4. Form must be on file; 5. Only heritage sites, museums, etc. should vote; 6. Must be in attendance; 7. Must have established attendance/no newcomer votes; 8. Simply signing the pledge to act “on behalf of common good” is only qualification

Other concerns included: 1. Has there been any attempt to get the Heritage Area officially recognized by government agencies so that government employees can participate on their agency’s behalf? (Davis indicated that this may be an issue the planning team could recommend in the future.) 2. Heritage Area needs partners (KDOT and MODOT) that maybe do not get a vote. 3. Is this a legal entity?/What is the organizational structure? (Sue Pridemore explained the two-tiered structure of heritage areas, one being the Board of Trustees and the other being the grassroots, resident-driven “heritage area.”)

Partners are encouraged to sign the Partner Pledge, which will also be available to those attending future meetings.

By consensus, the meeting attendees decided that they were voting as individuals not as representatives of their organizations. They decided that signing the Partner Pledge should not be the only qualification for voting. Davis and Billings agreed to remove the “Organization” blank from the Partner Pledge. The main suggestions for other qualifications were geographical presence in the Heritage Area and presence at the meeting to vote. Due to time restraints, these qualifications were not decided on. Davis urged attendees to e-mail qualification suggestions not already discussed to Judy Billings. These will be further discussed at future meetings.
Davis led a discussion on Heritage Development and Resource Management. Attendees were asked “What needs to be preserved for the Heritage Area to thrive?” Below is a list of items from the brainstorming session on what should be preserved:

MEETING REPORT

Meeting Location: Mabee Hall, Baker University
6th & Fremont
Baldwin City, Kansas
To:
By: Julie Lenger & Amy Webb

Meeting Date: July 10, 2008
Task No.:
Phase No.: 2
Start Time: 10:00 AM
End Time: 2:00 PM

Attendees: See attached list

This report, if not modified within seven (7) days after receipt by the Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area Steering Committee, shall be acknowledged as an accurate report of the events that took place at this meeting.

Meeting Context: General Management Plan – Phase 2
Interpretation & Education Plan

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results: Update on Phase 2 and Interpretation and Education components including designation of FFNHA Partner Sites, Story Authentication, and Interpretive and Education projects.

Meeting Notes:

Judy Billings welcomed all the attendees to the meeting and acknowledged first-time attendees and those who have been absent for a number of months by a show of hands. She discussed the new Welcome Packet that explains the FFNHA organization. It is available on the main webpage at www.freedomsfrontier.org. She also gave an update on the management plan process and encouraged attendees to give feedback on the documents posted on the website at http://www.ffnha-hosting.com/. She discussed the new e-news newsletters, which will be sent bimonthly and asked for suggestions and submissions. Judy noted that she and several members of the management team attended a meeting on July 9 in Omaha, Nebraska, with the National Park Service to ensure that the management plan was on track in meeting the National Park Service’s requirements.

Terry Manies of Baker University welcomed the attendees to Baker University. Kevin Garber of the Baldwin City Convention and Visitors Bureau welcomed the attendees to Baldwin City. Judy Billings recognized Dorothea Jackson for her hard work on the heritage tourism map of the Baldwin City area that the attendees received before the meeting. Billings notified members that Kerry Altenbernd volunteered to give attendees a tour of Black Jack Battlefield following the meeting. Brenda Day of Baker University welcomed the attendees on behalf of Randy Pembrook, the Provost of Baker University.

Amy Webb started her presentation by recapping the work already done by the planning consultants. She showed examples of other National Heritage Areas’ statements of national significance and noted that FFNHA’s Statement of National Significance and Themes was in the “Management Plan” section of the FFNHA website, available for comment. The comments will be considered by the Interpretation and Education committee as well as by the Steering Committee. The consultants are incorporating partner’s stories into the Stories and Places document, and Amy Webb noted that the strong response is indicative of the strong passion that FFNHA stakeholders have for the stories this region has to tell. That document will be available when the process is complete.

Webb then discussed designation of “Partner Sites” by reviewing the partner site criteria development process. In 2006, criteria were adapted from the Silos and Smokestacks National Heritage Area by members of the FFNHA Partnership Team. These draft criteria were reflected in many of the questions found in the Visitor Readiness Survey.

Webb stressed the need of revisiting the 2006 criteria to make sure responsibilities and requirements are balanced by the proposed benefits. The 2006 criteria divided sites into five levels: full-time, part-time, seasonal, point of interest and emerging. Webb suggested the possibility of clustering the full-time, part-time and seasonal as designated “Partner Sites”. Partner discussion noted that the existing criteria were site-specific and did not include resources such as byways, corridors, events, i-tours, living resources, etc. A request was made that the criteria define what the term “open” means in terms of hours. Does it mean that people can go to the site and explore on their own or does it mean that the site is staffed or is there some other definition that can be used? From a tourism perspective, it is important that hours be regularly scheduled hours to allow visitors to plan ahead.

Webb discussed the idea of partner benefits equaling partner requirements. She suggested several possible benefits that may be available for partners in the current draft criteria, including networking and marketing opportunities, financial and technical resources, opportunities for participation in region-wide interpretation and education, participation in marketing plans and the use of the logo.

Webb pointed out that the 2006 criteria required information from the owner/manager and the operators with a number of duplicative questions. She questioned whether this was necessary or if there were some way to streamline the process. Discussion centered on the need to be assured of agreement on all levels of the partner’s owners, managers and from all stakeholders (which in some cases includes several different entities). Attendees came to a consensus that a simpler form of ensuring the owners’ and managers consent, such as a signature on a form, is sufficient.

Webb discussed the interpretation criteria. These criteria were left largely undefined in 2006. Webb suggested three possible criteria that fall within the interpretation category. Those criteria were: 1. The story is authentic; 2. The story fits within the FFNHA themes; 3. “Why here and no where else?” or Is this a nationally significant story that is unique to this National Heritage Area and could not have occurred outside of its boundaries? Discussion centered on whether or not FFNHA partner sites could interpret stories that did not fit the FFNHA themes along with those that did. It was agreed that sites could certainly tell other stories, but that the inclusion of stories related to FFNHA themes should be a requirement for Partner Sites.

Webb then discussed the Point of Interest and Emerging categories. She suggested that maybe these category descriptions could be expanded to also include sites that have potential to reach a higher level but may need assistance in doing so. For example, a site that is staffed and open part time might be designated as a “Point of Interest” until they had met additional interpretive criteria.

Webb then raised the following issues for discussion:

1. Should the expectations of full-time, part-time and seasonal be exactly the same or is it reasonable for full-time sites to be expected to take more responsibility in leadership and mentoring?
2. Can we divide criteria into “required” and “recommended” categories? What is the criteria that are absolutely necessary for becoming a partner?
3. What other categories (events, etc.) need to be added? What should be the criteria? When should we consider adding new categories?
4. Can we simplify the two sets of documents required from the owners/managers?
5. Can Point of Interest and Emerging categories be expanded to incorporate sites that do not meet all the criteria?

Suggestions included the following:

1. Consider writing criteria in three categories: requirements (what you must do), procedures (how you should do it), and guidelines (best practices/recommendations).
2. Consider adding a living heritage traditions category for groups that are heritage resources but not sites or events.

Webb notified attendees that 2006 criteria and discussion questions will be on the website for comments and feedback.

Julie Mulvihill, Executive Director, Kansas Humanities Council, led a session about Authenticating Stories. She stressed that audiences engage in heritage tourism because of the story. Those who present the story have a responsibility to make sure the story is accurate and authentic from an historical standpoint. She introduced Dr. William Worley, Ph.D., University of Missouri-Kansas City to talk about how to authenticate stories.

Dr. Worley relayed the importance of thinking about where our stories came from. He discussed some important strategies and sources partners can use to verify stories. Worley defined primary sources as those sources that are “in the words of the people who experienced” an event. With primary sources, it is important to consider personal bias and when the source was written. Worley uses a one-year rule-of-thumb. If an eyewitness wrote their account more than a year after the event, he considers this account to be a secondary source. As such, memoirs are a secondary source. These are sources written the way the writer remembers the event (affected by the passage of time) and the way the writer wants the reader to remember the event. Worley recommended Inside War: The Guerrilla Conflict in Missouri during the Civil War by Michael Fellman as a good, well-documented secondary source. Worley also urged attendees to consider their stories within the broader context and to demonstrate how they are unique. He stressed that attendees work to find primary sources as they will help distinguish one’s interpretation and to evaluate your sources. Dale Nimz added that sites should consider multiple sources and should reference your sources so that visitors know where you got your story.

Peggy Clark, Osage County Historical Society, illustrated authentication and documentation by explaining her research on the Bailey House. Clark researched secondary sources such as Osage County history, Kansas history, and Indian history; primary sources, to include deed records, historic maps, treaties, historic photographs, obituaries and correspondence; material culture including archaeology and the historic structure; conducted oral history; and reached out to professionals to help answer questions surrounding the origin of the Bailey House and be able to interpret an authentic and compelling story.

Dan Carey-Whalen, Kansas Humanities Council, explained programs and grants available through the Kansas and Missouri Humanities Councils. Discussion centered on questions whether or not funding was available for specific projects and the willingness of both councils to work with sites on projects.

Judge Deanell Tacha, FFNHA Board of Trustees, thanked the partners for attending and contributing to the process and urged attendees to raise funds in their communities to support FFNHA. She invited partners to attend Board of Trustee meetings and Judy Billings noted that meeting schedules, minutes, and financial documents are available by contacting the office. Eventually these documents will be accessible through the website.

The meeting broke for lunch.

Following lunch, Webb discussed the “tickler list” handout and shared ideas of interpretive and education programs that other National Heritage Areas support. She asked for suggestions of programs the attendees would like to see as a part of FFNHA. These ideas will be added to the list of ideas and an e-survey will be used to set priorities. Suggestions included:

MEETING REPORT

Meeting Location: Ritz Charles
9001 W 110 St, Suite 100
Overland Park, Kansas

Meeting Date: August 14, 2008

Task No.: 2

Phase No.: 2

Start Time: 9:30 AM

End Time: 3:00 PM

Attendees: See attached list

This report, if not modified within seven (7) days after receipt by the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area Steering Committee, shall be acknowledged as an accurate report of the events that took place at this meeting.

Meeting Context:
General Management Plan – Phase 2
Delivering the Brand Promise: Criteria

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results:
Define measurement strategies for success as a way to help FFNHA realize its vision and prioritize activities, benchmark performance.

Meeting Notes:

Judy Billings called the meeting to order at 10:03. Bill Fry, the general manager of the Ritz Charles welcomed the attendees to Overland Park and the Ritz Charles. Billings welcomed all the attendees to the meeting. First-time attendees introduced themselves to the group. Billings recognized the steering committee for their efforts and awarded them with a commemorative coin that bears the emblem of Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area (FFNHA). Lori Simms, Communications Administrator for the Missouri Division of Tourism announced that the Missouri Division of Tourism was finishing the paperwork for a $75,000 investment in FFNHA Management Planning. Billings reminded attendees that surveys are online for input until August 17. Billings then introduced Cheryl Hargrove.

Hargrove explained her goals for the meeting were to update the Partnership Team about what has been happening, explain the next steps that would be taken and get input from the Partnership Team to help make those next steps meaningful.

Hargrove discussed Phase I by explaining the work that was done and highlighting the documents on the website. She described these documents and explained the purpose and refining process of the Vision and Mission. Hargrove explained the decision-making process whereby input from the Partnership Team and public would be taken to a committee and reported to the Steering Committee who would vote. This was the process used to adopt the Best Practices document which will be integrated into the management plan. Hargrove also described the purpose of the Statement of National Significance as being the statement that helps define the unique “why here and no where else” of the region and its importance to the residence. It will help to set the tone for interpretation and decision-making and will help explain why this region was recognized by Congress. Hargrove announced the main theme and title of the Statement of National Significance would by “Struggles for Freedom on the Missouri-Kansas Border” and the sub-themes would include: Shaping the Frontier, Missouri-Kansas Border War, and Enduring Struggles for Freedom.

Hargrove noted that the team and the Steering Committee are working to craft the Statement of National Significance into a short narrative that highlights the relationship of the region to the national scene. The working copy of the statement will be used as a justification paper to support the statement. Elizabeth Hatchett suggested the states in the title should be in alphabetical order. Hargrove noted that comment. Hargrove also stressed that this will become the platform for all to tell their individual stories.

Hargrove discussed Phase II and III and the four segment reports that are being prepared. She encouraged attendees to look for those documents on the website at the end of September and provide comment to the team.
Hargrove presented a short Power Point presentation entitled “Defining Success: Criteria for FFNHA to Realize its Vision and Mission.” In this presentation, Hargrove discussed why it is important for FFNHA to define success as it helps to identify our essence and uniqueness, establish expectations, and decide how to meet those expectations. Hargrove discussed Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and HandMade in America (western North Carolina) as examples of areas that defined success in order to know where to go, how to get there and how to know when they succeeded. Hargrove concluded by asking the attendees to email FFNHA the number of hours they spent to be here and the money they’ve spent to be here. This information will be presented at the next meeting.

Hargrove introduced Frank Lenk, Director of Research Services for the Mid-America Regional Council. Lenk discussed Metro Outlook and their research. Lenk showed attendees the graphic representation in charts and maps of social data Metro Outlook measured. Lenk stressed that when deciding to gather quantitative data to make sure that the data collected reflects the group’s goals and measures the impact of what the group does. Data should be used to make decisions on how to move forward. Lenk noted that the data he provided is available online at http://www.metrodataline.org/metro_outlook.htm.

Hargrove introduced Christine Bial, Program Manager for the Kansas Arts Commission. Bial explained the mission and goals of the Kansas Arts Commission and their programs. She discussed how funding is awarded and how the Commission measures success. Bial noted that success for the agency is measured through the growth in the number of applications and requests for services, the number of projects and events funded and the amount of funds available. Bial stated that more information is on their website at http://arts.ks.gov.

Hargrove introduced Jeanine Rann, Executive Director of Downtown Lee’s Summit. Rann presentation centered on the National Trust for Historic Preservation’s Main Street Program standards as ways to measure success. These standards include having the following elements: a broad base of support; a clear mission and vision; a comprehensive work plan; a preservation ethic; an active board of directors and committees; an adequate operating budget; a professional program manager; ongoing training for staff and volunteers; reports of key statistics; and staying in touch with the larger organization. Rann stated that these standards can be modified and applied to most organizations. The NTHP’s standards are explained in detail online at http://www.mainstreet.org/content.aspx?page=2121&section=15.

Hargrove opened the floor for questions. She asked the panel what categories they believed FFNHA should measure that would be meaningful to them as residents or for their organization. Number of new visitors, accessibility to programming, number of people attending programming, who is attending programming, and number of local residents that know about FFNHA were mentioned as answers. Hargrove also asked how the panel’s organizations could work with FFNHA. Rann stated that Main Streets and FFNHA were natural partners for cultural heritage tourism and could work to target a heritage tourism audience. Bial answered that the Kansas Arts Commission could partner with FFNHA on events and working to bring artists for programming. Lenk stated that MARC could help FFNHA design an RFP that would identify research indicators that were important to FFNHA.

Attendees also had questions for the panel. One asked about using other groups’ guidelines, as how Main Street uses guidelines from NTHP, rather than developing our own. Hargrove agreed with this idea and stressed the need to bring lots of “best ideas” together to fit within the National Park Service’s requirements. Another asked about studies to advance the message to non-tourists, such as those who do not live in the area and cannot travel to the area, and suggested presenting things in a more creative manner, such as videoconferencing, websites, podcasting. Bial agreed and suggested that technology must be available to use. She relayed that many Kansas libraries were working to link through ELMeR, a videoconferencing tool. Hargrove reported that FFNHA is researching videoconferencing and other technology to tell the story. Hargrove thanked the panel for their participation.

During the lunch break, attendees introduced themselves.

Hargrove facilitated group discussion about prioritizing measurement strategies. She presented the vision and mission and noted the need to set goals, define criteria, establish benchmarks, and determine roles and responsibilities based on the vision and mission. She introduced four areas for the attendees to focus on for the FFNHA: historic preservation/heritage development; landscape conservation; business/tourism; and interpretation/education. Hargrove also discussed sustainable economies.

Hargrove then asked the attendees how they defined success. She did this by reintroducing some of the definitions compiled from the November 2007 meeting. The attendees completed an exercise where they wrote their answers to (1) How do you define success? (2) What is Freedom’s Frontier’s role in accomplishing that? (3) What is your role in accomplishing that? on index cards for the following four categories: Historic Preservation/Heritage Development; Natural, Cultural, Recreational Resources; Tourism, Business, Economic Sustainability; Interpretive and Education. After attendees had completed their cards for each of the areas, attendees were given time to share their ideas. Ideas included the following:

Historic Preservation/Heritage Development
- Other people have heard of us
- Area populated by historic places related to the story
- People educated about history

Natural, Cultural, Recreational Resources
- Neosho River as an attraction for fishing
- Ferry across Clinton Lake to museum
- Identify 10 sites with historic importance to preserve
- NPS highlights our work as a prime example
- FFNHA Role: coordinate efforts

Tourism, Business, Economic Sustainability
- New jobs, entrepreneurial opportunities
- Every municipality have FFNHA line item in their annual budget
- Revisits
- Partner sites on stable financial footing
- Rise in number of Partner sites with a business plan
- Visit 2nd site because of a positive experience at the 1st site, 10% increase each year
- Visitors can tell they have entered FFNHA by the “feel” of the place
- FFNHA Role: awards program/marketing/training

Interpretation & Education
- Speakers’ bureau
- Materials for classroom teachers – make it easy for them to include FFNHA.
- Work w/ National Education groups to advocate FFNHA
- “History left behind is not good.”
- Ken Burns does a 5 part documentary on Border War
- Tell larger story at sites
- Coffee table book
- Signage that helps all understand
- Connected story
- Develop elder hostel program
- Evaluation of Partner sites to make sure everyone meets “excellent” standards
- Your Role: serve as a resource, make my site as good as I can

Hargrove asked attendees about other indicators of success they wanted to share. Quality of life was a major focus of this discussion. Indicators included:

- Natural areas improved/created so there are better and more. Impacts area health and economy.
- Area be at top of the “best places to …” (live, etc.) lists
- Increase in tax base = increase in quality of life.
- Historic preservation help to decrease blight
- Preserve unique sense of “place”
- Recognize value of the area and its people
- Pride of place/community
- Area filled with things to do
- Provide opportunity to see real places, tell story well, and value those places and stories.

Hargrove concluded the meeting by covering the next steps that would take place before the September meeting and the topic of the September meeting. The meeting adjourned at 2:00 PM.

Meeting Date: September 11, 2008

Task No.:

Phase No.: 2

Start Time: 10:00 AM

End Time: 3:00 PM

Attendees: See attached list

This report, if not modified within seven (7) days after receipt by the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area Steering Committee, shall be acknowledged as an accurate report of the events that took place at this meeting.

Meeting Context:

- General Management Plan – Phase 2
- Heritage Development and Resource Management Plans

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results:

Enhance the understanding of the region’s natural resources, the way they connect the region’s story, and tools for their conservation.

Meeting Notes:

The meeting began at 10:00 AM. Judy Billings called the meeting to order at 10:00 AM by welcoming attendees and introducing Terry Ramsey, Director of the Bushwhacker Museum of Nevada. Ramsey welcomed attendees to Nevada and introduced Janis Collins, Director of Nevada Telecenter/Nevada Regional Technical Center. Collins welcomed attendees to the Bowman Center and described their programs. All attendees introduced themselves. Billings reminded members to sign the Partner Pledge and recognized those who signed with commemorative coins. She announced partner’s expenses in terms of time and money for the August meeting at approximately $14,000. She also discussed the media coverage generated for FFNHA by the Travel Media Showcase. The Lawrence CVB hosted six travel writers on a weekend tour of FFNHA sites and an introduction to FFNHA. Christy Davis reported on the Management Plan progress. She presented the Statement of National Significance to the attendees and reported that it would be posted on the website. She also explained that the Management Planning Team was in the process of writing three segment plans that would deal with different aspects of the NHA’s management. These draft plans will be posted on the website for comment. Notice will be sent out when the plans are posted.

Jeff Bruce led the attendees in a natural resources mapping exercise. The exercise helped attendees understand ideas about natural resources and think about early settlement patterns. The attendees split into four groups and were tasked with plotting their settlement on a map, based on a given set of criteria. The groups took the role of planters, subsistence farmers, merchants, and city-builders. Following the group-work, each group presented their land choices. Dale Nimz spoke on behalf of the planters; Allen Roth for the merchants; Alexis Radil for the subsistence farmers; and Kerry Altenbernd for the city-builders. The four maps were combined to show where each of the four groups chose to settle. Davis provided a cultural analysis of the map and discussed where situations of conflict could occur. Bruce added another layer to indicate the flood plain. A discussion followed concerning the pressure on land availability presented by the flood and the geopolitical conflicts that could arise. To conclude the exercise, Bruce revealed that the map used by the attendees was a representation based on the Marais des Cygne River Valley.

Bruce followed with a presentation about the power of place, which centered on the question of why people settled in this particular area. His presentation included first-hand accounts of why early settlers chose the eastern Kansas-western Missouri area to settle. He explained the geological history of the area and how it affected natural resources, weather patterns, geography, topography and vegetation. He noted that the common history of eastern Kansas-western Missouri is based on its prairie landscape and the abundance of an area where eastern forests ended and tallgrass prairies began. Bruce also provided descriptions of the ecosystems of river valleys that make up FFNHA.
Billings noted that projects like the Flint Hills book that encourage thinking as an “area” rather than individual states, a book about the Flint Hills. Projects such as this could be used as tools for sensitizing people to the power of place.

Davis then opened the floor for discussion on the use of the river valleys as cultural watersheds around which to organize FFNHA’s multiple stories and perspectives. Alice Widner noted that her site’s location in the Marais des Cygne river valley is an example of how the system works well. Eileen Robertson noted that the river valleys relate well to the idea of the power of place and are a good organizing tool. David Pendleton added that while there are exceptions to the rule, the river valleys collect ideas and present a simple way for visitors to understand the stories. David Roggensesee stated that agriculture as a cultural landscape needs to be explored. Altebernd noted that it is an important layer and a good way to organize stories, but that it is not the only layer. Phyllis Abbott stated her concern that Baxter Springs in not in one of the river valleys but that there are important stories. Kathy Smith stated that these layers help explain a lot of the history. Dennis Toll noted that as an organizational tool it helps visitors understand the nineteenth century mindset. Alexis Radil added that the river valley organization helps connect FFNHA to the landscape. She noted that it is a very powerful way to preserve both stories and their connection to the landscape.

Davis introduced Jason Fizell and Jerry Jost of the Kansas Land Trust. Fizell discussed the mission and history of the land trust as well as the role of the trust in establishing, managing and enforcing conservation easements. Jost discussed partnership between heritage areas and land trust and how to establish land trusts. He noted that conservation easements are a tool for preservation of place. Jost and Fizell then opened the floor for a discussion of preservation needs and answered any questions concerning land trusts that the attendees had. Altenbernd discussed Blackjack Battlefield and noted that urban and industrial development are threats to the viewshed at Blackjack Battlefield. He highlighted the need for a buffer between the battlefield and development. Nimz noted that Amish and Dunkard settlements are important parts of the cultural landscape and that easements could help protect those settlements. Davis suggested that a cultural landscape inventory be done to identify places that need to be preserved. Radil noted that the battlefield at Lone Jack is also threatened by development. Billings suggested that Century Farms need to be documented and protected as well. Robertson stressed the need to sensitize and educate residents about history and the importance of place. Nimz suggested that preservation of place relates to quality of life issues. Davis noted that the mobility of society lends to a sense of placelessness, where residents do not stay in one place long enough to learn about the place. Fizell relayed to attendees that the Kansas Land Trust is producing a book about the Flint Hills. Projects such as this could be used as tools for sensitizing people to the power of place. Billings noted that projects like the Flint Hills book that encourage thinking as an “area” rather than individual states, are ones that FFNHA may want to pursue in the future. Billings noted that tools such as the Kansas Land Trust, are helpful especially to rural partners, to help them be better stewards of their stories and of the cultural landscape. She noted that partners can help preserve the unique sense of place that is ingrained in all our stories. In doing so, partners will leave a legacy for future generations to enjoy.

Davis closed by reminding attendees that segment plans will be ready soon for their review. Billings reminded attendees to send in their expenses. Megan Cahill, Brian Miller, Billings, Ellery Robertson, Joan McPeak, Ola Mae Earnest and Ramsey reminded attendees of upcoming events in the area. Debbie White asked attendees to register their events on FFNHA calendar and to alert her of news for the e-newsletter.

The meeting adjourned at 2:30.

Heritage Development and Resource Management Plans

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results: The Region and the Place: Connection the Region’s Stories and the Land

Meeting Notes:

The meeting began at 10:12 AM. Judy Billings welcomed attendees and introduced Ron Harris, First Territorial Capitol & Geary County Museum. Harris welcomed attendees to Geary County. Attendees introduced themselves. Billings announced partners’ contributions of time and resources for the September meeting to be approximately $10,788.45. She reminded attendees to sign the Partner Pledge. Billings introduced Dennis Toll, Manhattan Convention and Visitors Bureau. Toll welcomed attendees to the Manhattan area and the Flint Hills and gave an overview of the importance of the landscape of the Flint Hills and the native tallgrass prairie.

Billings introduced Bill McKale, Fort Riley Museum Division, who welcomed attendees to Fort Riley and spoke about the landscape of Fort Riley. McKale noted that Fort Riley was established as a frontier fort at the place where the Republican and Smoky Hill rivers formed the Kansas river. Its purpose was to provide protection for the overland trails that ran very near to Fort Riley. According to McKale soldiers and settlers came to this region to "domesticate a wilderness."

Billings introduced Frank Martin, FFNHA Management Planning Consultant, reviewed the management plan progress. He reviewed the Power of Place discussion from the September meeting and talked about the importance of landscape history and preservation. He encouraged attendees to think about the different ways we talk and think about landscape by presenting “10 versions of the same scene.”

Billings introduced Major Nathan Bond, Public Affairs Officer, Fort Riley. Major Bond welcomed attendees to Fort Riley and discussed how someone newly stationed at Fort Riley could learn about Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area. Major Bond encouraged site managers to know a little bit about other sites that connect to their story to refer people to other places. He also included strategies such as websites, wives’ organizations, social networking media, podcasting and public access television.

The meeting broke for lunch.

Martin facilitated a discussion to review the mapping exercise from September's meeting. Paul Bahmaier, Lisa Irle, Terry Ramsey and Billings reviewed their impressions of the exercise and the insights it gave them into how the landscape affected Freedom's Frontier's shared stories.

Martin gave a presentation that discussed the difference between place and space, how one develops a sense of “rootedness” and how Freedom's Frontier lends to developing a sense of place. He explained that the landscape, while it affected the larger history of the region, also affected the story of individual sites.
Martin introduced Carol Bohl and Terry Ramsey who gave a presentation on the Battle of Island Mound. Ramsey noted that geography and landscape are a living artifact through which we can tell our stories. She discussed the geography of the Island Mound region including its topography, roads and wetlands, and how this geography lent itself to Bushwhackers and Federal troops. Bohl relayed the story of Island Mound and how the topography and vegetation were used to fight the battle. Island Mound is significant because the first African American group to fight during the Civil War fought at Island Mound. This group was used as “evidence” to support the idea that African Americans could be used as soldiers to good effect. The presentation generated a discussion about how the Battle of Island Mound was connected to other sites through the historic timeline of the region and through the connections with the Buffalo Soldiers.

Following a short break, attendees brainstormed ways in which Island Mound connected with other sites. Some of the shared examples include:

- Leavenworth’s interpretation of the Buffalo Soldiers. By sending visitors to Island Mound, they can see who the Black Soldiers fought and where. (JC Tellefson)
- This Black Unit is the same group that occupied a fort at Baxter Springs that was attacked by Quantrill. (Kerry Altenbernd)
- There is a geographical connection between the Pottawatomie Massacre and the Marais des Cygne massacre that is important to the story of Island Mound. (Deb Barker)
- There is a connection between types of sites with Mount Mitchell. Both are emerging sites that you have to know about to find them. (Jim Webb)
- Connection to Pacific House Hotel in Kansas City, Missouri where Order Number 11 was written. (Jody Craig)
- Points out a shift in Federal policy from before the war when federal troops were sent to aid the pro-slavery side at Fort Titus and Camp Sackett. (Paul Bahnmaier)

Martin encouraged attendees to continue thinking about the physical connections between sites; roads, trails, etc. and how these physical connections could become part of the visitor experience.

Martin introduced Eileen Robertson who gave a presentation about the Power of Place in Humboldt, Kansas. Robertson discussed the history of Humboldt and its legacy of overcoming adversities. She discussed how people in Humboldt are rediscovering the past and building a sense of place and rootedness through festivals and town improvements.

Toll introduced Jim Webb, a PhD candidate in geography at Kansas State University. Webb presented his work on a driving tour of western Freedom's Frontier counties. Webb expressed that the idea was to tie the western Freedom's Frontier story together and to show travelers that “Kansas is more than just a state to drive through.” By looking at the region through geography and tourism, Webb connected sites, emerging sites, and points of interest in the tour he developed.

Martin introduced Ron Harris who discussed the history and geography of the First Territorial Capital. He pointed out why the landscape, the rivers, limestone hills and its centrality, made the place important to the many groups who gave this place special significance, including Native Americans, explorers, the United States Army, and white settlers.

Martin introduced Kerry Altenbernd who discussed the landscape of Black Jack Battlefield. Altenbernd discussed geological history of Black Jack and how the geology affected the Santa Fe Trail and the Battle of Black Jack. He explained how Henry Clay Pate and John Brown and their forces used the landscape of Black Jack as natural fortifications during the battle. Altenbernd also noted the possibility of encroaching negative development that threaten Black Jack’s viewshe.

The meeting adjourned at 2:50

Meeting Location: White Rose Pavilion
107 Ming Street
Warrensburg, Missouri

Meeting Date: November 13, 2008

Task No.: 107 Ming Street
Phase No.: 2

To: Julie Lenger
By: Julie Lenger

Attendees: See attached list

This report, if not modified within seven (7) days after receipt by the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area Steering Committee, shall be acknowledged as an accurate report of the events that took place at this meeting.

Meeting Context:
General Management Plan – Phase 2
Heritage Development and Resource Management Plans

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results:
Priorities and Connections

Meeting Notes:

Judy Billings welcomed the partners and introduced Lisa Irle and Jack Landers of the Johnson County (Missouri) Historical Society. Landers introduced the Board of Directors for the Historical Society and Irle introduced special guests in attendance, representing the city of Warrensburg and Johnson County, Missouri. Irle showed a video about the Johnson County, Missouri Old Courthouse.

Billings recognized Board of Trustee members in attendance, Charles Clark and Judge Deanell Tacha. Tacha welcomed the partners and thanked them on behalf of the Board of Trustees. She updated attendees on the work of the Board and shared with the partners her vision of the area as an interwoven fabric that told a unified story and preserved the heritage of this place that would resonate with future generations and their challenges.

Attendees introduced themselves. Billings reminded attendees about signing the Partner Pledge and recognized those who have signed with Freedom's Frontier commemorative coins. She reminded the attendees to put 2009 events on the website. Billings reported last month's meeting expenses at $9,121.21 and reminded attendees to fill out the November expense sheets. She pointed out the small exhibits about Johnson County, Missouri's stories that Irle put together and encouraged attendees to look at these stories and to include their connections to those stories on the sheets provided by Irle. Billings recognized the Steering Committee for their work and introduced Jody Craig and Lori Simms, members of the Steering Committee.

Craig and Simms presented the foundation documents to the attendees. Craig explained that the foundation documents were made up of: the Statement of National Significance and Themes, the Vision for 2028, the Mission, the Goals, and the Guiding Principles. Craig explained the background of and work done on the Statement of National Significance and presented it to the attendees. The Themes were originally presented in the August meeting. The Statement of National Significance was presented in the September meeting. The full Statement of National Significance can be found on the website at http://www.ffnha-hosting.com/communications-docs/Statement%20of%20Significance%20Revised.pdf.

Simms explained the background of and work done on the Vision for 2028, Mission, Goals in their long and short versions and Guiding Principles. The Vision for 2028 is:

Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area (FFNHA) is an internationally recognized region in western Missouri and eastern Kansas where a young nation’s diverse definitions of freedom collided. Through sharing authentic and honestly interpreted stories, residents respect multiple views of freedom. Compelling learning experiences, interpretation and preservation offer visitors and residents of all ages an understanding of the region’s importance. Historically aware citizens collaborate to build diverse economies for current and future generations.

The Mission is:

Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area (FFNHA) is dedicated to building awareness of the struggles for freedom in western Missouri and eastern Kansas. These diverse, interwoven and nationally important stories grew from a unique physical and cultural landscape. FFNHA inspires respect for multiple perspectives and empowers residents to preserve and share these stories. We achieve our goals through interpretation, preservation, conservation and education for all residents and visitors.

The Goals are:

1. Build awareness of the struggles for freedom that took place within the boundaries of Freedom's Frontier for current and future generations. (Build awareness of our story.)
2. Enhance, sustain and preserve the unique cultural and historic assets within our nationally important physical and cultural landscapes that fostered these stories. (Enhance, sustain and preserve our sense of place.)
3. Inspire tolerance and respect for multiple perspectives. (Inspire tolerance and respect for multiple perspectives.)
4. Empower residents to preserve and share our nationally important authentic stories in an engaging way. (Empower residents to preserve and share our stories.)

The Guiding Principles are:

1. Be tolerant and respectful of diverse stories from multiple perspectives.
2. Respect property rights.
3. Focus on authentic and engaging experiences.
4. Honor the region’s peoples, past and present.
5. Appreciate unique cultural and historic assets within the nationally important landscape.
6. Invest in community engagement, education and empowerment.
7. Sustain and grow a sense of place.
8. Value the natural environment.
9. Consider future generations in all actions.

Billings spoke about the strategies and tactics for guiding Freedom's Frontier's future and introduced Alexis Radil, member of the Steering Committee, to present these strategies and tactics. Radil noted that the Steering Committee had been hard at work to develop this list of strategies and tactics based on the recommendations from the segment plans. She explained to those in attendance that this was their opportunity to give their input on how the tactics would be prioritized. The list of strategies and tactics is attached below.

Attendees were given five stickers. They were asked to place their stickers next to the tactics that they believed were most important. They were instructed they could allocate their stickers in any way they wished. The tactics were posted on the wall.

The results of this exercise were as follows:

<table>

Irle introduced Jeff Hancock, Warrensburg City Manager. Hancock welcomed the attendees to Warrensburg.

Richard Sunderwirth made an announcement about “Border War: The Rivalry between Missouri and Kansas.” This television program will air on the Metro Sports channel on November 26. It explores the sports rivalry between MU and KU by looking at the Border War of the 1850s that led to the Civil War and caused animosity between the two states. More information about this program can be found on www.borderwarrivalry.com.

The meeting broke for lunch.

Irle introduced Missouri State Representative for the 121st District and State Senator-Elect, David Pearce. Pearce welcomed attendees to Warrensburg and shared his interest in Missouri and Kansas’s heritage and the history of the Civil War in the western theater.

Julie Lenger discussed making connections with the attendees. She explained that they would be building on the landscape presentation from September and the specific site presentation from October. She reviewed the exercise the October attendees completed, linking sites to the new Missouri State Historic Site at the Skirmish of Island Mound. Attendees then selected a site, wrote that site on an index card along with its connections to other sites within Freedom’s Frontier. Attendees then drew those connections on a large map on the wall.

Tacha wrapped up this exercise by reflecting on the connections on the map. She expressed that this map confirmed that this area was a true heritage area with an interconnected story to tell. She reiterated how important this story was and will continue to be for future generations, if it is preserved and told from multiple perspectives.

Lenger gave a short presentation of Facebook pages. She discussed how Facebook pages could be used both to advertise individual sites and to link sites together with Freedom’s Frontier’s Facebook page. She explained how Facebook pages could benefit sites, how to set up a page, how to get fans, how to link it to Freedom’s Frontier’s page, and how to use the applications to share information with interested “fans.”

Billings reminded attendees to post their events on Freedom’s Frontier’s website. Lenger reminded attendees to fill out the expense sheets. Cheryl Collins announced that Riley County was designated as a Preserve America community. Billings announced that the December meeting would be held in Paola, Kansas.

The meeting adjourned at 2:15.

Freedom’s Frontier’s Management Planning Team and Steering Committee have developed the following strategies and tactics in order to help Freedom's Frontier achieve its Vision for 2028:

Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area (FFNHA) is an internationally recognized region in western Missouri and eastern Kansas where a young nation’s diverse definitions of freedom collided. Through sharing authentic and honestly interpreted stories, residents respect multiple views of freedom. Compelling learning experiences, interpretation and preservation offer visitors and residents of all ages an understanding of the region’s importance. Historically aware citizens collaborate to build diverse economies for current and future generations.

These strategies and tactics were taken from the five segment plans (tourism, marketing, economic development, interpretation & education and heritage resource management) which were reviewed by Freedom’s Frontier’s committees in September. The management planning team wrote these strategies and tactics in response to the needs and opportunities they uncovered during their Phase I period of discovery.

While all of these tactics are important to the success of Freedom’s Frontier and while they overlap and work in concert with one another, they all take time and resources. Priorities are needed to help direct Freedom's Frontier about which tactics to pursue if time and resources are limited. In order to create a management plan that is responsive to your needs and to remain true to Freedom’s Frontier’s beginnings as a grassroots organization, you will be asked for your input about prioritization of tactics at the November 2008 Freedom’s Frontier Partner Meeting in Warrensburg, Missouri. The following information attempts to explain those tactics and relates them to the strategies they support.

Strategy: Define Freedom’s Frontier by recognizing and developing its resources, sites, story and brand.

- Tactic: Collect and present information about contributing heritage resources through a searchable database. This database will include information about contributing sites, artifacts, archival material, cultural landscapes, historical buildings and folklife.
  - This tactic involves enhancing and expanding the current database to create a searchable online database. Creating this database will involve collecting information about artifacts and archival material in the area. Collecting information about existing surveys of historical buildings and partnering with others to inventory historical buildings, cultural landscapes and folklife.

- Tactic: Designate Freedom’s Frontier Partner and Accredited sites using established criteria.
  - This tactic involves approving and implementing the criteria and process for accreditation created by the management planning team.

- Tactic: Define Freedom’s Frontier’s story by developing orientation materials, clustering sites into manageable visitor experiences and enhancing available information about Freedom’s Frontier sites through a system of interpretive panels.
  - This tactic involves developing an overview to introduce visitors and residents to Freedom’s Frontier’s story. This overview may take the form of an interpretive exhibit, a brochure, a guidebook, a video or some other medium. It also involves defining the story through the development of suggested itineraries and heritage trails and by partnering with others to create outdoor interpretive signage to explain parts of Freedom’s Frontier’s story that are not currently told.

- Tactic: Articulate consistent messages about the regional experience and individual contributors to that experience by developing a Freedom’s Frontier brand that is recognized and constantly and consistently delivered.
This tactic involves developing a Freedom’s Frontier brand promise based on its foundation documents (Statement of National Significance, Vision, Mission, Goals and Guiding Principles). It also involves partnering with others to articulate that brand promise through training programs for front-line hospitality workers (hotel workers, restaurant servers, State tourism welcome center staff, etc.)

Strategy: Build a foundation for communicating Freedom’s Frontier’s message and stories.

- Tactic: Maximize the Freedom’s Frontier website as a virtual interpretive, educational and marketing Tool for Residents and visitors.
  - This tactic involves redesigning the Freedom’s Frontier website to enhance the site’s usefulness for different audiences. The website will include a section dedicated to travelers, educators, researchers and stakeholders/Partners.
- Tactic: Develop a coordinated marketing program that complements the region’s individual destinations and site programs.
  - This tactic involves defining Freedom’s Frontier’s regional role in tourism and marketing and working with local convention and visitors bureaus and destination management organizations to collectively promote Freedom’s Frontier.
- Tactic: Develop consistent wayfinding tools in the form of maps and directional signage.
  - This tactic involves developing two different types of wayfinding tools for visitors and residents to locate our contributing assets: maps and directional signage.
- Tactic: Increase awareness and support by local constituents, including elected officials.
  - This tactic involves a number of tools to help residents become better acquainted with Freedom’s Frontier. Using newsletters, brochures, a speakers bureau, an annual report, local promotions, and other tools, Freedom’s Frontier make itself known to elected officials and area residents.

Strategy: Enhance and sustain Freedom’s Frontier’s sense of place.

- Tactic: Enhance and develop Freedom’s Frontier’s sites and partners.
  - This tactic involves helping Freedom’s Frontier’s sites and partners to better tell their story better and to better preserve their resources through mentorship, workshops, grant programs and recognition programs.
- Tactic: Encourage preservation and conservation as ways to sustain Freedom’s Frontier’s sense of place.
  - This tactic seeks to increase coordination and cooperation between various entities involved in sustainable development, preservation of built resources, adaptive reuse and conservation of natural resources. It also seeks to raise awareness of area residents about the importance of preservation and conservation.
- Tactic: Develop Freedom’s Frontier as a sustainable destination.
  - This tactic involves helping Freedom’s Frontier become economically sustainable. It focuses on promoting and supporting our story-based tourism businesses and advocating support for the increased funding of local tourism and marketing organizations.
MEETING REPORT

Meeting Date: December 11, 2008
Task No.:
Phase No.: 2
Start Time: 10:00 AM
End Time: 3:00 PM

To:       By: Julie Lenger
Attendees: See attached list

This report, if not modified within seven (7) days after receipt by the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area Steering Committee, shall be acknowledged as an accurate report of the events that took place at this meeting.

Meeting Context:
General Management Plan – Phase 2
Toolkits and Civic Engagement

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results:
Toolkit Review and Civic Engagement Plan

Meeting Notes:

Judy Billings welcomed attendees and they introduced themselves. She announced that Freedom’s Frontier will sponsor the upcoming Kansas State Historical Society History Day and asked attendees from Missouri to find out if the Missouri History Day needs sponsors. Billings also reminded the partners to complete and turn in a meeting expense sheet.

Julie Lenger reminded partners that the Foundations Documents and the Statement of National Significance were available online at http://www.freedomsfrontier.org/partners/. She also explained about the Cultural Watersheds narrative which is available online at http://www.freedomsfrontier.org/meetings/2008/Handouts/Cultural_Watersheds_narrative.pdf. Jeffrey Bruce discussed the management plan progress using a pyramid graphic to help explain how pieces of the management plan fit together. Frank Martin discussed the Civic Engagement Plan and explained that the management plan is for and about people. The civic engagement plan focuses on drawing people in and keeping them involved with Freedom’s Frontier.

Billings asked if the attendees had any questions concerning the plan. Bob Burkhart asked if the organization was solvent. Billings stated that it is not but that the Board of Trustees is working to raise money. Terry Manies stated that she was having trouble describing the organization in a few, simple sentences. Billings responded by describing the organizations two prongs, the Board of Trustees and the grassroots Partnership.

The partnership discussed the nature of the organization. The following ideas were expressed:

- Questions/Needs
  - It would be helpful to understand the expectations of the heritage area when the management plan is done. The challenge is that people on the outside want to know about the outcome. We need to articulate what the goal is. (Gary Nevius)
  - How do we identify our hook to Freedom’s Frontier if we don’t already know? (Hoite Caston)

- The Management Plan and process
  - The management plan is the guidance that is needed before we can take action. It is a springboard to larger projects. (Alexis Radil)
  - The process of creating the management plan is important. It leads to growth and sharing. (Eileen Robertson)

- Freedom’s Frontier explanations
Freedom's Frontier is like academia but without the academy. It is a fluid way of teaching through place. It's like the Big Twelve conference and its sites are like the individual universities that participate in that conference. (Radil)

Freedom's Frontier is not an average heritage area. It is unique in that Missouri and Kansas have a common heritage but we’ve never agreed that we have a common heritage. Freedom’s Frontier builds bridges and that doubles the value of what we do. (Kerry Altenbernd)

This national heritage area doesn’t have a physical location; it has a metaphysical location. If an idea is as real as a canal, then we are doing the same thing as other national heritage areas. (Maines)

Each county in the heritage area is a puzzle piece that snaps together. When all the pieces are together, we see the big picture. (John Mark Lambertson)

Freedom’s Frontier represents a coalition of individuals and groups working to preserve and present stories about freedom in America. Their activities are not supported by a centralized administration, but rather by their passion to reinvigorate economic and intellectual resources in their villages, towns, cities and counties. (Manies)

- The nature of heritage areas
  - Heritage areas are tools for economic development unlike any other economic development tool. They are a way of creating value through the process of preserving what we value. The management agency is the stage to have a discussion about freedom and a way of life. They add value to the community (Bruce)

- Freedom's Frontier's stories
  - We are learning what our stories are and how they connect to one another. The management plan will give us some tools to help do this. (Billings)
  - We have to learn to tell our stories with ragged edges so that we can find out where we fit together. (Jim Zaleski)
  - What is unique and important is that the stories and themes of Freedom's Frontier have contemporary relevance. It is difficult to see where certain stories fit because this is an overwhelming story. Our frustration is the greatest indicator of how dynamic this effort is. (Janith English)

Attendees broke into three groups to discuss the toolkits and Civic Engagement Plan. The Civic Engagement Committee, led by Jody Craig, discussed the Civic Engagement plan. The Interpretation and Education Committee, led by Radil, discussed the Storytelling Toolkit. The Heritage Development and Tourism and Marketing Committees, led by Terry Ramsey, discussed the Preservation Toolkit. Notes from each of the committees follow.

The meeting broke for lunch.

Following lunch, the committees shared their thoughts with the rest of the attendees. Radil reported for those who reviewed the Storytelling Toolkit. She explained the purpose of the toolkit and shared the comments of the committee. Ramsey and Deb Barker spoke on behalf of those who reviewed the Preservation Toolkit. Craig and Lisa Irle spoke on behalf of those who discussed the Civic Engagement Plan.

Bruce reviewed his Power of Place presentation, first presented in September in Nevada, Missouri. Following the presentation, Manies asked how to make the idea of “this place” relevant to younger generations. Bruce responded by encouraging the partners to be creative and listed “Symphony on the Plains” as an example.

Minutes for “Civic” Engagement Committee
FFNHA Partners Meeting, Paola, KS
December 11, 2008

Committee Members Present:
Jody Craig, Facilitator
Charles Clark, FFHNA Board of Trustees
Eileen & Humbolt representatives
Notes by Terry Manies
Minutes by Lisa Irle
Jeffrey Bruce
Frank Martin

Jody began a discussion on the meaning of “Civic” Engagement (as defined by the National Park Service). A better term might be “Citizen” Engagement. It could be considered a process whereby we attempt to gain feedback and input from citizens of the region and also encourage all to become part of the outcome, part of a comprehensive project.

- Who are these citizens?
  --residents who are involved
  --visitors

- Larry Tucker from Humbolt suggested a web presence to increase communication as has been implemented by Kansas Communities, Inc. The web presence is important, an effective tool, further discussion highlighted that the management of such a discussion forum is labor intensive and would probably require additional personnel.

- Another concern is that there should be appeals for all age groups to participate.

- It is important to realize that there are different aspects of FFNHA which will appeal to different groups Historians – Economic Development – Travel and Tourism concerns.

- A very important, but somewhat unexpected aspect of this management process has been “healing the old wounds” Collaboration and partnership between diverse groups can be a result of FFNHA.

Jody then focused the discussion on how to get “citizen engagement” going. Marketing will be a necessary component, a certain amount is required. Statistically, historically and in local experience --response to “citizen engagement” attempts is directly impacted by money spent on marketing.

There is also possibility for “earned media” --Interviews, PSAs, local coverage, but to reach the entire area a publicity plan will be needed.

Also face to face, and networking in conversation tactics, like a restaurant mural Jan’s conversation inspired in Humboldt.

Target Audiences for Citizen Engagement were identified:

“FREEDOM TODAY: We’re living tomorrow’s History”

Ernestine, of Humboldt, expressed her concern that we not forget the emphasis on FREEDOM in all of this planning. That we remember the past and also the understanding of what freedom means to us today and in the future.

There is opportunity to engage the region in conversations about FREEDOM as inherent in this process of providing inroads to the FFNHA for all parts of society in our region.
Notes from Storytelling Toolkit

- Suggest a table of contents and index be added.
- Bibliography needed. Although the links are good many older folks would prefer to get a book through inter-library loan. Also some titles are online. Additionally, online interpretive training is available through Indiana University and others.
- More graphics needed. Include the “see saw” diagram from the Management Plan that puts a visual with the themes. Include a graphic that reinforces the assessment, plan, implement, and evaluate model.
- Include program examples from the Freedom’s Frontier area.
- Themes on page 3 need to be defined because toolkit needs to be self-contained.
- In the “Where can I get more help section” reference professional interpreters organizations such as the National Association of Interpretation. Also reference state historic societies.
- Need to mention the need to evaluate your interpreters.
- Give more specific questions and provide suggested answers (use the Johnson County library model)
- Like the graphic on page 5.
- The toolkits should be designed to be used by new and old volunteers/staff to develop connections to Heritage areas as well as resource used to train the trainers.
- Need to include examples of tools used for evaluation. (i.e. self-evaluation for interpreters)
- Include local resources in toolkit as resources become known.
- Include a statement that this is a living document that can and will change over time.
- Emphasize that interpretation is a dynamic process.
- Elaborate on the need to encourage and promote multiple perspectives.
- Check #4 of 10 Tips for Successful Storytelling. Should the word “in” be between interested and to?
Notes from Preservation Toolkit

- Introduction needs to address the questions “What’s in it for me?” and the value of preservation but respect for personal property. Use results and outcomes as examples to choose preservation.
- Cultural Landscapes section: definitions are clear but need specific examples of each type of cultural landscape within Freedom’s Frontier.
- “Where can I find funding?” section: this should be a stronger component, define source requirements; how to find a grant consultant?
- Treatment approach section: “Break up the gray matter.” Use more bullet points and lists to allow reader to skim and get highlights
- Case studies include good diversity and topic matters representing themes. Want case studies from FFNHA.
- Programs and tools section: Spell out GIS. Need to explain how to do a “survey” of resources.
- “Listings in Freedom’s Frontier” section needs “as of” date. Main Streets include Coffeyville, Ottawa.
- Main Streets, CLGs talk about them in more local terms of FFNHA in partnership with state programs
- A key is knowing where to go to get more information. Need a resource page with national and regional resources, list of professional consultants,
- Format: Make it more friendly and easy to understand. “Less as a textbook and more as a ppt.”
- FAQ sheets: NAGPRA is easiest to read, Section 106 diagram is good. Need examples of them. Want to know why to comply. Should use NAGPRA format for NEPA FAQ.
- Important to articulate that sites are autonomous and about personal property rights.
- What does success look like? Need to know when we are “done?” Use success stories to inspire--“If they did it, I can do it.”
- Formatting: more visual arrangement, different colors of ink
- Other suggestions:
  - What about natural landscapes?
  - Natural disaster guidelines for redevelopment/authenticity
  - Sign ordinance?
  - Encourage authenticity
  - Address benefits—why preserve? Why place cultural landscapes on National Register? Why do surveys?
MEETING REPORT

Meeting Location: Lawrence Visitors Center
402 North 2nd Street
Lawrence, KS

Meeting Date: January 8, 2009
Task No.:
Phase No.: 2
Start Time: 10:00 AM
End Time: 3:00 PM

To:
By: Julie Lenger

Attendees: See attached list

Meeting Context: General Management Plan – Phase 2
Defining the Experience

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results: Refining Criteria for Sites, Events and Stories

Meeting Notes:

Judy Billings welcomed attendees and they introduced themselves. She introduced Judge Deanell Tacha who welcomed attendees and thanked them for their participation. Tacha urged their continued participation as the management planning process concludes. She explained the organizational structure of the Board of Trustees and their job of fundraising. Tacha asked attendees to talk to their cities and counties and organizations and individuals about financially contributing to Freedom’s Frontier. She talked about what was in store for the future of Freedom’s Frontier and reminded attendees to stay tuned to the website for updates.

Billings reminded attendees about signing the Partner Pledge and recognized those who have signed with Freedom’s Frontier commemorative coins. She also reminded attendees to fill out the January expense sheets.

Julie Lenger reminded attendees how to access the website and where to find the Welcome Packet, meeting information and management plan information. Jeffrey Bruce discussed the management plan structure and revealed that rough drafts were close to completion for the Executive Summary, the Power of Place and the Power of Story sections and that work was being done on the Power of Action and the Power of Partnership sections.

Lenger presented information on the graphic standards for Freedom’s Frontier’s logo, including why logos are important, what Freedom’s Frontier’s logo stands for and how not to reproduce the logo. She asked attendees to break into groups and consider the following questions:

- What is a visitor?
- What do we want our visitors’ expectations to be?
Following group discussions, the meeting broke for lunch.

Billings asked the groups to share their discussions from the morning breakout session. Julie Mulvihill reported for the yellow group, Alexis Radil reported for the blue group, Hoite Caston reported for the red group and Kerry Altenbernd reported for the green group. Notes from the group discussions are attached below.

Lenger presented information on the need for criteria as a way to protect the visitors’ experience and the logo that represents it. She explained three basic visitor questions that were used to develop categories for criteria.

Those questions and categories were:

- Why should I visit?
  Story and Theme

- Will visiting give me a better understanding of the region?
  Interpretation and Connections

- How easy is it to visit?
  Accessibility and Location

Lenger asked attendees to break into groups and discuss characteristics of each category for an ideal Freedom’s Frontier site, story and event.

Following group discussions, representatives from each group shared their discussions.

Characteristics of the best possible site, story and event

Theme
- Identify at least one theme and encourage visitation of additional sites.
- Discussion: Border War is primary theme to address or address any of the three themes, no consensus.
- The more themes associated with individual site yields a stronger site.

- FF theme does not have to be primary theme/story/interpretation.
- An event has to have clear association with three themes to allow logo use.

Story
- Highest level of authenticity, accuracy and substantiation of detail
- Significance—even a minor detail, if accurately portrayed, interpreted is important, as long as it is connected to theme
- Ability to preserve/conserve and curate physical evidence
- All stories and interpretations need to be fact checked; accurately researched
- Oral histories and local legends need to be identified as such.

Interpretation
- Common training for interpreter throughout heritage area
- Must be at least one method of interpretation (live, written, audio) available, the more methods of delivering the story, the better the site
- Interpretation should be best possible

Connections
- Must connect to other sites

- Individual sites need to identify how their site/story connect with other sites/stories
- Connects should be made through brochures and organized tours

Accessibility
- Encourage “good faith” ADA compliance
- Use alternative and multiple means to interpret site
- Work with sites outside of geographic designation
- Signage

Location
- Geographic remoteness should not disqualify inclusion or significance
- Work with private landowners to prevent new wars
- Ideally, an interpretive center should be close to actual site, but not reason for exclusion
MEETING REPORT

Meeting Location: University of St. Mary, Berchmans Assembly Room
4100 South 4th Street
Leavenworth, Kansas

Meeting Date: February 12, 2009
Task No.: 2
Phase No.: 2
Start Time: 10:00 AM
End Time: 3:00 PM

To: Julie Lenger

Attendees: See attached list

This report, if not modified within seven (7) days after receipt by the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area Steering Committee, shall be acknowledged as an accurate report of the events that took place at this meeting.

Meeting Context:
General Management Plan – Phase 2
Identifying Potential Partners

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results:
Your Heritage Area:
Preparing for review of Management Plan
Identifying Potential Partners
Planning for future events

Meeting Notes:

Judy Billings welcomed attendees and they introduced themselves. She introduced Bryan Le Beau, Vice President of Academic Affairs for the University of St. Mary. He welcomed attendees to campus and reminded them of the Lincoln Lecture Series event that would occur on campus in the evening. J. C. Tellefson, Leavenworth County Commissioner welcomed attendees to Leavenworth and reminded them about the significant Lincoln collection housed at St. Mary. Other attendees from Leavenworth welcomed the group and made announcements. They included Connie Hachenberg, Director of the Leavenworth Convention and Visitors Bureau; Phyllis Bass, Director of the Richard Allen Cultural Center; Terry Beckenbaugh, assistant professor, Command and General Staff College and Fort Leavenworth Historical Society; Jeanne DeRuyscher, Leavenworth Historical Museums Association; Sally Hatcher, Leavenworth County Historical Society.

Billings reminded attendees about signing the Partner Pledge and recognized those who have signed with Freedom's Frontier commemorative coins. She also announced January expenses and reminded attendees to fill out the expense forms. Billings encouraged attendees to get put their events on the FFNHA website calendar and drew attendees’ attention to a brochure about National Heritage Areas published by the National Park Service. She invited attendees to take a brochure and stated that more publicity about Freedom’s Frontier was likely on the way.

Billings led the group in a discussion about being a stakeholder in Freedom’s Frontier. Discussion included the following:

- Whose Heritage Area is this?
  - This is my heritage area. It belongs to everyone who commits time and effort.
  - It comes back to how we relate to Freedom’s Frontier? How do we relate to the themes and contribute to the heritage area?
  - A stakeholder is anyone with a tie to the heritage area. Anyone that has a piece of the regional and national story.

- Why should we expand the base of stakeholders?
  - We want everyone to feel responsibility for the success of this organization.
  - Each different organization is represented by different stakeholders and each has a piece of this puzzle. We need all the pieces of the puzzle to make the overall big picture come into view.

- What is the role of stakeholders?
  - Role becomes evident once you realize you are a stakeholder.
  - Citizen engagement is very important to the process. Stakeholders need to think about who they can start nurturing to get involved in the organization.
  - We need to do our part to steward this story and area now and serve as a good model for others to join in. We are doing this for future generations. We need to articulate what our heritage is so the next generation can pick up the torch and carry it forward. We need to imprint on young people a sense of who we are, based on our shared heritage about the struggle for freedom.

- Other comments
  - The evolution of this organization is amazing. It is a heritage area with no geographical feature. We lack specific examples to take broad concepts and make them specific.
  - Most of the stakeholders are from smaller towns and rural areas. This is important but 2/3 of the population is from metro Kansas City. Somehow we’ve got to figure out how to make connections to those people. Their historical organizations are not looking beyond themselves. It is a huge opportunity that is being missed.
  - There was a discussion about why some southern and southwestern Missouri counties were not included in the boundaries of the heritage area. This was a political decision made by members of the Missouri Congressional delegation at the time of passage of the bill.
  - Press releases need to stress that these are public meetings and a public process.

Julie Lenger explained the management plan posting and commenting process and shared ways that the group could help stimulate public interest. Attendees asked that a brief timeline of the process be included in the general information release. They suggested supporting a blog and discussion page for the heritage area and an email directory for all participating partners.

The meeting broke for lunch.

Lenger discussed the recommendations that would be in the segment plan. She noted that in order for Freedom’s Frontier to achieve its mission it needed to partner with regional groups to work toward their shared goals. The attendees broke into groups to brainstorm groups with which Freedom’s Frontier could partner. Information gathered in during this breakout session is listed below. Following the breakout session, each group reported their information to all the attendees.

Billings explained that in order for the plan to be approved, partners needed to gather letters of commitment from groups such as those mentioned during the breakout session. She explained what a letter of commitment entailed and asked for partners to help obtain letters of commitment from their local organizations.

Billings led the group in a discussion about future plans. She explained that the management plan will be submitted this spring and planning is in the works for a kick-off event in the fall. She asked partners what they would like to see in between those two events. Suggestions included:

- Holding a conference in the summer (June) as the “first annual” conference of FFNHA as use as a way to recruit more stakeholders to the organization
- Workshops on topics to include: development, oral history, criteria usage, interpretation
- A speaker from an established NHA
- Efforts to diversify the stakeholder group
- If meetings are still held monthly, focus more on learning stories and sites and making connections.

After announcements, the meeting adjourned.

MEETING REPORT

Meeting Location: St. Peter’s Lutheran Church
910 Amos St
Humboldt, Kansas

Meeting Date: April 16, 2009

Task No.:
Phase No.: 2

Start Time: 10:00 AM
End Time: 3:00 PM

To:
By: Julie Lenger

Attendees: See attached list

This report, if not modified within seven (7) days after receipt by the Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area Steering Committee, shall be acknowledged as an accurate report of the events that took place at this meeting.

Meeting Purpose/Intended Results: Toolkit Review

Meeting Notes:

Judy Billings welcomed attendees and they introduced themselves. Special guests from Humboldt were introduced and welcomed guests to Humboldt. These guests included Terry Butts, Humboldt Chamber President; David Meier, Pastor of St. Peter’s Lutheran Church, Humboldt; Larry Tucker, Humboldt City Administrator; and Dick Works, Allen County Commissioner.

Billings reminded attendees about signing the Partner Pledge and recognized those who have signed with Freedom's Frontier commemorative coins. She also announced February expenses and reminded attendees to fill out the expense forms.

Billings led the group in a discussion about the Power of Story. Discussion included the following:

- What is the significance of the last theme—“Enduring Struggles for Freedom?” What sites relate to it?
  - Sites mentioned included Brown v. Board of Education, Webb, Quindaro
  - It is about the effects of our stories and thinking about what happened beyond the story. It is the thread that runs through stories that we can use to interface and tell a richer and connected story.
  - This theme needs to be explained better.

- When and where do we “cut off” a story?
  - Some of our stories are so far-reaching; they are relevant today and connect internationally.
  - This is something we can celebrate and make the connections. Don’t ever impose arbitrary limits on a story.
  - Examples mentioned the influence of German immigrants and the relevance of the Border War to the current day war in Iraq.

- Specific comments
  - Text about Brown v. Board in Milestone Documents section needs to be altered.
  - How We Tell Our Stories section is good. Values of passion, compassion, and knowledge are alluded to but could be stated.
  - Need to discuss how to collect, preserve, and use oral histories.
  - Need a sidebar to explain what the Milestone Documents are and to point out other freedom shaping documents that may not directly connect to FFNHA.

Julie Lenger explained the Power of Action section and the toolkits. She distributed the Storytelling Toolkit and provided time for the partners to review the toolkit and discuss it with their neighbors.

Comments concerning the Storytelling Toolkit included the following comments:

- Toolkit is daunting, overwhelming, scary
  - Need more text to indicate that it is not required. You don’t need to submit this to Freedom’s Frontier.
  - Need to indicate that help is available.
  - Perhaps a completed example would help stimulate thinking.
- Consider adding a FAQ and Overview section to address this concern.

- Catalyst for thinking about what is important
  - Could be used for facilitated discussions
  - Think about context and meaning about story and the time in which it was created.
  - Consider what you learned and center your story on that topic.

- Possibilities for help with topics discussed in Storytelling Toolkit
  - Museums associations will offer workshops
  - Designate interpretive specialists within FFNHA
  - NPS offers online training course “Foundations of Interpretation”

- Helpful tips on moving beyond getting story straight to engaging visitors in story
  - This is critical to building significance and having a long-term impact
  - The typical “heritage tourist” is not our only audience. Need to think about other audiences and cater to them. For example tying story to curriculum standards appeals to teachers/field trips
  - Think about what people need instead of what you can offer. Always consider the visitors’ perspectives.

- How we tell our story affects how we market our story
  - Personal contacts, especially with teachers, are effective marketing tools
  - Consider how we market online

- Consider reordering the worksheets.
  - Page 3-7 could be intimidating because it asks about “history.”
  - 6, 10, 1 (first page), 2, 4, 5, 3, 7, 9, 8, 1 (second page)
  - Shared human experience is important as it helps to build connections and consensus even though there are opposing perspectives.
  - Original organization also works well.

- Other comments
  - Embracing bias/perspective is beauty of the organization. How do we keep one perspective from monopolizing conversation? All must agree to respect other perspectives.
  - More examples of links to manuscript collections online could be included.
  - It is good that oral sources are discussed.
  - Add “Order Number 11” to Missouri Kansas Border War Subtheme on p. 3-9.
  - Personal/Religious Freedoms works for all subthemes on p. 3-9.
  - Add question “What are your 3 worst features?” on p 3-6.
  - Make sure language is inclusive. Implies that you must have a building or collection.
  - Need a section that addresses evaluation.
  - Have more information in the “Where to get more help” section
  - Be careful about colors. Uniformity is better.

The meeting broke for lunch and a celebration of Eileen Robertson’s 80th birthday. Following lunch, participant shared more comments about the Storytelling Toolkit. These have been incorporated in the section above.

Attendees also discussed the logo. Standards and criteria for usage will be part of the management plan. The logo is not trademarked but it is easy to copyright.

The May meeting will be held at Fort Osage on the 14th. It will include a workshop on branding and a tour of Fort Osage. The June meeting will be scheduled for June 18th.

After announcements, the meeting adjourned.

To Whom It May Concern:

The National World War I Museum at the Liberty memorial brings the global history surrounding World War I to life using its collection and interactive technology. The museum is committed to foster timely discussions of ethics, values, decision making and conflict resolution.

The goals and focus of the National World War I Museum and Freedom’s Frontier intersect in their shared focus on freedom. In our work, both this museum and the heritage area encourage dialogue about the fundamental American value of freedom and how to apply historical lesions to current events.

The National World War I Museum is pleased to recognize Freedom’s Frontier as a partner in preserving the heritage of this region of the country. The museum looks forward to collaborating with Freedom’s Frontier in instances where our goals intersect.

We support and share Freedom’s Frontier’s intention to further the discussion of how we, as a nation, have defined freedom, how that definition of freedom has changed, and how we can apply those lessons of the past to create a better present and future for our region and the world.

Respectfully,

Brian Alexander

Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area

Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area, consisting of 41 counties in western-Missouri and eastern-Kansas, is a grassroots effort to steward the cultural landscape and nationally significant stories about the struggle over freedom on the frontier.

After seven years of work by local citizens, Freedom's Frontier became an official National Heritage Area with President George W. Bush’s signature on The National Heritage Act of 2006, on October 12, 2006.

Through this heritage area citizens will pool resources, set common goals, and encourage dialog to transform that story into a plan of action. Freedom’s Frontier involves residents, public agencies, and private organizations working together to make the goals of preservation, conservation, education and interpretation a reality. Our area and its people played important roles in the history of our nation. While our history often divided us into groups that were at odds and carried out atrocities, today our citizens are learning to integrate their differing points of view into a shared story.

Since February 2008, citizens have been working together to create a management plan for the area. The purpose of this plan is to present a comprehensive program for the conservation, interpretation, funding, management, and development of the heritage area in order to tell the story about the struggle over freedom on the frontier.

Drafts of sections of the management plan will be posted online over the next two months for public comment at www.ffinha-hosting.com. A Welcome Packet and additional information about Freedom’s Frontier can be found online at www.freedomsfrontier.org.
The management plan will be submitted to the National Park Service for approval in the spring of 2009. Once the plan is approved, the heritage area will partner with the Park Service for technical assistance and will qualify for federal funding.

What is a National Heritage Area?

A National Heritage Area is a nationally distinctive landscape shaped by natural, cultural, historic and recreational resources, recognized by the U.S. Congress. A heritage area tells a nationally important story through its geography, its man-made structures, and the traditions that have evolved within the landscape.

National Heritage Areas are managed by a local entity in partnership with various stakeholders. These stakeholders include individual citizens, local, state, and Federal governments, and nonprofit and private sector groups. Together these stakeholders work to preserve the integrity of their distinct landscape and local stories so that future generations will understand their relationship to the land. This collaborative approach does not compromise traditional local control over and use of the land.
Using this approach, National Heritage Areas are based on their constituents’ pride in their history and traditions and interest and involvement in retaining and interpreting their special landscapes. Heritage areas work across traditional boundaries in order to collaboratively shape a plan and implementation strategy that preserves the area’s unique and distinct qualities.

FIVE COMMITTEES ORGANIZED TO ASSIST WITH HERITAGE AREA PLANNING PROCESS

HARRISONVILLE, Missouri – Recognizing the importance of regional ownership and participation, five committees have been formed to help organizers and consultants set priorities and define the procedures for long-term decision-making in Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area. The five committees – Tourism Marketing, Interpretation & Education, Resource/ Communication, Heritage Development, and Civic Engagement – provide a focused process for community contribution and individual input into creation of the region’s general management plan. The plan serves as a 10-year guide to help citizens and organizations in the 41-county region protect, enhance, interpret, fund, manage and develop the National Heritage Area.

The U.S. Congress designated Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area on September 29, 2006 as one of 10 new National Heritage Areas; there are currently 38 designated regions across the nation. Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area – comprising the 41-county region of Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri – is recognized for its distinctive history, culture, and landscape that tell the stories about the quest for national and individual freedoms.

“We’ve held a series of informational meetings about our unique assets and nationally-significant stories for almost a decade. Now that our Heritage Area designation is official, we want to encourage as many citizens as possible to help us set a defined course for the region’s growth and sustainability,” Judy Billings, executive director of the heritage area's management entity, said. “These committees provide forums for respectful discussion and collaboration. The outcomes and recommendations of these committees will help Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area create a pro-active plan for the future based on our collective heritage.”

Membership on the committees is open to any person currently residing or working in National Heritage area region. The committees will meet periodically over the next 11 months to define and shape the priorities and decision-making processes for implementation over the next decade. Each committee will oversee the creation of a particular component of the management plan. The consulting team hired to oversee production of the management plan will facilitate the committee process. At least one member of Freedom’s Frontier Heritage Area Steering Committee will serve as advisor to each of the five planning committees.

“The future of Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri depends on local citizens championing the values and celebrating the assets of our region,” Billings said. “We must share all the significant stories that have helped shape our country and communities, foster understanding and insight among current and future generations, and build collaborations that will strengthen the economic vitality of the region.”

Enacted by a bill signed by the President, National Heritage Areas are living landscapes recognized through a partnership with the National Park Service. One of the first requirements of designation is the creation of a general management plan. Generated through an open process for civic engagement, the management plan outlines the vision for the Heritage Area region and the mission, along with key goals and objectives, of its management entity. Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area is currently engaged in its management planning process, led by a consulting team comprised of national and local experts. The final plan is scheduled for submission to the National Park Service in February 2009.

The regional vision is a requirement of the heritage area’s general management plan and will serve as a roadmap for the year-long planning process. The visioning forum is scheduled:

Date: Thursday, March 13, 2008
Time: 10:00 – 12:00 noon
Location: Mahaffie Stagecoach Stop & Farm
1100 Kansas City Road
Olathe, KS 66061

The President signed the enabling legislation designating FFNHA on October 12, 2006 as one of 10 new National Heritage Areas; there are currently 37 designated regions across the nation. FFNHA – comprising the 41-county region of Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri – is recognized for its distinctive history, culture, and landscape that tell the stories about the quest for national and individual freedoms. Enacted by a bill signed by the President, National Heritage Areas are living landscapes recognized through a partnership with the National Park Service.

ENHANCED WEBSITE INCLUDES NEW 20-YEAR VISION & MISSION STATEMENT FOR HERITAGE AREA

LAWRENCE, Kansas – The Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area (FFNHA) website – www.freedomsfrontier.org - now includes a dedicated section with planning tools, reference materials, and information related to the general management planning development process.

Two of the premier documents featured on the site are the newly adopted regional vision for 2028 and the mission statement for the heritage area management entity. More than 150 residents and regional stakeholders participated in the creation of these documents. These components represent the foundation for the heritage area planning process and help guide development of its decision-making processes, procedures, policies and programs for the next decade. Goals, objectives and value statements will be developed in the next month to support the vision and mission, along with a statement about the national significance of the area.

“We recognize these foundation statements are a crucial step in creating our regional management plan,” said Judy Billings, FFNHA Executive Director. “The public input and endorsement of these documents are vital to a strong region. The success and sustainability of the heritage area is dependent on support from all residents and stakeholders,” she said. The vision statement will be revisited during the final phase of the planning process (October 2008 – February 2009) to help set performance benchmarks for the Heritage Area. The final plan is scheduled for submission to the National Park Service in February 2009.

National Geographic team to direct heritage area

By Mike Bels
mbels@ljworld.com

A National Geographic team will lead development of a management plan for a national heritage area that includes Lawrence and more than 40 eastern Kansas and western Missouri counties.

The plan will serve as a "road map" to connect Civil War histories in the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area created by Congress.

Denell Reese Tacha, chairwoman of the heritage board, said the National Geographic Center for Sustainable Destinations will help develop the area's economic, cultural and educational potential.

"This heritage area is a unique and extraordinary opportunity to focus the attention of the nation and people of the region on the history-shaping events and stories that occurred here and ignited the flames of the Civil War," said Tacha, a federal appellate judge from Lawrence.

The National Geographic group was chosen from four applicants, including Gould Evans Associates in Lawrence, said Judy Billings, trustee treasurer who directs the Lawrence Convention and Visitors Bureau.

"The center is a branch of National Geographic that helps develop tourism that sustains and enhances an area's geographical character, according to its Web site.

"Billings said National Geographic likely will be paid $600,000. The plan is to be completed by fall 2008, Billings said. Before federal funds can be allocated, plans must be approved by the National Park Service and the Secretary of the Interior."
Bistate group aims to promote history

Sharing stories of Kansas and Missouri counties, it seeks national designation.

A motivated history lover can find the sentences and paragraphs of Civil War history scattered about eastern Kansas and western Missouri in historical markers and museums, battlefields and cemeteries.

But partners in the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area that covers 29 counties in Kansas and 12 in Missouri want to weave those bits together into a compelling story of the area's pivotal role in the years before the Civil War.

"It's a great story," said John A. Dillingham, of Kansas City, vice chairman of the group's board of trustees.

"We have 41 counties that have their own little mini stories, and no one outside of the county hears about them, or cares to. But they'll all be woven into the fabric called Freedom's Frontier."

Last week the group announced that Kansas Gov. Kathleen Sebelius and Missouri Gov. Matt Blunt would be honorary co-chairmen of the board of trustees.

Planning for the national designation extends back at least to 2003, when a group of Kansans envisioned a Bleeding Kansas National Heritage Area. As enabling legislation for the designation made its way through Congress, western Missouri became part of the area, and the name was changed to the Bistate area.

state) 435 worrying about getting to Arrowhead in time for the kickoff or KCI in time for the takeoff, not knowing or caring what cities, counties or states they have passed through to get to those points," he said.

The National Heritage Area designation opens the door to resources from the National Park Service and funding from Congress, said Judy Billings of Lawrence, treasurer of the board of trustees.

As much as $10 million could be appropriated over 15 years, though Billings said that Freedom's Frontier leaders must take steps to qualify for the funding.

The first is developing a management plan that passes muster with the National Park Service, a task that Billings said must be completed by October 2009.

The Freedom's Frontier board of directors on June 26 chose the National Geographic Center for Sustainable Destinations to develop the plan.

With National Geographic and the two governors on board, the next step is fundraising. Billings estimated that $300,000 would be needed for developing the management plan.

Don't let past slip away, history buffs implore

By Mike Hall
The Capital-Journal

Published Friday, July 20, 2007

Areas on both sides of the Kansas-Missouri border are rich in history — Civil War-related history and the settlement of the western half of the United States — and a new group is organizing enthusiastic history buffs to help promote the region's past.

"We are just one generation away from not knowing our own story," said Deanell Tacha, chairwoman of the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area board of trustees.

Tacha, whose "day job" is as chief judge of the Denver-based 10th U.S. Circuit Court Appeals, said everyone involved is a volunteer. They even pay their own expenses for travel and meals in promoting the project.

"We're operating on a shoestring, with volunteers," she said Thursday.

She and three trustees — Joan Wagnon and Jim Maag, both of Topeka, and Judy Billings, of Lawrence — met Thursday with The Topeka Capital-Journal's editorial board to explain the project.

A resident of Lawrence, Tacha speaks enthusiastically of her roots that go back to the early days of Kansas settlement by non-native Americans.

The heritage area is the newest of the nation's 37 national historic areas and was moved through Congress in record time, thanks to the efforts of Kansas and Missouri senators and representatives.

Tacha explained a heritage area is different from a national park in that no private land is taken over by the government. The heritage area is simply an organizational structure to publicize the history of the region in a coordinated way.

It likely will involve informational pamphlets, highway signs and advertising to make people from outside the area aware of the points of interest, and even to educate Kansans on the importance of the state in the national history.
Tacha said even a lot of Kansans aren't aware of the pro-slavery versus anti-slavery skirmishes in Kansas that were the beginnings of the Civil War. But the promotion of the area will go beyond the Civil War.

"It's about the struggles to move west," she said.

It is about the Indians who were already here and about the influence of various groups of people settling in Kansas, including blacks and Latinos.

"It's about how you deal with different populations in a frontier situation," Tacha said.

To begin the process of qualifying for $10 million in federal funding, the first step was to hire an organization to develop a plan for developing and promoting the area. When proposals were solicited from organizations to create that plan, the trustees were excited to get a proposal from the National Geographic Center for Sustainable Destinations.

To pay for that contract, the group needs to raise $300,000. The group has received a $75,000 commitment from Gov. Kathleen Sebelius and is hoping for a similar contribution from the state of Missouri. But individual contributions in any amount are encouraged, and that is a big part of the road show that brought the four trustees to the editorial board.

"People say, 'Kansas doesn't have mountains, so why would we come?" Wagnon said. "This is our mountain."

Eye on Bleeding Kansas

Johnson County has carved out a distinct image for itself. We are all about new – new restaurants, new hotels, new shopping malls, new houses, new, new, new. It is easy, in this environment, to overlook our rich and, at times, troubled history. It was here, more than 150 years ago, that the battle over slavery made our county a dangerous place in which to live. It was here that early settlers left civilization as they knew it for the long trek on trails to the West. It was here that hundreds of American Indian children were educated at the Shawnee Indian Mission, which stands today in Fairway.

All of these, and more, are important slices of our heritage, not only in Johnson County, but in the region and nation. How do we preserve our traditions, our links to the past?

We have saved some of the historic sites, but there is an effort under way to enhance them, to make them better known and to link them to other places of note, if appropriate. A relatively new organization, called the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area, has been created to help preserve and improve our region's historical treasures.

FFNHA was established by Congress in 2006. It covers 29 counties, including Johnson, in eastern Kansas and 12 in western Missouri.

The group is developing a plan that involves public comment. A meeting for area residents will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 14, at the Ritz Cheries in Overland Park.

FFNHA is also conducting an electronic survey for the public. It is available at www.ffnha-hosting.com. The deadline for participating is Sunday. Though the FFNHA is not a national park, the National Park Service provides technical, planning and limited financial assistance to national heritage areas, which include the FFNHA. The FFNHA site is www.freedomsoverland.org.

The struggle over slavery, and whether Kansas would enter the Union a free or slave state, broke out here at least five years before the Civil War hostilities began at Fort Sumter in South Carolina. That alone makes the mission of the FFNHA significant to our history and heritage.

Heritage area focuses on 'Freedom's Frontier'

By Ralph Pokorny - Nevada Daily Mail

The Missouri-Kansas border area has been at the center of the struggle for freedom since the first skirmish of the Civil War pitted anti-slavery leader John Brown and future Confederate Colonel Henry Clay Pate at the Battle of Black Jack, on June 2, 1856, nearly five years before Confederate troops lay siege to Fort Sumpter in Charleston, S.C., harbor to formally start the Civil War.

That struggle for freedom reaches into the 1950s via the infamous Brown vs. Board of Education case, and even influenced President Harry S. Truman's involvement in the founding of Israel.

These are some of the story threads that the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area Partnership Team Thursday about the geography of the proposed National Heritage Area, which will be made up of 41 counties in eastern Kansas and western Missouri, including Vernon County, Mo., and Bourbon County, Kan. -- Ralph Pokorny/Herald-Tribune

According to Judy Billings, Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area acting director, this began as a grassroots effort of a group of people who were concerned about the landscape and realized that the people of this area have an "important, nationally significant story to share about the struggles over freedom on the frontier, a struggle that shaped our nation's history, a struggle that remains relevant even today."

"Today we adopted a Statement of National Significance, which is a concise way of communicating why we are of national significance," Billings said Sept. 11, after an all-day meeting in Nevada of many of the partner organizations working to make this Heritage Area a reality.

The Statement of National Significance is one of the Department of the Interior requirements before a National Heritage Area can be finalized.

The group has already developed a mission statement and a vision statement.

"A 'national heritage area' is a place designated by the United States Congress where natural, cultural, historic and recreational resources combine to form a cohesive, nationally-distinctive landscape arising from patterns of human activity shaped by geography. These areas tell nationally important stories about our nation and are representative of the national experience through both the physical features that remain and the traditions that have evolved within them," according to http://www.nps.gov/history/heritageareas...

In 1984 the Illinois & Michigan Canal National Heritage Corridor was the first area to be established, with a total of 40 designated Heritage Areas today.

Each National Heritage Area is managed by a local entity in partnership with various stakeholders, which include individual citizens, local, state and Federal governments, as well as profit and nonprofit groups. These groups work together to preserve the distinct landscape and the local stories, so future generations will understand their relationship to the land.

"We are eight months into a 12 month process of developing a management plan for the entire 41 county area," Billings said.

The management plan is a requirement from the National Parks Service that must be completed before we can ask for any Federal money, she said.

Each National Heritage Area has three years to develop its management plan, which must then be accepted by the Secretary of the Interior.

Billings said that the management plan's primary purpose is to demonstrate to the National Park Service why this is a nationally significant area. It also will provide guidelines to help all of the partners move collectively forward in the process of telling their stories by showing how all of the various stories fit together into an overall coherent story.

"It's hard work. People have to think differently about how they tell their stories," Billings said.

Billings pointed out that the geology and geography of this area is a unique product of the soil, left behind by the retreating glaciers from the last ice age and the people who settled in this area.

During one of the presentations at the meeting, Christy Davis said that the groups need to find a way to tie all of the various areas of the Heritage Area together, and since there are no physical boundaries that encompass the entire area, she suggested that they consider looking at cultural watersheds, which correspond to river basins.

The Missouri-Kansas border is an arbitrary line that affected the Border War in the 1800s.

In the Nevada, Mo.-Fort Scott, Kan. region. Davis said that the Osage-Maries des Cygnes river basin is a defining area.

The early Euro-American settlers in this area, to distinguish them from the Native Americans, were subsistence farmers, who were looking for cheap land, with good soil and a mix of prairie and woods. When they arrived in this area the land along the Missouri and Kansas Rivers was already settled and they had to look elsewhere.

Davis said that by 1855 most of the settlers in eastern Kansas were from the South or the upper South, with the exception of the people who settled Osawatomie, Kan., who were from New England.

Davis also suggested that the Missouri, Kansas, and Neosho River basins provided distinct settlement areas that would help to tie the physical areas together.

Regional leaders meet in Lawrence to iron out details of area Civil War heritage plan

January 8, 2009

The process of developing a management plan to promote Civil War era histories in eastern Kansas and Western Missouri is in its final months.

About 60 representatives from Kansas and Missouri counties in the Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area met in Lawrence on Thursday to work on the plan. It must be finalized by spring and given to the National Park Service for approval.

“Our goal is to bring awareness to the stories and activities that were taking place leading up to the Civil War and what happened in the Kansas territory and in Missouri,” said Judy Billings, president and chief executive of Destination Management Inc., the heritage area’s Lawrence-based management entity.

Three themes have been identified as focal points in the plan. The main theme is the pre-Civil War border war between pro-slavery forces supported by Missouri and abolitionists in Kansas.

The second focuses on why settlers came to Kansas and how they became involved in the border war. The third theme is about what’s happened in the heritage area since then and how it affects the area today.

“We want to take the stories of the landscape and put them together and connect them so that a visitor will have a complete experience about the story,” Billings said.

Those attending the day-long meeting at the Lawrence Visitor Information Center, 402 N. Second St., broke down into small groups to discuss criteria for participation in the heritage area. Discussions included use of the Freedom’s Frontier logo and how to raise the quality of a tourist site to do a better job of telling its history, Billings said.

The plan is necessary to meet requirements established to become a full-fledged National Heritage Area as approved by Congress and President Bush in 2006.

Publicity about Freedom’s Frontier is already paying off in attracting attention and tourists, Billings said.

The Kansas side of Freedom’s Frontier is the topic of an article in the new Kansas Official Visitors Guide for 2009-2010. The Public Broadcasting Service also is working on a documentary about the border war.

New Douglas County commissioners take office

January 12, 2009

The face of Douglas County government changed Monday as two long-time commissioners gave way to their newly elected replacements.

"I think this commission accomplished quite a bit. We did what we had to do," said Jere McElhaney, who along with Bob Johnson served eight years before both decided in 2008 not to run for re-election.

"It's been a great experience," Johnson said.

McElhaney's 3rd District seat was taken over by Jim Flory and Nancy Thellman took Johnson's 2nd District spot. Both thanked their families and people who supported their campaigns after taking the oath of office from Douglas County Chief Judge Robert Fairchild.

"I'll spend every day in the office trying to earn their confidence," Flory said.

Thellman said she sought a "good and welcoming" government.

"I'm committing myself to doing a lot of listening in this room and learning," she said.

Flory and Thellman took their seats next to the lone incumbent, 1st District Commissioner Charles Jones, who is midway through his third term. The new commission's first order of business was to elect Jones board chairman and Thellman vice chairwoman.

Jones then said he wanted to divide some of the chairman's responsibilities among his counterparts so there would be more focus on certain issues.

Jones asked Flory to be the county's liaison to the Kansas Bioscience Authority and to work on the issue of cleaning up and redeveloping the former Farmland plant property. He asked Thellman to represent the county in economic development partnership meetings with the city of Lawrence and the Lawrence Chamber of Commerce. Jones said he would continue his efforts on transportation, Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area and other matters.

"I think this distribution is very promising," Jones said.

Before stepping aside, Johnson and McElhaney said they thought the former commission worked well together, noting that they and Jones tried to reach compromises on a broad spectrum of issues and usually voted unanimously on those issues.

Other officeholders who were elected last fall and their deputies also were given the oath of office by Fairchild, including District Attorney Charles Branson, Sheriff Ken McGovern, Clerk Jamie Shew and Register of Deeds Kay Pesnell.

Historical focus

Dreams for telling this area's fascinating pre-Civil War story are coming into focus.

J-W Editorials

January 13, 2009

Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area is starting to take shape.

It may have been difficult for some observers to grasp the concept of the area, which encompasses 41 counties in eastern Kansas and western Missouri. However, as a spring deadline with the National Park Service approaches, planners are settling on three themes for the area.

The main focus will be the pre-Civil War history, including the border clashes between pro-slavery forces in Missouri and abolitionists in Kansas. The area also will focus on settlers in the area, why they came here and how they were involved in the border wars. The area also will look at how our history affected this region after the Civil War and into the present.

Years of work and planning have gone into the National Heritage Area project. One of its most dedicated advocates has been Judy Billings, president of Destination Management, which oversees the Lawrence Convention and Visitors Bureau and manages local efforts for the heritage area. Billings and other local organizers correctly believe that Lawrence's history should be at the center of the heritage area's story and activities.

It's an exciting prospect for anyone interested in Lawrence history and tourism. Much work lies ahead, but it's great to see the possibilities of this regional project come into focus.

Kansas has stories to tell as it celebrates 148th birthday

A group will seek funding for a virtual museum to share the state's contributions to U.S. history.

BY BECCY TANNER
The Wichita Eagle

Struggles for freedom -- by American Indians, black Americans and women -- have dominated Kansas' history. As the state celebrates its 148th birthday today, a group is preparing to seek federal funding to document and share those struggles in a virtual museum.

"The stories of the Trail of Freedom, the Underground Railroad, the slave versus anti-slavery folks, set the course of action over who could own land, the status of native people, who could vote. Every group that came, came looking for freedom," said Judge Deanell Reece Tacha, chairman of the board of trustees for Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area.

When Kansas was opened for settlement in 1854, a border war broke out, leaving the territory's future slave status in the hands of settlers. The seven years of violence and debates helped spark the Civil War three months after Kansas was admitted to the Union as a free state.

The heritage area, which encompasses 29 counties in eastern Kansas and 12 in western Missouri, plans to seek up to $10 million over 15 years from the Department of the Interior.

"The designation will help us share our place in the history of our state and the subsequent contribution Kansas made to the nation," said Judy Billings, director of the Lawrence Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Rather than construct a building, organizers plan to increase signs at historic sites featured in the area and allow visitors to download stories onto their iPods and computers for self-guided tours of Kansas.

Visitors could learn about James Lane, a Kansas senator who helped set up the Underground Railroad leading slaves to freedom. And about the 1856 Battle of Black Jack, near Lawrence, which many historians believe was the first battle of the Civil War.

Beyond Bleeding Kansas and the Civil War, the heritage area could also tell stories of the Mexican War and the Mormon War -- and even Brown v. Board of Education, the landmark Supreme Court case that helped end segregation in schools.

The area highlights the wagon wheel ruts from the Santa Fe and Oregon trails; the story of the 1st Kansas Colored Infantry, the first group of black soldiers to go into the U.S. Army and the first to fight; and the story of Clarina Nichols, one of the nation's first suffragettes.

Although the heritage area does not include Wichita, it could affect all Kansans and perhaps serve as a model for other heritage areas, such as one in the Flint Hills, said Tacha, a judge for the 10th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals.

"Wichita is one of the gateways," Tacha said. "This region has a rich history that the rest of the world doesn't know. Our whole goal is to tell powerful stories."

The RFP identified several downtown locations for potential private redevelopment with potential private/public partnerships. Each site is owned by the City and does not generate tax revenue.

Three proposals were received expressing interest in several downtown sites. The potential redevelopment sites include: the southwest corner of Santa Fe and Chestnut (parking lot),

Partnership Leads to Preservation of Historic Barn at Mahaffie
Released 2/17/09

Work is underway on one of, if not the, oldest structure at the historic Mahaffie Stagecoach Stop and Farm site. Though it cannot be determined with certainty, the site’s original barn is believed to be the farm’s first structure built in 1858. It is one of three structures at the site listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

The barn was originally used to store hay and wheat. Currently, it not only stores crops but historic farm implements for the public to view. In addition, it houses woodworking demonstration and program space for school children and visitors.

Sometime during the early 20th Century, the barn’s original support beams were removed to make room for at tractor and other equipment. As a result, several beams have deteriorated to the point of weakening, and preservation work is required. Based in the barn’s historical significance, the restoration will carefully address structural issues while preserving the historical elements.

The project is being made possible through the continued partnership with the Johnson County Heritage Trust Fund and the Johnson County Board of County Commissioners, the fund’s administrator.

The structural framework repair is anticipated to be completed in the next three weeks, and the complete restoration is expected to be finished in the next two months.

Olathe Residents Encouraged to Participate in National Planning
Released 2/17/09

Lawrence, Kan. - The public is encouraged to comment on the draft Executive Summary of the Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area (FFNHA) Management Plan. Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area, consisting of 41 counties in western-Missouri and eastern-
Kansas, is a grassroots effort to steward the cultural landscape and nationally significant stories about the struggle over freedom on the frontier.

The Executive Summary, the first of several sections in the plan, will be posted online at the www.finhast-hosting.com. The public will have 30 days to comment.

As a whole, the Management Plan will reveal insights and information gleaned during the planning process and will guide the heritage area's activities for the next decade.

Over the next two months, the remaining six sections of the plan will be posted online for public comment. These sections include:
* Power of Place, exploring the natural history of the heritage area.
* Power of Story, relaying why this story is significant and how Freedom's Frontier is committed to telling this story.
* Power of Action, offering tools for citizens and groups to manage the heritage area.
* Power of Partnership, offering recommendations for Freedom's Frontier's coordinating entity and its partners to shape the heritage area.

OLATHE PUBLIC LIBRARY AND MAYOR’S READING INITIATIVE RECEIVE ADDITIONAL SUPPORT FROM COMCAST FOUNDATION
Released 2/17/09

OLATHE READS, a partnership formed by the City of Olathe, Olathe District Schools, and the Olathe Public Library to promote the value and importance of reading, has been awarded a $10,000 literacy grant by the Comcast Foundation. The grant will be used to fund the continued expansion and promotion of the Olathe Public Library’s Summer Reading Program for children; enhancement of the Library’s Teen Summer Reading Program; and books for “I Read With Mayor Mike,” Mayor Michael Copeland’s reading initiative in Olathe’s ten Title 1 elementary schools.

With Comcast Foundation grant funds allowing increased publicity, the Olathe Public Library continues to see growing numbers of children enrolled in its Summer Reading Program for elementary school students, designed to encourage reading during the summer. This is an important part of promoting reading in the Olathe community, as research shows there can be a significant drop in students’ reading ability over the summer months. To encourage teens to read during the summer, the Library has also established the Teen

Every state, every county and every city in this country has a story to tell that makes up a part of the history of the United States.

And for the members of the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area, nothing is more important than making the world aware of the importance Kansas and Missouri played in our nation's history.

"We've all been interpreting these stories and telling them in various ways, but we've been telling them individually," said Judy Billings, president of Destination Management, which is overseeing the management plan for the heritage area. "What we are hoping to do is to connect these stories. Eventually we will make the world aware of the importance of this area."

On Thursday, stake-holding members of the heritage area met at University of Saint Mary in Leavenworth to continue working on the project that has taken Billings and others more than 10 years to complete.

Billings, who is also the executive director of the Lawrence Convention and Visitors Bureau, said the 41-county area accomplished its first goal Oct. 12, 2008, when the group was given the federal designation of a heritage area. With the designation these parts of Kansas and Missouri became a part of the National Heritage Areas.

"We have literally put ourselves on a national map," Billings said. "That can only become more beneficial to us."

Since then, people from the heritage area have met on the second Thursday of the month somewhere inside the heritage area to finish the management plan required by the National Park Service.

The meeting in Leavenworth focused on stakeholders' roles in Freedom's Frontier. Discussion centered on identifying partners for future projects, and planning for future 2009 events, and posting of the management plan.

J.C. Tellefsen, Leavenworth County commissioner, said he has been involved with the heritage area for several years.

He said he saw the heritage area as an economic opportunity for Leavenworth County and as an opportunity to retain the rich history of the area.

"We have to preserve history for two reasons: So we don't repeat the bad stuff and so we learn from it," he said.

The goal is to have the management plan submitted to the National Park Service for approval in May. From there the group hopes to have Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar approve the plan, which will give the area access to $10 million over 15 years of federal funding.

"That doesn't mean we'll get all of that money, but we will be authorized to ask for it," Billing said.

She also said that any federal dollars would have to be matched with privately raised money.
Billing said the project started to just recognize the history of Douglas County, but as she and other members did more work they realized they couldn't tell the complete history without including a wider area.

Members of the public interested in joining the organization or interested in commenting on the management plan can see the plan as it is being worked at www.freedomsfrontier.org.

History, culture, and landscape within the Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area combine to tell the stories that contribute to our national and individual freedoms.

A wide swath of eastern Kansas and western Missouri are a national heritage area highlighting the region's role leading up to the Civil War as well as its role in the ongoing national debate over the definition of freedom.

The Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area includes Lawrence, 29 Kansas counties and 12 in Missouri, where the dispute over slavery played out in the months leading up to the Civil War.

The area was a hotbed of violence and political strife—known as Bleeding Kansas—following the Kansas-Nebraska Act of 1854, which allowed a popular vote to determine if Kansas would be added to the country as a free or slave state. Three months after Kansas was admitted as a free state in 1861, the Civil War began.

On June 2, 1856, in a prairie slough, militias from Kansas and Missouri fought the first skirmish in what Abraham Lincoln would call our "great war to determine whether any nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal can long endure."

Led by anti-slavery zealot John Brown and future Confederate Colonel Henry Clay Pate, the Battle of Black Jack in southern Douglas County preceded the siege of Fort Sumter and the formal start of the Civil War by five years. During those years, the events in our region focused the nation's attention on the great struggle between state and federal authority over slavery and the humanity of a nation. Continued

Woodchip/Mulch Sale

Held rain or shine

Sale hours:
- Thursday, April 2  8 am to 3 pm
- Friday, April 3    8 am to 3 pm
- Saturday, April 4  8 am to 4 pm

Location:
LPRD Forestry Division facility,
1420 E. 11th St.

Cost:
$10 per pick up load.

How to use:
Woodchips, like mulch, are helpful when it comes to the growth of newly planted trees, when used in gardens or used in flower beds. Spreading woodchips reduces the amount of water lost through evaporation, prevents excess run-off, restricts weed growth, and replaces valuable nutrients into the soil.

Rather than purchase mulch, Parks and Recreation recycles trees that are cut down throughout the city. The trees are processed through a chipper and used as mulch. The woodchip sale eliminates woodchips generated throughout the year.

A step back into history

Get to www.historicforests.org and see how our region's history has shaped the present day. Our region is rich in history and has been shaped by millions of years ago. The geology and landscape are elements in why and where we are today.

Some 100 million years ago, the Appalachian Mountains were formed. Some of the sandstone formations are among the rocks that remain.

About 65 million years ago, the sea was at its lowest, leaving a broad expanse of flat land. The Appalacian Mountains were formed about this time. The mountains have a marked effect on Midwestern weather.

Glaciers, too, were significant. They carried materials to the area and carved out valleys. At their edges the glaciers left rich soil suitable for farming.

People are drawn to water, railroads, and industry shows. Settlements set up stations in the 1800s at the confluence of the Missouri and Kansas rivers. Railroads, too, tend to locate along the edges of the glaciers.

The posting of this information has been part of a plan to develop Frohney Forestry Heritage Area, sponsored by the Missouri and Kansas Forestry Association. The plan was signed into law by President George W. Bush in 2006. It covers 11 counties in the Midwest.

At the Web site mentioned above, you will be asked to comment on a draft of the plan. The section is called the Power 109. A response deadline is March 22.

A word about the sense of place. A sense of place is awareness of and a strong feeling for our environment. This is acquired through knowing history and landscape, along with memories of a place and the people who live different from each other.

There are other categories in the plan, too, available for comment later. The plan established its core mission: To foster understanding of the struggles for freedom that occurred here during and after Civil War period.

Johnson County, with its many important places in the FENHA, has thoughts known on this topic. The history of this region is rich because of the geography and the people who came here.

Briefly
Freedom's Frontier: Public comment sought on management plan draft

Tuesday, June 2, 2009
Nevada Daily Mail

The public is urged to comment on the final draft of Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area Management Plan, available online, now through June 6.

Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area, consisting of 41 counties in western Missouri and eastern Kansas, is a grassroots effort to steward the cultural landscape and nationally significant stories about the struggle over freedom on the frontier.

Vernon County is one of the 12 counties in Missouri, and "we are coming to the very end of putting together the management plan," essentially a set of written materials aimed at giving guidance on how communities and entities partnering with the National Heritage Area on how to become a partner, how to make their part of the story of our past more interesting and vital, and much more, said Terry Ramsey, a member of the group's steering committee and coordinator of the Bushwhacker Museum, Nevada.

Sections titled "Power of Action" and "Power of Partnership" are the latest additions to what has previously been reviewed. The entire plan, including these sections, are posted online at the www.ffnha-hosting.com.

The Power of Action offers "toolkits" for citizens and groups to assess and improve experiences offered in Freedom's Frontier. These toolkits cover heritage preservation, tourism and marketing, and storytelling. The Power of Partnership offers in-depth information and recommendations for the Freedom's Frontier coordinating entity and its partners to manage the heritage area. This section addresses heritage preservation, recreation, natural resource conservation, interpretation, education, tourism, marketing and economic development.

Over the course of 2008 and early 2009, area volunteers have worked with a consultant group to produce the management plan. Each section of the plan has been reviewed by committees and the organization's steering committee before posting for the public. As a whole, the Management Plan reveals insights and information gleaned during the planning process and will guide the heritage area's activities for the next decade. Additional information about Freedom's Frontier can be found online at www.freedomsfrontier.org.

"It's quite an extensive plan, and we are seeking public comment...we really want to know what they think, and if they have any suggestions," Ramsey said.

The next step is to gain approval of the Management Plan by the National Park Service after which it will be sent to the Secretary of Interior for final signature. Freedom's Frontier will then begin to implement recommendations in the plan.

Next Quarterly Deadlines:

December 1, 2008 - Apply Now!

Community leaders are encouraged to apply for the Preserve America community designation, which recognizes a community's efforts to care for and share its cultural and natural heritage. The designation also makes the community eligible for special federal funding. Preserve America is a White House initiative conducted in cooperation with the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) and other federal agencies. The last 2008 application period is December 1.

Additional information and application forms are available at www.preserveamerica.gov. Through participation in Preserve America, communities share knowledge about the nation's past, strengthen local identities and local pride, increase neighborhood participation in preserving the country's cultural and natural heritage assets and support economic vitality.

Once a community receives the Preserve America designation, it is eligible to apply for Preserve America grants, which may be used for research and documentation, education and interpretation, planning, marketing or training. These grants, which must be matched by the community, cannot be used for construction or repair projects. Last year, the government awarded nearly $5 million in federal funding for Preserve America grants. In 2008, $7.5 million was made available for the grants, which range from $20,000 to $150,000.

Other benefits of the designation include:

White House recognition, a certificate of recognition, and inclusion in national and regional press releases

- Official notification of designation to state tourism offices and visitors bureau's.
- A Preserve America Community road sign and authorization to use the Preserve America logo on signs, flags, banners and promotional materials.
- Listing in a Web-based Preserve America Community directories.
- Enhanced community visibility and pride.

The Preserve America program was established by the Bush Administration in 2003 and, so far, Honorary Chair and First Lady Laura Bush have awarded the designation to more than 600 communities nationwide. This month, the U.S. House of Representatives overwhelmingly voted to authorize the program permanently.

Historic Lecompton:
Birthplace of the American Civil War, Where Slavery Began to Die
Lecompton was the only official Territorial Capitol of the Kansas Territory from 1855 to 1861. The famous Lecompton Constitution was written inside Constitution Hall, a National Historic Landmark, in the fall of 1857. This document sparked a chain of events that divided the nation and climaxed into the American Civil War. It was debated in Congress and in the office of President Buchanan. The Lecompton Constitution played a significant role in the Lincoln-Douglas Debates.

The Territorial Capital Museum was planned to be the Kansas Capitol and was completed in 1882 as Lane University. President Eisenhower's parents met and married at Lane University in 1885. For more information on Historic Lecompton, click here.

WHAT DOES THE LOGO MEAN?

The Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area logo was designed to represent the trails that have been blazed, both literally and figuratively, throughout the region and how the past intersects with the present. The star in the logo is a six-point star, representing the North Star, which has served as a guiding light from the time of the Underground Railroad's existence in the region. The blue in the graphic represents the boundless sky and the brown represents the abundant earth and prairie.

LINK TO FFNHA's WEBSITE

We would like everyone with a website to link to Freedom's Frontier NHA site. You will need to check with your IT person for the best way to accomplish.
Basically you'll want to imbed the address into a logo or picture and it will link. Or the no frills method would just have the web address.

Until the logo criteria has been finalized you could link the way the Lawrence CVB does to FFNHA on their home page. Click HERE to see the example.

GEO-CACHING

Geocaching (pronounced geo-cashing) is a worldwide game of hiding and seeking treasure. A geocacher can place a geocache in the world, pinpoint its location using GPS technology and then share the geocache's existence and location online. Anyone with a GPS unit can then try to locate the geocache.

There are various types of caches. The traditional cache is simply a cache hidden in a particular location. The person who hides the cache, the keeper, posts the GPS coordinates online. The cacher, the one looking for the cache, could then punch in the coordinates on his GPS unit and find the cache. After finding the cache, the cacher would sign the log book and could either leave an item or swap an item from the box with another of equal or greater value.

A multicache is a cache that covers multiple locations. For instance, when following the coordinates given on the geocaching website, the cacher might find himself at a specific tombstone in the cemetery that contains information needed to find the next location. Something like the birth and death dates or the name could be encoded GPS coordinates to the next cache, which could lead you to another cache, until you finally get to the end of the multicache.

You can find more information at the following sites:

Museum Services - Better Museum Visits

Our focus is on people rather than things. This section is about better "visits" rather than better "exhibits" or better "collections management," because if cultivating the visitor's intelligence is not the center of the museum's mission, then exhibits or collections won't avert the failure of the institution. You can find additional information at Museum Services.

Burnt District Monument

Following the Civil War and the removal of civilians from Jackson, Cass, Bates and part of Vernon Counties in Missouri as a result of Order No. 11 in 1863, those who returned to the "Burnt District" found a desolate landscape; only chimneys marked once flourishing farms and homesteads. This monument of hand-cut native limestone commemorates the suffering which almost every family in western Missouri endured in the war years of 1861 to 1865 and the courage they displayed.
Four interpretive panels and a memorial brick plaza, stand on the lawn of the Cass County Justice Center in Harrisonville, Missouri. US Highway 71 & MO Hwy 2.

The monument was recently featured in an article in American Roads, a national travel magazine. Travel journalist Kathleen Walls of Florida visited Harrisonville in September with a tour of travel writers who were exploring the Civil War history of the area. Following is an excerpt of her article: "The Burnt District Monument is a brand new memorial to those trying times. I felt privileged to be among the first group of journalists to visit it."

HISTORY UNDER SIEGE

The Civil War Preservation Trust (CWPT) recently issued its annual History Under Siege report of the 10 most endangered battlefields and 15 most at risk sites. These represent 25 battlefields CWPT and historians believe have significant military importance and need the most immediate preservation attention. The Lone Jack Battlefield, within the boundary of Freedom's Frontier National Heritage Area, is included in the 15 most at risk sites - the only site in Missouri. The 3-1/2 acre battlefield site of the museum and cemetery is publicly owned by Jackson County and operated by the Lone Jack Historical Society. It is surrounded on three sides by residential and commercial property and on the fourth side by commercially zoned property for sale. While Section 6 in the enabling legislation addresses private property protection, Freedom's Frontier will explore ways to raise the level of importance of this site and assist the public ownership in bringing a successful conclusion to the issue.

The complete press release can be found at Lone Jack Battlefield. Read Section 6 of the enabling legislation, which covers property rights within Freedom's Frontier.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL FIELD SCHOOL

Burnt District Archaeological Field School
June 8-28, 2009

General Order #11 and the Archaeology of the Burned District

The University of Missouri-Kansas City Geosciences Department and the Bates County History Museum are co-sponsoring an archaeological field school. The field school will be offered through the University of Missouri-Kansas City, but is open to all current university students in good academic standing.

This field school will focus on one of the most traumatic events in American history. In the run up to the Civil War, the Missouri-Kansas border was the scene of merciless partisan fighting between pro-Union and secessionist groups, culminating in William Quantrill's infamous raid on Lawrence, Kansas in which nearly 200 men and boys were singled out for death. Following Quantrill's raid, the Union Army issued General Order 11. Order 11 of 1863 resulted in the complete depopulation of Bates County and the total destruction of all towns, farms, live stock, and crops. Order 11 created an extraordinary archaeological time capsule in Bates County.

The field school will research the effects of this order, particularly the ability of the county's people to recover economically and socially after the war. Although this program focuses on Civil War-era archaeological sites, students will receive training in research techniques employed by archaeologists around the world.

This field school is valuable to students planning advanced work in archaeology, students seeking employment in contract (CRM) archaeology or who merely want to experience field research in archaeology.

For more information or to request an application packet, please contact Ann Raab or visit the Bates County Archaeology website.

FEATURED SITE

Mahaffie Stagecoach Stop and Farm

Mahaffie Stagecoach Stop and Farm Historic Site is located at 1200 Kansas City Road, Olathe, KS. James 'Beatty' Mahaffie and Lucinda Mahaffie moved to Olathe with their five children in 1858 from Indiana. After starting their farm next to the Santa Fe Trail, Mahaffie raised a successful crop of wheat in 1859. He sold the extra crop, becoming the first successful farmer in Johnson County, KS. Their location on the trail provided a great stopping point on a stagecoach route originating from Westport, MO. In the early 1860s, Barlow and Sanderson Stagecoach lines began contracting with the Mahaffie family to provide meals and livery service to the passengers. As stagecoach traffic increased the Mahaffie’s built a fine two story limestone farmhouse with their kitchen and dining room in the cellar, which still stands today.

Beatty and Lucinda Mahaffie lived through the Border War and Civil War era in Kansas. Their farm was never visited by Quantrill and their fine house that stands today was finished right after the Civil War came to an end. However, the Mahaffie family was affected by the activities. When William Quantrill raided Olathe on September 6, 1862, his band destroyed printing presses and killed six men. Although no buildings were burned, the raid had a chilling effect on the town. The morning after the raid, Beatty Mahaffie and his neighbor Jonathan Millikan were riding on horseback assessing the damage. Mr. Millikan picked up a small flag left behind by Quantrill's raiders and the flag is now part of the collection at the Kansas State Historical Society.

Mahaffie Stagecoach Stop and Farm Historic Site have activities and programs year round. The Heritage Center at Mahaffie has exhibits about the Mahaffie family, the Oregon, California and Santa Fe Trails, and Johnson County in the 1860s. Visitors can view a video about the Mahaffie family, and learn about how Olathe experienced the Border War and Civil War eras. To learn more about the Border War, a new video, Border War Voices, speaks about the various viewpoints of the Border War is also on display. When a visitor views this video, they can touch a screen and a character from various viewpoints presents their feelings about slavery. The viewpoints of pro-slavery, abolitionist, and farmer are all presented. The interview segments are based on the documentary 'Bad Blood' which was produced by KCPT and Wide Awake Films. The visitor makes their choice based on the viewpoints. This video is possible through a grant from the Kansas Humanities Council.

Mahaffie Stagecoach Stop and Farm Historic Site is located at 1200 Kansas City Road, Olathe, KS. For more information click HERE or call 913.971.5111.

The Power of Partnership offers in-depth information and recommendations for the Freedom's Frontier coordinating entity and its partners to manage the heritage area. This section addresses heritage preservation, recreation, natural resource conservation, interpretation, education, tourism, marketing and economic development.

Over the course of 2008 and early 2009, area volunteers have worked with a consultant group to produce the Management Plan. Each section of the plan has been reviewed by committees and the organization's Steering Committee before posting for the public. As a whole, the Management Plan reveals insights and information gleaned during the planning process and will guide the heritage area's activities for the next decade. Additional information about Freedom's Frontier can be found online at www.freedomsfrontier.org.

The National Archives in Kansas City has recently relocated to the Union Station complex at 400 West Pershing Road. The archives serve Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska. Below are two exhibits that are of interest to Freedom's Frontier Partners.

The Kansas-Nebraska Act
22 May - December 31
Exhibit focuses on the Kansas-Nebraska Act of 1854. The original Act will be on loan from Washington, D.C. This exhibit emphasizes the Act’s impact on the region, its role in the "Bleeding Kansas" conflict, and how it affected national sentiment over the question of slavery.

It's Big (75th Anniversary of the National Archives)
22 May - January 23, 2010
Exhibit features big documents, big ideas, big personalities and big events from the Central Plains Region. Documents, maps, artifacts and photographs from the archive holdings tell stories of human and historical interest.

SAMPLER FESTIVAL 2010/2011

Leavenworth, KS will host the 2010-2011 Kansas Sampler Festival. The festival will be held on May 1 & 2, 2010.

In 2010 and 2011 Freedom's Frontier NHA will host a performance tent at the Kansas Sampler Festival. Inside, the large tent, we will offer festival goers portrayals of the struggles and triumphs that both the Kansans and Missourians endured. During non-performance times there will be an area with children's period games and activities. This is a great opportunity to share all sides of the pre-Civil War and Civil War, Shaping the Frontier and the Enduring Struggle for Freedom stories, the three themes of FFNHA. We are looking for individuals or groups that would be interested in participating/performing, educating, or demonstrating a craft or skill. A sample of some of the types of performance and activities might include:

- Historic story telling
- Era music
- 1st person portrayal
- Children's games
- Children's clothing, for dress-up
- Period demonstrations

Lecompton Players, Carol Bohl's group of re-enactors and Aunt Polly are a few of the people that have already shown an interest in performing. If you are interested or know someone that would like to participate or want more information please contact Debbie at dwhite@freedomsfrontier.org.

If you would like to help with the planning of this event contact Debbie at the above email.

"The Kansas Sampler Festival is like a living brochure of Kansas! In 2009, 140 communities provided a sample of what there is to see, do, hear, taste, buy, and learn in Kansas! The festival was designed to bring communities and attractions from all over the state together to make it easy for the public to discover trip possibilities. In other words, the primary purpose of the festival is to provide the public a sample of what there is to see and do in Kansas." Marci Penner

Overview

The FFNHA Visioning process consisted of four meetings to garner public input on Vision, Mission, Values, Goals, and Objectives. For reference, each of these terms is defined in the Management Planning Process Glossary. The terms served as the basis for creating the Freedom’s Frontier National Heritage Area (FFNHA) Foundation Statement.

Three of the meetings took place in public locations during the winter and early spring of 2008. One forum was conducted via an Internet-based survey. Meetings One and Two involved the use of nominal group technique in which small groups of 10-25 participants worked with a facilitator to generate ideas based on pre-determined assignments.

Meeting 1: Vision and Mission Definition, Olathe KS 3/13/08

After an overall introduction defining the meaning of “Vision” and “Mission,” the large group of 104 stakeholders from around the FFNHA region broke into four small groups, each with a facilitator. With its focus on developing descriptors from which to craft a Vision and Mission statement for FFNHA, small group facilitators in Meeting One read the following assignment statements.

For the morning session on Vision, the assignment given was as follows:

“How would you like the FFNHA region to function, live, embrace history and ecology, express its history and draw people in 2028?”

The Vision small group session encouraged participants to consider the entire 41-county region and the image they would like to see in 20 years. The mission session was more pragmatic, asking the group to comment on how the Vision can be achieved and the role the FFNHA management entity might play in building that Vision.

In the Vision session, participants were shown a flip chart that included eight descriptor phrases that reflect findings from earlier public input and content from the FFNHA feasibility study. These phrases served as models of what descriptors could be and the range of topics to explore – from tourism to regional economy and local pride.

Participants were then asked to write down on an index card the “three favorite places in their county” and three leading adjectives that they would like to include in the Vision. Participants then each shared what they wrote. Facilitators used this technique to encourage less vocal people to share their thoughts at the outset. An open discussion followed to record phrases and descriptors to consider. Participation in all four small groups was broad and active and the comments reflected the index card exercise.

After 30 minutes of conversation, the facilitator then asked each member to “vote” for the recorded descriptors written on the flipchart based on the group dialogue. Each participant had eight adhesive dots, and voted for their favorites using one dot per phrase.

The results of this nominal group discussion and voting are shown in Table 2. In order to interpret the raw results, the planning team created a content analysis of the descriptors, clustering them into categories as shown in the table. Similar descriptors from the different small groups were clustered and given a subtotal.
